THE LATEST.

Testifying in his own behalf, William D. Haywood denied that he planned, conspired in or desired the murder of former Gov. Steunenberg. The direct examination of the defendant took up the first hour and a half of the morning session. Clarence Darrow led his client casually over the ground covered by Orchard and at every charge that Haywood had any connection with Orchard other than what was of the most innocent character or with any criminal act was denied again and again by the witness in the most positive terms. Senator Borah took Haywood in hand for cross-examination for the last hour of the session.

Appointment of Henry Watterson as chairman of the Committee of Invitation; E. H. Bacon, chairman of the Committee on Hotels and Accommodations; Gen. John B. Castleman, chairman of the Committee on Finances, and Robert E. Hughes, chairman of the Committee on Press and Publicity, by the Committee of One Hundred yesterday marked the first steps in the campaign to get the National Democratic Convention of 1908 to assemble in Louisville.

An official statement announcing a "thoroughly good understanding and fundamental friendliness" between the United States and Japan was issued by President Roosevelt to-day through Secretary Loeb after the departure of Admiral Yamomoto and Ambassador Aoki from Sagamore Hill. The statement was, "The President had a long interview with Admiral Baron Yamomoto and it was most satisfactory in every way."

Attachments were issued at Sandy Hook, by order of Special Judge Moody, for witnesses in the Hargis case who are slow in accepting service in the ordinary way, and the trial will begin on Monday. It is probable that the Commonwealth will try to have the case of John Abner called first, hoping to postpone the Hargis hearing until witnesses can be secured. A petition for a change of venue was overruled by the court.

An open attack on the French Government and Ambassador Bompard appeared in the Novoe Vremya, at St. Petersburg, which a week ago began reviewing and tentatively condemning the Franco-Russian alliance. It is supposed that the paper in this instance is serving as the mouthpiece of the powerful court party which is working in favor of closer relations with Germany.

It is currently believed that the American Society of Equity is seeking to get control of the majority stock of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company. The company's representatives here say no overtures have been made by either side, but it is given out that the question will be considered at a meeting of tobacco-growers to be held here on July 17.

In the Federal Court at Charleston, W. Va., the Ritter Lumber Company, of Meben, Wyoming county, which was indicted for peonage, pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to hold the employes in peonage. The charge contained twenty counts, the minimum fine on each count being $1,000.

Proof that the defendant's saloon was open on Sunday was enough cause for fine in Judge Blain's opinion when he tried fourteen "lid-lifting" cases in Police Court yesterday. He was inexorable and in most cases assessed a fine too small for the case to be carried to the higher courts.

Col. Sebastian Gunther yesterday handed in his resignation as Chief o Police of Louisville, and Col. J. H. Haager, formerly chief of the department, was immediately named to succeed him. The new Board of Public Safety made no other changes yesterday.

An agreement has been reached between Secretary of War Taft and the representatives of the Catholic Church in the Philippine Islands regarding a number of important matters of controversy which will obviate the necessity of prolonging vexatious libelations.

President McCrea, of the Pennsylvania railroad, testified yesterday that the enforcement of the two-cent rate law would be inequitable both to the railroads and the traveling public.

Sixteen men were injured in a wreck on the Queen and Crescent road near Somerset when a local freight crashed into a work train.

The State Bar Association, in session at Bowling Green, elected T. Kenendy Helm, of Louisville, president.

GUNTHER OUT; HAAGER IS CHIEF

Shift In Police Department Late Yesterday.

Former Head Sent In Resignation To New Board.

Understood From Governor That He Would Hold.

Other Changes Will Probably Be Made To-day.

PLANS OF THE NEW CHIEF.

After thirty-seven and one-half years of continuous service in the Louisville Police Department, Col. Sebastian Gunther yesterday afternoon handed in his resignation as Chief of Police, which was accepted, and Col. J. H. Haager was named as his successor. Col. Gunther immediately vacated the office of Chief of the Police Department, and Col. Haager took charge. No other changes were decided upon by the Board of Public Safety yesterday, but W. W. Davies, chairman, said that other changes likely would be made today. The board will go into executive session again this morning at 10 o'clock.

In a speech yesterday Mayor Bingham declared emphatically that the police and fire departments will be divided absolutely from politics.

Understood From Governor.

The resignation of Col. Gunther was not voluntary on his part. He said, after his resignation had been accepted, that Gov. Beckham had given him to understand that he would be allowed to continue as Chief of the Police Department. Immediately after the new Board of Public Safety had been sworn into office by Mayor Bingham yesterday, Col. Gunther called upon them in the Board of Public Safety office and paid his respects. Later in the day rumor to the effect that Col. J. H. Haager was to be made Chief of Police became so insistent that Col. Gunther determined to learn his fate at once. He consequently called Mr. Davies over the telephone, and requested a private interview with him. Mr. Davies was in his office at the Paul Jones building at the time, and made an engagement to meet Col. Gunther in the office of the Board of Public Safety.

Asks For Chief's Resignation.

Mr. Davies arrived at the City Hall at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and a few minutes later he and Col. Gunther were closeted. Col. Gunther told Mr. Davies of the persistent rumors that had reached him, and asked whether he was to be allowed to retain his office. It was then that Mr. Davies told him that Mayor Bingham favored another for the office of Chief of Police, and forthwith requested Col. Gunther to tender his resignation.

Without attempting to argue the case, Col. Gunther excused himself, telling Mr. Davies that he would shortly return with his resignation, and Mr. Davies then proceeded to place himself in communication with the other two members of the board. He requested them to report at the City Hall immediately in order that the full board might act on Col. Gunther's resignation and at the same time name his successor. Judge James P. Gregory and John Stites had already arrived when Col. Gunther returned to the office of the Board of Public Safety with his resignation in his hand. It required only a few minutes for the board to accept the resignation.

Col. Haager New Chief.

Immediately following the acceptance, Mr. Davies called Col. J. H. Haager by telephone, and the latter, who was in waiting at Mr. Davies' office in the Paul Jones building, arrived at the City Hall a few minutes later. He was with the members of the Board of Public Safety probably five minutes, at the expiration of which time the doors to the private office were thrown open and Col. Haager appeared, smiling. Mr. Davies, who was immediately behind, introduced Col. Haager to those in the general office of the board as the "new Chief of Police."

Drug Stores Can't Sell Either.

Following the action of the Board of Public Safety yesterday afternoon in naming Col. Haager to succeed Col. Sebastian Gunther, a conference between the three members of the board and Mayor Bingham was held in the latter's private office at the City Hall. The meeting lasted from 4:45 o'clock to almost 6 o'clock, and at its conclusion Mayor Bingham announced that a new order relative to the sale of liquor on Sunday, including the drug stores, was issued.

The order, it is said, is practically the same as that issued by Mayor Bingham to the old Board of Public Safety immediately after he became Mayor, the two words, "including drug stores," having been added.

Col. Haager was present at the meeting and promised that the new orders would be strictly carried out.

From Patrolman To Chief.

Col. Sebastian Gunther will be sixty-seven years old next November. He is a native of Bavaria, Germany, having been born there November 12, 1840. With his parents he came to this country when he was a boy twelve years old. He came to Louisville in 1854 and has lived here ever since.

Thrown upon his own resources when fourteen years old, Col. Gunther began carving out his future. He was twenty-nine years old when he first entered the police service in Louisville. He was appointed a patrolman on March 7, 1870, and step by step he ascended the ladder of promotion until November, 1901, when, during Mayor Charles F. Grainger's administration, he was appointed Chief of the Police Department. For eleven years prior to receiving that appointment he served as night Chief of Police. He served as a Captain of police three years and as Lieutenant of police six years.

"Plain Gunther Now."

"I am plain Gunther now," said Col. Gunther, as he emerged from the office of the Board of Public Safety after his resignation had been accepted. "I am no longer Col. Gunther."

"The grand old man," as he has often been termed by those who knew him best, and are acquainted with his sterling qualities of worth, was visibly affected when he shook hands with several newspaper men and told them

LOUISVILLIAN AT HEAD OF LAWYERS

T. KENNEDY HELM PRESIDENT OF BAR ASSOCIATION.

RESOLUTION DEALS WITH "EXPERT" TESTIMONY.

DR. M'CORMACK TALKS OF IT.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—The Bar Association this afternoon elected the following officers: President, T. Kenendy Helm, Louisville; vice presidents (by appellate districts): First—J. D. Smocquet, Paducah; second—Thomas W. Thomas, Bowling Green; third—James Garnett, Columbia; fourth—E. J. McDermott, Louisville; fifth—W. O. Davis, Versailles; sixth—Richard Gray, Covington; seventh—W. M. Ayers, Pineville; secretary, R. A. McDowell, Louisville; treasurer, R. C. Stoll, Lexington. The Executive Committee is as follows: L. C. Willis, Shelbyville; John E. Dubose, Bowling Green; D. L. Thornton, Versailles; C. W. Metcalfe, Pineville; John T. Bashaw, Louisville.

A resolution, offered by request, with reference to medical experts and the part they should play in court trials, was unanimously adopted. Dr. J. N. McCormack, secretary of the State Board of Health, was present and by request made a talk on the subject. The following committee was appointed by the president under these resolutions: D. L. Thornton, Versailles; S. W. Tracey, Covington; C. U. McElroy, Bowling Green.

The visitors enjoyed an elaborate banquet to-night at Neal's Hall, tendered them by the local association. They will go on a boat ride to-morrow down Barren river.

DOWN MISSISSIPPI IN FRAIL CANOE

TWO CUMBERLAND RIVERMEN START ON LONG TRIP.

WILL PADDLE FROM NASHVILLE TO NEW ORLEANS.

DISTANCE IS 1,000 MILES.

Nashville, Tenn., July 12.—[Special.,—Joe Loftin and Henry Tanksley, two well-known Cumberland river men, pulled away from this port to-day on the longest river journey ever accomplished by canoe in the United States. Their destination is New Orleans, a distance of 1,000 miles, and the trip will consume several weeks.

The adventurers are traveling with a flotilla of three canoes in train fashion, the rear ones carrying the necessary paraphernalia and provisions. By means of four poles fastened to the lead canoe's bottoms the travelers will be protected from bad weather, as canvass can be raised in tent style on a moment's notice. Heavy tarpaulins will protect a small cooking stove and utensils.

The ultimate destination of the men is Central America. Stops will be made at Paducah, Cairo, Memphis and Vicksburg to replenish supplies.

Two trips down the Mississippi from St. Louis to New Orleans by gasoline launch are on record, but this is the first time canoeists have ever attempted the dangers of the treacherous father of waters in their frail crafts. The voyagers, however, are confident of withstanding the heavy waves of the big Mississippi steamers, as they built their boats with their probable experiences on the Mississippi especially in mind.

WANTS ABNER TRIED FIRST

Commonwealth Hopes To Delay Hargis Case.

Judge Moody Insists On Beginning Monday.

Orders Attachment For Dilatory Witnesses.

SANDY HOOK WIRE DOWN.

Sandy Hook, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—The Sheriffs of Perry and Breathitt counties, where live the majority of the witnesses in the Hargis trial, for complicity in the assassination of Dr. Cox, to-day made returns upon subpoenas sent them by the Elliott county authorities. Out of a possible 100 witnesses about twenty acknowledged service.

This apparent dilatoriness did not agree with the usual composure of Special Judge W. A. Moody and he instructed that attachments be issued forthwith as a compulsory procedure. He is determined that the trial shall begin Monday and will brook no delay. If any of the witnesses for the State or the defense are sick and unable to attend court a physician's certificate to this end must accompany the affidavit of the witness.

* * *

To Try Abner First.

It is probable that John Abner will be tried first, although there is no guarantee of this. Should this be done and his case disposed of it will furnish the opportunity for a postponement of the arraignment of Hargis, a circumstance that is greatly desired by the representatives of the Commonwealth. The village is free of feudal leaders today.

Judge Hargis and Elbert Hargis returned to their homes in Jackson Tuesday night and Senator Hargis is visiting "Uncle Harve" Weddington at the latter's home in the county. Police Judge Thomas Cardwell still remains as does John Abner, while John Smith is also visiting a friend in the brush.

William Young, Hargis' legal pilot, went to Morehead to-day and will return Sunday night, so the situation in Sandy Hook to-day can be best termed quiescent.

* * *

Only Wire Down.

Owing to the repeated damage recent storms have wrought upon the wire that connects Sandy Hook with a world that does things, it has been impossible to get news out of here. Wednesday's proceedings required less time than their telling. Before leaving for Grayson, his home, Commonwealth's Attorney Waugh filed two orders and a petition for a change of venue with Special Judge Moody. But one of the orders was in any sense important, and that concerned the necessity of the State to pay the out-of-State witnesses their actual expenses in addition to their regular daily fees.

The petition for a change of venue was not devoid of pepper. In a graphic way Mr. Byrd, striking through the hand of Mr. Waugh, pictured the manifold disadvantages of Sandy Hook as a place of trial. He dwelt upon all physical and topographical short-comings of this hamlet in this respect and held up the hotel facilities as a dread spectre that would make any enthusiastic witness run up an alley.

* * *

Isolation of Sandy Hook.

The isolation of the community, the great distances that witnesses must traverse to get here, the inadequate police protection, the hardship that must be encountered by the women witnesses, some of whom are aged, were played upon the screen with pitiless accuracy. Several witnesses arrived from Breathitt county this afternoon. The big influx is expected Sunday.

John and Govan Smith to-day received word that their brother, Curt, had been shot dead in Jackson.

Rough Trip For Woman.

Lexington, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—A summons from the court at Sandy Hook was served to-day on Miss Mary A. Chiles, official stenographer of the Fayette Circuit Court, requiring her to appear at Sandy Hook next Monday with the stenographic notes of James Hargis' trial here for the murder of James Cockrill. The notes, it is supposed, are to be used in the trial of Hargis for the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox, which will begin at Sandy Hook next Monday. Miss Chiles is a delicate woman and the journey of thirty miles over mountain roads to Sandy Hook will be a terrible ordeal for her, and she will not go if she can possibly avoid it. If the Fayette Circuit Court should be in session next Monday, as now seems probable, Miss Chiles will have a good excuse for evading the summons to Sandy Hook.

DISEASES RAGE IN CALLOWAY.

Many Persons Ill of Typhoid Fever or Flux.

Paducah, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Calloway county is in the grasp of an epidemic of flux and typhoid fever, and a number of deaths from those two diseases have occurred recently, while many prominent people are in a critical condition. Vernon Hodge, a farmer, residing one mile east of Murray, died last night of typhoid fever, and Mrs. Sylvester Jones, of Dycusburg, succumbed yesterday afternoon. J. Ed Owen, president of the Fermers' and Merchants' Bank, is very low of the same disease, and grave fears are expressed for Will Alderson, county jailer. Many children are suffering from the two diseases.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY TO HARRODSBURG WOMAN.

Mrs. Wood Known As Authoress—Cousin of Ex-President Cleveland.

Harrodsburg, Ky., July 12.—[Special.] Mrs. Emma Cleveland Wood died suddenly at her home in this city to-day, aged seventy-nine. She was the mother of Henry Cleveland, the poet and author, of Harrodsburg. Mrs. Wood herself had done much literary work, both prose and poetry. She was a sister of the late Henry W. Wood, of Louisville, and a cousin of ex-President Grover Cleveland.

SCHOOL PER CAPITA IS THE BIGGEST EVER

RECORD BASIS FOR PAYING TEACHERS OF STATE.

AMOUNT IS $3.40 AS AGAINST $2.35 IN 1896—1900.

EIGHT YEARS' STEADY GROWTH

Frankfort, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—The per capita for the school year 1907 of the common schools of Kentucky will be $3.40, an increase of ten cents over last year, and a record basis for paying the teachers of the State.

This per capita was declared to-day by State Superintendent J. H. Fuqua on an estimate furnished him by State Auditor Hager that the school revenues for the coming year will approximate $2,594,600. The per capita has grown steadily during the last eight years of administration of the public affairs of the State. In 1896-1900 the average was $2.35. For the first four years of the Democratic Administration it averaged $2.46¾, and for the last four years it averaged $3.22½.

The communication of Judge Hager to Supt. Fuqua, giving the estimate of revenues to go to the school fund during the coming fiscal year is as follows:

July 12, 1907.—Hon. J. H. Fuqua, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Frankfort, Ky.—Dear Sir: I have the honor to submit herewith an estimate of the resources of the school fund for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908:

Interest on bonds	$126,755.80
Dividends on bank stock	6,384.00
Licenses taxes	250,000.00
Railroad taxes	227,000.00
State banks	60,000.00
Miscellaneous corporations	50,000.00
Distilled spirits	25,000.00
Fines and forfeitures	20,000.00
Miscellaneous receipts	3,700.00
Tax on rectifiers	10,000.00
National banks	26,500.00
Insurance department	7,000.00
Sheriffs' revenue	1,650,000.00
Total	$2,474,339.80
Balance to credit school fund	120,260.27

Auditor of Public Accounts.

ALMOST RIOT OVER LIGHTNING'S WORK

WORKINGMAN THINKS COMRADE HIT HIM WHEN FLOORED BY BOLT.

Paducah, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Lightning played a prank at the Paducah dry docks this afternoon that almost caused a riot beside stunning four men. Dick Thompson, foreman; Louis Moss, Will Jordan and Tom Bass were working together. Jordon called to Moss to help him and as he turned the bolt of lightning struck the dry docks. Moss, who was working with a brace and bit, was floored by what he thought was a blow in the back. He sprang to his feet to hurl a hammer at Jordon when he saw the latter sprawling unconscious over a beam he had been sawing. Thomason and Bass were lying in a heap, and other workmen, who noticed the confusion, rushed over to seize Moss, who to all appearances had laid out the whole crew with a hammer. It required several minutes to solve the puzzle.

KING OF SIAM TO VISIT AMERICA.

New York, July 12.—The Charge d'Affaires of the Siamese legation at Washington, Phra Ratanayapti, who arrived to-day from London, where he went to pay his respects to the King of Siam, said to-day that it is likely that the King will visit the United States next year.

WAR CLOUD IS BUT A SHADOW

President Roosevelt And Admiral Yamomoto Meet.

Discuss Talk of War Between Two Countries.

Believe That Friendship Is Not Disturbed.

MIKADO'S GIFT TO ROOSEVELT.

Oyster Bay, July 12.—An official statement was issued by President Roosevelt to-day, through Secretary Loeb, after the departure of Admiral Yamamoto and Ambassador Aoki, as follows:

"The President had a long interview with Admiral Baron Yamamoto, and it was most satisfactory in every way. It simply confirms what had already been made clear by Ambassador Aoki, the thoroughly good understanding between the two Governments and the fundamental friendliness between the two nations.

New York, July 12.—Admiral Baron Yamomoto, one of Japan's naval experts, to-day met for the first time President Roosevelt, the man who, more than any other, was responsible for the conclusion of peace between Japan and Russia, after a prolonged war, during which time Admiral Yamomoto was Japan's Minister of Marine.

In a private conversation the representatives of the two countries discussed the cloud which has been hovering over the long-lasting friendship between Japan and America, and each expressed the opinion that it was merely a passing shadow, and one which could in no way reach a climax that would shake the confidence each country has had in the other since the day Commodore Perry induced the Tokogawa Shogun to open the Island Empire to communication with the outside world.

Discussed the Stories.

Although Admiral Yamomoto is in America purely in a personal capacity, and in no way as a representative of his Government, President Roosevelt made special arrangements to-day to entertain him and the party of naval officers who accompanied him, and both before and after the luncheon, at the President's summer home at Oyster Bay, took occasion to discuss in a purely informal manner the sensational stories which have for some time been printed in the papers of both countries.

Admiral Yamomoto, in these conversations, repeated the statements which he has made on several occasions since he arrived in New York, that any feeling that there might be in Japan because of occurrences on the Pacific coast was directed solely against the people of that section of the country, and that there was no possible chance of this feeling reaching a point where trouble between the Governments would be possible.

Expressed Delight.

After the visit to Oyster Bay Admiral Yamomoto and the members of his suite expressed great delight at having had the opportunity of meeting the President of the United States in such an informal manner, and said that they were convinced that to-day's meeting had done much to brush away any possibility of a misunderstanding between the two countries.

As an incident of two-day's meeting, Capt. Kaao, who is Admiral Yamomoto's aide, presented to President Roosevelt a personal gift from the Emperor of Japan. The gift consisted of a small box of the imperial Japanese red lacquer, the making of which is a lost art, even in Japan.

The party, accompanied by Ambassador Aoki, left New York in a special car shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. On arrival at Oyster Bay the party was taken at once to Sagamore Hill in an automobile, luncheon being served at 1 o'clock. To emphasize the informality of the affair, several other guests were present, including Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, Representative Herbert Parsons, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Morgan, also of New York.

* * *

Going To Philadelphia.

Immediately following the luncheon, Admiral Yamomoto and his suite returned to New York.

To-morrow morning Admiral Yamomoto and his party will leave for Philadelphia, where they will inspect the Cramps' shipbuilding yards and the Camden yards, returning to New York in the evening, when they will attend the theater.

Sunday the party will lunch with Gen. Grant at Governor's Island, and spend the rest of the day in sightseeing. Monday will be spent in Boston, and Monday night the Admiral and his suite will leave Montreal en route for Seattle, from which port they will sail for Japan July 23.

NO PUNISHMENT

Can Be Inflicted On the Man Said To Have Been Taking Pictures.

Washington, July 12.—With respect to the reported arrest of a Japanese at Fort Rosecrans, Cal., charged with making drawings of the defenses, in the opinion of the officials here, Maj. Gatchell, under whose authority the arrest was made, cannot, in the absence of any statute, inflict any punishment on the offending Japanese.

He would have been justified in putting him off the reservation; if the offender persisted, then he might destroy the drawings he was making, or even smash a camera if one were used.

Late in the day Mr. Miyaoka, of the Japanese Embassy, called on Acting Secretary Adee to ascertain whether the Government had received any notice of the reported arrest of the Japanese. He was told that neither the State nor the War Department had been so advised.

JAPAN NOT UNEASY.

Both Governments Conducting Negotiations In Perfect Accord.

Tokio, July 12.—Viscount Hayashi, the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs, made the following statement in an interview to-day:

"The Governments of Washington and Tokio are conducting negotiations in perfect accord. Japan is availing herself of America's good will and no hitch whatever is apprehended. Until the new treaty comes up for discussion Japan has no right to agitate against restriction of the number of her emigrants.

"Her demands for the present consist simpdy that Japanese be protected against provocation, but for the rest the American judicial authorities must be left to deal with the siuation.

"My Government does not look with suspicion upon the dispatch of an American fleet to the Pacific. Since America is moving this fleet within her territorial waters, Japan can realize no objection."

Ambassador Wright's Farewell.

Tokio, July 12.—Luke E. Wright, the American Ambassador, was received in farewell audience to-day by the Emperor. Afterward the Ambassador, Mrs. Wright and their daughter lunched with the Emperor and Empress at the palace. Ambassador Wright's departure is generally regretted here.

FOUR MEET DEATH ABOVE MILL DAM

FISHING PARTY CAPSIZES SMAL LROWBOAT.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN DROWN IN SIGHT OF CROWD.

Springfield, Ky., July 12.—Gloom has been cast over this city by the sad news just received from the fishing camp on Beech Fork Creek, twelve miles west of here, near Maud, that a boat capsized this morning, drowning Jacob Pardue, Miss Nellie Noe, Miss Sidney Comstock and a colored boy, Ed Brown.

The fishing party left here yesterday morning, consisting of about six families, with twenty or more in the party, and camped just above the little village of Maud. About 9 o'clock this morning, while rowing above the mill dam at Maud, one of the girls lost her balance and fell into the water, capsizing the boat and throwing the occupants into the water. All of them were drowned.

The creek at this point is from fifteen to twenty feet deep and about 500 feet wide. The accident occurred in sight of the camp and was witnessed by the other members of the party, who were on the bank, but powerless to render assistance.

Among the witnesses of the accident were Mrs. Pardue and also Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. Noe, the mother of the girls. Both of the girls were members of the Springfield High School and were very popular. They were cousins and were nieces of Pardue. The body of Miss Comstock has been recovered and hundreds of men are gathered on the banks attempting to rescue the other bodies, none of which had been recovered at noon to-day.

Relatives In Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Two of the young women who were drowned at Springfield to-day were nieces of Prof. J. T. Noe, who si a member of the narmal department faculty at State College. Miss Nellie Noe is a daughter of his brother, Charles W. Noe, and Miss Comstock is a daughter of his sister, Mrs. Eliza Comstock. Prof. Noe was notified by telegraph of the tragedy and left for Springfield tonight.

TRAIN DELAYED FOR FAT WOMAN TO DRESS

HEART-RENDING RIP IN HER GARMENT PUTS MEN TO FLIGHT.

Paducah, July 12.—(Special.]—"Delayed five minutes for a woman to dress," was the unusual report filed at the office of Supt. W. J. Hills, of the N., C. & St. L., to-day, in explanation of the lateness of a passenger train from the south due in Paducah at 1 p. m. According to the verbal statement of the conductor a woman of ample proportions boarded the train at eBnton and walked as far forward in the coach as she could get. At Oak Station she traversed the aisles toward the rear platform, but when in the middle of the last car her dress caught on a seat. There was a rip, a flash of white, and then the fat lady collapsed in the aisle. She had torn off necessary habiliments. The women in the car formed a protecting circle around her until the men had adjourned. Her station having been reached the train had to be held while she dressed herself, repaired the damage with pins and got off.

LANDRUM DISPOSES OF PLANTERS' HOTEL STOCK.

Sold To St. Louis Men Who Control Another Hostelry.

St. Louis, July 12.—[Special.]—The Planters Hotel changed hands to-day when the majority stockholding of Thomas J. Landrum, of Kentucky, and member of Gov. Folk's staff, was sold to Albert B. Gaines and Lyman T. Hay, who controls the Hotel Jefferson. Mr. Hay will be resident manager of both hotels. The Planters Hotel Company is incorporated for $250,000, there are 2,500 shares of stock and Mr. Landrum, who owned 1,530 shares was in control.

HEYWOOD KEEPS SELF-CONTROL

Under Borah's Sharp Fire of Cross-examination.

Air Tingles With Possibilities At All Times.

Famous Trial Will Close Within Two Weeks.

TESTIMONY NEARLY ALL IN.

Boise, Idaho, July 12.—William D. Haywood, the defendant charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, left the witness chair this afternoon. He had been under examination six hours, the time being equally divided between his own counsel and Senator Borah, who conducted the cross-examination.

Haywood's testimony in his own behalf practically closes the side for the defense. One witness will be called to-morrow morning and his examination will take up about fifteen minutes. Counsel for the defense will then announce their close and the State will begin the rebuttal unless notices to strike out certain parts of the evidence should be brought forward by the defense. Counsel for the State announced their willingness to abide by the instructions of the court to the jury and will not occupy the time with the arguments on motions to strike.

May End In Two Weeks.

There is a prospect now that the case may be brought to a conclusion within two weeks. The State expects to close the rebuttal by Wednesday or Thursday next. The defense expresses the opinion that the sur-rebuttal will be in by Saturday. Under these circumstances the case will be given to the jury by the end of the last week of this month.

The cross-examination of Haywood brought out an unusually large attendance. When Clarence Darrow, Haywood's counsel, closed the direct examination of his client and quietly remarked: "You may cross-examine," the prisoner-witness turned in his chair and faced Mr. Borah, his face pale and jaws firmly set. There was a stir in the court room and then an absolute silence. The first questions and answers came in such subdued tones that Mr. Richardson, of Haywood's counsel, asked the witness to speak out. Borah's cross-examination, always rapid fire, was more than usually quick to-day, but from first to last Haywood preserved complete self-possession and control.

Replies Come Quickly.

At times his replies came as quickly as the questions were flung at him. Again he would hesitate and speak slowly with a marked emphasis. His voice, low and musical, was seldom radical, except once or twice when a flat denial was given. Borah's manner was courteous throughout, but now and then a tinge of sarcasm appeared as he insisted on a direct answer and Haywood appeared reluctant. Haywood, in turn, was as courteous as the cross-examiner. Invariably he addressed Borah as "Senator" and repeatedly asked permission to explain when he thought there might be some misunderstanding.

Notwithstanding this subdued air of consideration, of quiet speech and courteous bearing there was not a moment throughout the three hours of cross-examination that the atmosphere did not tingle with possibilities. Once when Senator Borah pressed Haywood as to his sentiment toward former Gov. Steunenberg, Haywood said quietly and with a smile: "I felt no different toward Steunenberg, Senator, than I do toward you or any of those people."

Senator Borah looked up quickly, but he did not smile. He said very quietly: "Yes, I have been given to understand something of that sort," and did not pursue the subject.

Witness Knew Simpkins.

Much of Haywood's testimony to-day was a repetition in detail of what Moyer said yesterday. Haywood, however, made no effort to deny his knowledge of Orchard and his affairs or his connection with Simpkins. He was pressed closely as to the passage of telegrams relating to the engagement of counsel to defend Orchard and in this connection admitted that he knew Simpkins had retained counsel, but that here was no record of any report from Simpkins to the officials of the Western Federation. Like Moyer, Haywood had never heard Orchard make threats against Steunenberg, though he had heard of Orchard's claim that he had lost his interest in the Hercules mine because of the troubles in the Coeur D'Alenes. Haywood explained the draft sent to Simpkins for $100 on December 21, 1905, on the ground that Simpkins had left the money with him for safe-keeping. He had acknowledgment of the receipt of the money and had not heard from Simpkins since that time. Haywood said he never told Pettibone that he had sent any money to Simpkins.

Knew of No Plot.

Haywood declared he knew absolutely nothing of the plot against Gov. Steunenberg.

"I don't know that I had thought of him after I left the State of Idaho."

"Had Gov. Steunenberg ever tried to get back into politics?"

"No, sir."

"Had he showed any disposition to become active in mining matters?"

"No, sir."

The first Haywood heard of the assassination was in the papers, which claimed that the crime was a culmination of the troubles in the Coeur d'Alenes. The papers also represented that a union card had been found in the effects of Thomas Hogan, who had been arrested on suspicion.

At miners' headquarters there was considerable question as to who Hogan was, the consensus of opinion being that it was Orchard, who had used that name in leaving Cripple Creek to seek employment elsewhere.

The first definite information came in the cipher telegram from Simpkins, which was translated at first: "Can I get counsel for Hogan," but which afterward was corrected to read "Cannot get counsel for Hogan."

Explains Simpkins' Draft.

Haywood's explanation of sending the $100 draft to Jack Simpkins on December 21, 1903, was as follows:

"Simpkins came to Denver early in December to attend a meeting of the executive board. He drew $231.50 per diem and traveling expenses while there. Cashing a check for this, he gave me $100 and asked to have it forwarded to Spokane some time before Christmas. Simpkins said he was going on a trip and did not want to take all the money with him."

Haywood said he could not remember whether he bought the draft and mailed it or whether one of the Federation stenographers attended to the matter.

Witness said he had not seen Simpkins since the Executive Board matter. When the matter of employing counsel for Orchard and to look after the interests of the organization first came up, Haywood said he and Moyer consulted with General Counsel Murphy, who advised going very slowly in the matter.

After considering the subject for a day or so, Murphy advised the employment of Mr. Nugent. The defense offered in evidence a letter written by General Counsel Murphy to Attorney Nugent, but it was ruled out by Judge Wood on the ground of immateriality. An exception was noted.

Haywood went into the details of the final employment of Attorney Fred Miller, of Spokane, to defend Orchard. At this time Attorney Crump, who had represented the Mine Owners' Association of Colorado, in fights against the Western Federation of miners, had been called into the case by the other side.

"What was the first you knew of any intention to arrest you in connection with the murder?"

"When I was arrested."

The witness then related the story of his arrest, the denial of a right to consult counsel and the trip to Boise on a special train in charge of Gen. Bulkeley Wells, a member of the Mine Owners' Association. When first brought to Boise, the prisoners were taken to the State penitentiary, being later removed to the county jail at Caldwell.

* * *

Indicted For Riot.

Haywood said he was indicted for inciting to riot at Victor following the Independence depot explosion. He was in Denver at the time. The case never came to trial, a nolle prosse being entered by District Attorney Hamlin, who prior to his election had been secretary of the Mine Owners' Association.

This ended the direct examination, and Senator Borah began to cross-question the prisoner-witness. He dwelt upon the interest the miners at Silver City, Idaho, took in the Coeur D'Alene troubles. Haywood said a committee was sent from Silver City to Northern Idaho at the time.

"The Western Federation of Miners came to think of Gov. Steunenberg as a pronounced opponent of organized labor?"

"I believe so. Yes, sir."

"But prior to this trouble he was regarded as a friend?"

"I think so; he was at one time an honorary member of a local union."

"The union afterward regarded him as a friend of capital and swayed by capitalists, and I suppose you joined in this view?"

"Yes, sir, as an officer I did."

"Did the Miners' Magazine reflect your views as well as those of the organization?"

"Sometimes."

"It reflected your views as to the Coeur D'Alenes?"

"In some instances it did. I did not approve of the bull pen, of the permit system, of the indignities upon the men, but as to Gov. Steunenberg I did not regard him in any other light than I do you, Senator, or Bartlett Sinclair or any others who were concerned."

"I have understood that," replied Senator Borah, who then questioned the witness as to the article which appeared in the Miners' Magazine at the time Gov. Steunenberg left the office and entitled "The Passing of Steunenberg."

* * *

Here Lies Hireling.

The article said that when the Steunenberg epitaph should come to be written it would read: "Here lies a hireling and a traitor."

"Did that article reflect your views and those of the Federation?"

"As to the Governor's official acts it did," replied Haywood, who added that the article was directed against Steunenberg as a State official and not as a man. "There were many others who felt the same way about Gov. Steunenberg," the witness went on. "The Lieutenant Governor who served under Steunenberg wrote an article which was much stronger than this."

The witness was taken through a long line of questioning as to Jack Simpkins, developing the fact that whereas Simpkins disappeared more than a year ago, he is still continued a member of the Executive Board of the Federation. When in Denver in December, 1905, Simpkins said nothing of having seen Orchard in Caldwell, Idaho.

Senator Borah asked Haywood about the posting of certain notices in the Cripple Creek district in 1901. One of these read:

"Here take notice that on and after September 15, 1901, anyone working in the mines, mills and power plant of the Cripple Creek district who is unable to produce a card of membership in the Western Federation of Miners will be regarded as an enemy to himself and to the community at large and will be treated as such."

Haywood said in explanation of this that there was a movement on foot to reduce wages throughout the district. A second notice called the attention of the miners to the fact that the fifteenth of September was near at hand; that the time of grace had about expired and that all who were not for the union must be against it. There could be no middle ground.

Miners' Permit System.

"So," said Senator Borah, "the Western Federation of Miners had a permit system of its own and no one could work where it was in control unless he had a union card?"

"No, sir; a man could go to work anywhere without a card, but we expected him to join the union if he wanted any of the benefits which accrue from membership in it."

After recess Senator Borah questioned Haywood as to his various meetings with Orchard. The witness said he knew absolutely nothing about Orchard's whereabouts from the time of the Independence depot explosion, June 6, 1904, until he came to headquarters in Denver in January, 1905.

Haywood could not recall ever having met Orchard in company with Mrs. Lottie Day at the Belmont rooming house in Denver, and declared positively that he did not at this time or any time enter Harry Orchard's room. Mrs. Day, a witness for the defense, told on cross-examination of the incident which Haywood denied to-day.

Orchard's Disappearance.

Within a few days of the Independence depot explosion, Haywood said the papers began to connect Harry Orchard's name with the affair. They commented upon the fact that he had left Cripple Creek and gone to Wyoming.

"The papers seemed to know where he had gone," said the witness.

"Did you?" asked Senator Borah.

"No, sir."

"Did you ever meet Mrs. Harry Orchard?"

"Yes, sir; it must have been at headquarters."

"How many times was she there?"

"I can't say."

"In your letter to Mrs. Orchard you said that the last information you got as to Orchard's whereabouts was from Alaska?"

"Yes, sir."

"And the only information you had was his statement that he thought of going to Alaska?"

"Yes, sir."

"And your reason for saying what you did was because you did not want to convey to her the real facts that were in your possession?"

"Yes, sir, I think that was it."

"Did you ever talk to Harry Orchard in any way about Gov. Steunenberg?"

"I don't think I ever did."

"You had no knowledge of any personal enmity Orchard may have had toward Gov. Steunenberg?"

"No, sir."

* * *

No Investigation of Crime.

Before employing an attorney to defend Orchard, Haywood said the organization did nothing to discover what Orchard had been doing prior to the murder of Gov. Steunenberg. Neither was there any investigation to determine the man's guilt or innocence. The Federation officials went over the transcript of the evidence at the preliminary hearing before finally engaging Attorney Fred Miller and paying him $1,500. Orchard made no request to be furnished an attorney.

"The second telegram you sent to Idaho as to the employment of counsel saying the Federation defended no man guilty of crime, but in the past had found that all of its accused members were innocent and would have been the victims of a conspiracy unless the Federation would have come to their assistance; was that telegram given out to the Associated Press at the time it was sent?"

"It was given to the press; yes, sir."

"When did the Federation cease to defend Harry Orchard?"

"I can't say exactly as to that, Senator, but I think it was when Attorney Miller came here to Boise and was told that Orchard had no further use for his services. Mr. Miller made no report to me about that."

* * *

Denies Simpkins' Story.

"Did you know that Orchard was in the Coeur D'Alenes with Jack Simpkins in the fall of 1905?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever discuss with George A. Pettibone the whereabouts of Orchard?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever tell Pettibone you had sent Simpkins a draft for $100?"

"No, sir."

"But Simpkins did leave $100 with you and you sent him a Federation draft on December 21, 1905?"

"Not a Federation draft; no, sir. You have the draft."

"It is signed by you as Secretary-Treasurer."

"Yes, sir."

This ended the cross-examination. On redirect examination Haywood said he had an impression that he had heard Orchard speak of having once owned an interest in the Hercules. "But I have heard so many tales of woe since I have been secretary of the Federation I cannot say positively about Orchard," he added. In all of his acts in connection with the defense of Orchard the witness said he first consulted with General Counsel Murphy.

Senator Borah on recross-examination asked: "Did Attorney Miller, when he came to Denver and said he had been sent by Simpkins to defend Orchard, explain to you why Simpkins sent a telegram on January 4, saying he could not get a lawyer when, as a matter of fact, Miller had left for Caldwell on January 3?"

"No, sir."

Haywood said he had no way of knowing whether Simpkins knew that Miller had really gone.

This completed Haywood's testimony and court adjourned until to-morrow morning.

PRESSURE REDUCED FOR COMPLETION OF REPAIRS.

Break In Main At Dupuy and Kentucky Streets Made Water Scarce For a While.

The water pressure in all the mains in the city was reduced from 6 o'clock last evening until 9 o'clock, when the flood gates at the pumping stations were again opened and a liberal supply of water placed on tap. The cause of the decreased pressure as explained by Chief Engineer Charles Hermany was that it was made necessary so as to enable his men to repair the leak in the forty-eight-inch main at Dupuy and Kentucky streets.

This was the second break that had occurred at this corner since the new filter plant was put into operation at Crescent Hill several weeks ago. The first was a little over two weeks ago and water was shut off in all the mains east of Ninth street and south of Kentucky street for thirty-six hours. Not alone were the residents of that section greatly inconvenienced by the drought in their water pipes, but the territory was greatly endangered from fire. Fortunately not one alarm was turned in during the time the water was shut off.

When the second break occurred at the same place Mr. Hermany decided that it would be unwise to shut off all the water in any one part of the city and devised a plan of repairing the damage while the pressure was turned on. Although it took longer to get the main in shape again while the water was flowing through it, the last break occurring Tuesday, the work was successfully completed. The final stages of the operation required that the pressure be reduced somewhat. After three hours the job was finished and the full pressure turned on again.

BOYS ARRESTED

Charged With Bold Robbery At Lexington.

THREE OF THEM CLAIM TO BE FROM LOUISVILLE.

CONFESSION SAID TO HAVE BEEN MADE BY ONE.

LEADERS OF W. C. T. U. MEET.

Lexington, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Four boys, three of whom gave their homes as Louisville, were arrested this afternoon on the charge of having broken into the junk shop of August Schneider, on West Main street, and stealing two revolvers and other small articles. The boys gave their names and ages as Gus Jones, sixteen years, of Louisville; Mike Ellis, seventeen, of Louisville; Bat Klein, Louisville, and George Wilson, seventeen, of St. Louis.

"Gus Jones" admitted to-night that his name was Hugh Hutchins and that his father, James Hutchins, was a carpenter whose home is at 1001 East Mary street, Louisville, and who is now working at West Point. The boy said he had been working for the city on the dog wagon and selling papers. He said the other boys all lived in Louisville and had been working in restaurants. He identified the other three in jail here as: Mike Ellis, whose home in on Market street; B. Guenther, who lives on Chestnut, and Bat Klein, who lives in the Highlands opposite the workhouse.

After a vigorous "sweating" one of the four confessed to the robbery, and the others are also expected to weaken. The robbery was one of the boldest ever committed in this city. Schneider, whose residence is over his store, was awakened by the crash of glass about 4 o'clock this morning, and running down stairs got a glipse of four boys as they ran down the street. As he had, in his hurry, failed to put on his shoes, he was not able to pursue the fugitives far.

About 5 o'clock Patrolman Clohesey saw four boys walking down the L. and N. track, but as he approached they took to their heels and escaped.

Offers To Sell Revolver.

About an hour afterward a boy who later proved to be Jones, approached Brack Ellis, a city employe, and offered to sell a Colt's revolver. Ellis, suspecting something wrong, seized the boy and held him until a policeman arrived. The pistol was identified as one of those stolen from Schneider. Jones said he had bought the pistol from a man he did not know for fifty cents. He admitted that his home was in Louisville, and that he had come to Lexington Thursday.

This afternoon the detectives caught two of the others near Pepper's distillery, just beyond the city limits, on the L. and N. railroad track, leading to Louisville. Late this evening Klein was arrested on the street and locked up. The boys held here are tough-looking customers, and the Louisville police have been asked to look up their records. Ellis claims to be 16 years old, but he weighs about 125 pounds. The police to-night received information that two other members of what is believed to be a band of boy burglars had been arrested at Versailles. Lucidine admitted to-night that the two boys caught in Versailles were also with them last night and said that one of them is named Alfred Snyder, but that he does not know the other's name.

Flow of Gas Steady.

The flow of gas which was struck a few days ago on the farm of C. E. Downing, near this city, has continued so steadily that Mr. Downing is making arrangements to pipe it into his house to use for domestic purposes. Prof. J. B. Hoeing, an oil and gas expert, is making an examination of the rock strata in the vicinity, to determine whether gas in sufficient quantity to be of commercial value can probably be found.

W. C. T. U. Officers Meet.

A meeting of the officers of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Kentucky was held at the home of Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, near this city, last evening. The object was to decide details in connection with the next State convention of the W. C. T. U., which will be held at Ashland, October 3-7, inclusive. The programme will be announced later. Those in attendance at the meeting were Mesdames Frances E. Beauchamp, president, Lexington; Mary W. Bender, vice president, Louisville; May E. Baeth, corresponding secretary, Louisville; Mittie J. Garrett, recording secretary, Ashland; Norah B. Taylor, treasurer, Lexington.

HEADQUARTERS HERE

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE CO. MAY LEAVE HOPKINSVILLE.

Question To Come Up For Decision At Meeting of Directors On August 6—Capital Increase.

It is probable that the legal headquarters of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company will be removed from Hopkinsville, where they have been since the organization of the company, to Louisville, where the legal array of the corporation will be ensconced in the company's building with the district manager and superintendent and where the company directors will hold their meetings.

A meeting of the board of directors of the company has been called and the question of changing headquarters will be brought before the meeting and put to vote. The meeting will take place on Tuesday, August 6, at Hopkinsville.

The question of increasing the capital stock of the corporation from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 will also come up at the same meeting.

The rumored establishment of night rates by the company has been confirmed by local representatives of the company, who say that word has not yet reached them to the effect that a flat rate will be charged for service both day and night.

DROWNING DID NOT MAR CELEBRATION.

[Lansford (Pa.) Dispatch to Philadelphia North American.]

It was apparently with a light heart that John Metro left his boarding-house this morning, his wife having given birth to twins, and it was planned to have rejoicing over the family increase, combined with the wedding celebration of his sister-in-law.

About 4 o'clock this morning boys discovered Metro's body in the No. 5 reservoir. The remains were taken to his home, where the celebration was in fine progress. The sad ending of the boarding boss was not allowed to interfere with the pleasure of the guests, who had assembled to dispose of twenty-four kegs of beer.

URGES REFORM

In Kentucky's "Antiquated" Criminal System.

PRESIDENT OF BAR ASSOCIATION LIFTS HIS VOICE.

TAX LAWS ALSO NEED AMENDMENT, HE DECLARES.

STRICTER BAR REQUIREMENTS

Bowling Green, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—A strong denunciation of Kentucky's criminal law system, as a result of which miscarriages of justice he declared are frequent, and pleas for reform in tax laws, a non-partisan judiciary and stricter requirements for admission to the bar, were salient features of the annual address of President S. D. Rouse, of Covington, to the State Bar Association, in session here.

In opening Mr. Rouse congratulated his audience upon the fact that their organization, formed six years ago at Louisville, has passed the experimental stage of its existence. Continuing, he said:

It may be a Utopian dream with me, perhaps not shared by any of you, but I hope to see the day in this good old State of ours when the selection of our judiciary may be removed so far from partisan politics that to mention the political affiliation of candidates for judicial honors will be considered in as bad taste as the mention of things political would now be considered in a meeting of this association.

No matter what may be our affiliation and our controversies, however partisan we are or may be, the most encouraging sign of the present and future of this association is the fact that by tacit consent no breath of politics has ever entered our doors.

The General Assembly has not been in session since we last met, so that there is no State legislation to review. The last revenue act passed at the session of 1906 seems to be no more satisfactory than the one in lieu of which it was adopted, and if the General Assembly was seeking to retard the growth and development of the State it seems to me that they hit on as effective a method as possible in the measure which was adopted. Notwithstanding the generally credited belief on the subject, nothing is more timid than capital, and it would seem that we as our law-makers wise they should invite investments from the outside rather than build a Chinese wall around our boundaries. No law has ever yet been conceived which will prevent the evasion of taxes; this being true, why cannot we have some revenue provision that will induce at least a portion of the 90 per cent. of personality that evades its part of the public burden to come out of the seclusion into which it has been driven by fear of confiscation, to pay its fair proportion of taxes, and thus increase our revenues, and to some extent, at least, lighten the burden resting upon realty.

Problems of the Present.

The rapidly changing conditions of the times furnish us fruitful subjects for reflection.

The ever-contending forces of labor and capital; the efforts of the Government to bridle the corporations which have been allowed unhindered through the years to attain titanic proportions in strength and to accumulate fabulous wealth; the radical enactments of the Federal Congress effecting the right of individual contract, and its entering upon the regulation of those matters which we have generally believed to belong to the States; the active policy of the Federal Executive in the enforcement of these radical measures, may in the near future not only effect the whole system of our practice as lawyers, but in addition thereto may demand of us as men and citizens the highest possible degree of patriotism.

Not only in the Legislatures of the various States, but in the National Congress as well demagogy parades in tawdry imitation of statesmanship.

It has ever been the province of our profession, with cool heads and calm courage, to face the assaults of popular clamor; the demand for such men as our profession has never failed to furnish is as great to-day as when constitution came from chaos.

This day calls for men and patriots. It must be for us as lawyers on whatever side of these modern day controversies our duty places us, to act ever with deliberate judgment and courage, never forgetting for one moment the great undying principles of right and fair dealing.

* * *

Legislation Desired.

There were several measures approved by and presented by your Committee on Law Reform at the last session of the Legislature which, for one reason or another, failed to be enacted into laws. These were:

First—An amendment to Section 606 of the Civil Code concerning the right of a husband or wife to testify for himself or herself in controversies between them concerning his or her property.

Second—An act providing for examination of applicants for notaries' commissions.

Third—An act amending the law of limitations as to record liens.

Fourth—An act providing for publishing all the decisions of the Court of Appeals.

Fifth—An act on the subject of admission to the bar.

This legislation has all been approved by us, and I assume that our Committee on Law Reform will present these matters at the next session of the Legislature.

We are especially interested in obtaining a satisfactory provision upon the subject of admissions to the bar. We have succeeded in a measure in amending the old law on this subject, but the present statute is not adequate; upon this subject we should insist upon what we have heretofore presented, and until we have a statute requiring the same proficiency exacted of applicants in those States whose statutes are the most rigid, we should not be satisfied. I am more than ever convinced that by far the greater number of evils found in our profession is unmistakably traceable to the lax methods in vogue of allowing anybody who desires it to get a license to practice law.

Uniformity In Laws.

It seems to me to be advisable to request the General Assembly to provide for a commission for the promotion of uniformity of legislation. Many States have authorized such commissions, and the conferences of these commissions so appointed will undoubtedly bring about beneficial results. It will probably be well to direct the Committee on Law Reform to draft and present the necessary measure looking to the appointment of this commission.

There are other matters which occur to me to be of the gravest importance, and concerning which, with your permission, I will make some suggestions.

The first of these is not only of importance to us as lawyers, but it is of grave concern to the people of the State. I refer to the condition of our criminal law and criminal procedure.

In this connection I can hardly refer you to a more powerful exposition of conditions than was presented by the Hon. John R. Allen in a most excellent paper read by him at the last meeting of this association.

I take it that no matter what may be our profession or calling, no matter what may be our particular line of practice, we are one and all interested as citizens in the well-being of the State; this being true, then it is time for us to awaken to the appalling condition of crime, the futile prosecution of offenders and the farcical execution of the law.

I venture to say that not one man in this audience personally knows of one case where the innocent man has been punished, and I will further venture to say that there is not one man in this audience who does not personally know of the ninety-nine guilty men who have escaped.

* * *

Maudlin Sympathy a Factor.

Maudlin sympathy has had much to do with this condition, but with this element of the situation, I have naught to do save to shame those men who will allow a blubbering penitence in the shadow of prison walls to overcome their sense of public duty. What we wish to reflect upon is the antiquated and cumbersome machinery of the law.

The technical and useless verbiage of indictments, the disqualification for jury service of men of intelligence, learning or position, the useless and senseless technicalities which as pitfalls for the unwary State's attorney or the Judge, hedge about each trial, the unintelligible jargon called instructions, the unreasonable rules by which the truth is suppressed and the untruth made to prevail, the tendency of the Court of Review to find some trifling technical error by reason of which they may reverse a plain, just and deserved conviction, to send a case back to the lower court, where the witnesses have become scattered or have died, and the officers of the law have been obstructed in various ways; at last, however, going through the same process, again all things seemingly working together to let some red-handed scoundrel, whose neck of a truth should have stretched hemp months before, or who should have been doing time in the State penitentiary, go entirely unwhipped of justice.

We never seem to learn that it is the certainty of punishment and not the severity that deters from crime. We as lawyers owe it to ourselves and to our State to do what within our power lies to correct this condition. The Governor of the Commonwealth in his last annual message called the attention of the Legislature to the woeful defects of our criminal procedure, and requested that body to take some steps toward a correction thereof. Nothing was done.

One Reform Suggested.

The Alabama State Bar Association, through its Committee on Correspondence, has issued a circular letter containing some appalling statistics, showing the increase of homicides in this country, the percentage of reversals in cases of conviction upon technical errors, together with some timely suggestions as to the correction of these conditions. With the communication is submitted the Canadian statute regulating the setting aside of convictions or granting new trials, together with a proposed amendment to the Federal judiciary act, both of which provide that no conviction shall be set aside or new trial granted because of technical errors, if the whole record discloses that the verdict was just. The request is also made that we take up and consider the matter in connection with the subject of criminal procedure.

We can do nothing by advocating separate amendments. What is needed is a commission to revise the whole scheme of criminal procedure, and it seems to me that our Committee on Law Reform should be directed to consider how best to bring about such revision, and then to urge it with all possible vigor. * * *

In Kentucky it is true that the prosecution of violators of law is such as to weaken the public respect for the courts, and where this condition exists there can be no more fruitful source of lawlessness. The condition does exist. Gentlemen, what do you intend to do about it?

SENSATIONAL EXPOSURES BY EX-CONGO OFFICER.

Brussels, July 12.—Maj. Lemair, who served eighteen years in the Congo, and who resigned when he was notified that he would be prosecuted for cruelty toward native soldiers, retaliated to-day by publishing a sensational exposure of the revolting conditions prevailing in the native army. He declares the soldiers are merely brigands who raid the populace, assault the women and burn villages. The Major adds that when he attempted to protect the natives by inflicting severe punishments on the troops his disciplinary measures were overruled by his superiors.

SIX PRISONERS MAKE DASH FOR LIBERTY.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 12.—Six prisoners, members of the Montgomery county chain gang, who were at work in the city, made an escape yesterday. The shackles had been removed from the men so that they might better do their work, and when rain came up the men, with the guard, went to a shed.

Six of the men made a dash for liberty, but three of them were captured soon afterwards, bloodhounds being put on their trail.

DETERMINATION AND CONFIDENCE

Marks Beginning of Convention Campaign.

Committee of One Hundred Selects Lieutenants.

Mayor Bingham Makes Some Significant Remarks.

GOING AFTER MONEY FIRST.

The campaign for bringing the next Democratic National Convention to Louisville was formally and forcefully inaugurated at the Board of Trade building yesterday afternoon at the first meeting of the Committee of One Hundred. Inspiring and instructive talks were made by George A. Newman, Jr., editor of the Louisville Herald; Mayor Robert W. Bingham, Congressman Swagar Sherley, A. Y. Ford, Charles A. Edwards, Secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee; Judge Thomas R. Gordon and Gen. John B. Castleman. A letter from Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, stated that he was detained from the meeting on account of the death of a relative. Henry Watterson, editor of the Courier-Journal, was also unable to attend the meeting.

After the exchange of pledges of cooperation all around and repeated assurances that there would be a mighty pull for the Democratic National Convention, Henry Watterson was unanimously chosen chairman of the Invitation Committee. E. H. Bacon was elected chairman of the Hotels and Accommodations Committee, and Gen. John B. Castleman, chairman of the Finance Committee. These committees will be filled out by the respective chairmen and the Executive Committee, of which Capt. John H. Leathers is chairman. Robert E. Hughes was selected as chairman of the Committee on Press and Publicity.

Money Question Emphasized.

The cold proposition of raising $75,000 was the keynote of every speech and every act of the meeting yesterday. About seventy-five of Louisville's leading citizens were in the Exchange Hall at 3:45 o'clock when Capt. John H. Leathers called the meeting to order. Capt. Leathers briefly stated the object of the meeting, which was to launch a campaign with the view of bringing the next Democratic National Convention to Louisville. He said he knew Louisville had the building for holding such an immense assembly and that he also had faith in Louisville's hotel accommodations. The raising of $75,000, which is to be presented in the shape of a certified check to the Democratic National Committee at its meeting next December as a guarantee of Louisville's good faith in asking for the convention, he said was the milk in the cocoanut.

George A. Newman, Jr., had an important engagement to fill and only spoke briefly. He said that whatever the committee did would receive his hearty personal support and also the support of his paper. He said he hoped all partisanism would be laid aside and that everybody would pull for the big convention.

* * *

Louisville a Model City.

Mayor Robert W. Bingham said that he believed Louisville could get the convention, for it, as well as the South, was entitled to it. Said he:

"I propose to give my personal and official support to the movement to bring the convention to Louisville. The movement should have the hearty cooperation of the community regardless of politics. When we get the convention and welcome the delegates we want to point to our greatness and say to them: 'Here is a city where the Police and Fire Departments are eliminated from politics; where their time is devoted to the protection of property and persons; a city where the law is enforced and the citizen is secured in the protection of his property; where citizens are guaranteed their rights by the enforcement of the law, where they can go safely and freely to the polls and cast their ballots and have them counted as cast.'"

A. Y. Ford said that it was agreed that Louisville should have the convention, but the main point was to take good care of it when it does come here. He dwelt at length on the fact that it must be demonstrated clearly to the National Committee that Louisville had adequate accommodations in the hotel line. He said that committees should go carefully over the ground and leave nothing unturned that would bring the city's offer up to any that might be presented to the Democratic National Committee.

Small Attendance This Time.

Charles A. Edwards, secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee, of Washington, said that he was passing through Louisville and remained over especially to attend the meeting. He said that he would do anything the committee desired him to do. He said Louisville ought to have the convention, if for no other reason that it was the home of Henry Watterson. He said he felt sure that Louisville had ample hotel accommodations. He said he could guarantee that the next National Convention would have 50,000 less in attendance than previous conventions, for the reason that there were no more free railroad passes to be handed out.

Congressman Swagar Sherley said that the going after the National Convention was nothing more or less than a cold-blooded business proposition. He said sentiment was not in it and that the convention could not be had by the mere asking. The National Committee would consider nothing less than a big certified check and the work now was to raise money.

* * *

Choosing of Committee Heads.

Henry Watterson was the only one placed in nomination for chairman of the Invitation Committee. E. H. Bacon was placed in nomination for chairman of the Hotels and Accommodations Committee. At first Mr. Bacon declined, but finally agreed to accept, provided he would be furnished with a secretary to take a lot of the heavy work from his shoulders, as he was now a very busy man with his railroad matters.

Gen. John B. Castleman, who was chosen chairman of the Finance Committee, said that he was always willing to do anything for his home city, but he felt that he must have the hearty co-operation of all the committees. He said that the task before the chairmen of the three committees was no small one.

It was then that E. H. Bacon suggested that a committee on Press and Publicity be created and a chairman selected at once. Robert E. Hughes, who was selected as chairman, said that he was busy and suggested that someone else be named, but he agreed to take the chairmanship for the time being. The committee adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

DEATH OF WILLIAM GARRITY DUE TO RECENT SUNSTROKE.

Returned From Walk One Afternoon, Became Ill and Was Stricken With Paralysis.

William Garrity, an aged and retired carpenter, sixty-four years old, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Michael Collins, 2015 Lytle street, early yesterday morning. The cause of Mr. Garrity's death was paralysis, resulting from a sunstroke he suffered ten days ago. He had been in failing health for some time. He returned from a walk one afternoon and was soon found to be suffering from sunstroke. He declined rapidly, paralysis setting in, and two days prior to his death he became unconscious.

Mr. Garrity lived in Louisville more than forty years, coming to this city from his native State, Pennsylvania, when still a young man. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Michael Collins, Mrs. Bridget Corrigan, of Sellersburg, Ind., and Mrs. M. O'Hara, of Indianapolis. He has a brother, John Garrity, of New Orleans, living. The funeral will be held this afternoon at the residence at 2 o'clock and at St. Cecelia's church at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Louis cemetery.

SEEKING CONTROL OF WAREHOUSE COMPANY

MOVE CREDITED TO AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY.

TOBACCO GROWERS' REPRESENTATIVES MEET HERE JULY 17.

QUESTION TO COME UP THEN.

There is a strong belief current that the American Society of Equity is planning to buy a controlling interest in the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company, which would give the Kentucky district ample facilities for handling the product in the State yearly.

A rumor to this effect has been on the streets for several days, but the officials of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company say that no overtures have been made to them by any representative of the American Society of Equity, nor have any been made to the society by the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company.

Representatives from the North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and other tobacco-growing States will meet in Louisville with representatives of the Burley districts of Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio on July 17 to discuss the situation.

It is believed that a national organization will be effected among the representatives. The meeting of the representatives will be held in the Exchange Hall of the Board of Trade building.

THOUGHT TO BE BETTER

BRS. SUSAN M. WARNER ILL AT NORTON INFIRMARY.

Founder and President of Louisville Flower Mission and Prominent Charity Worker For Years.

Mrs. Susan M. Warner, president of the Louisville Flower Mission, is ill at the Norton Infirmary. Her condition was at first considered dangerous, but she has rallied and is not thought by the attending physicians to be dangerously ill now. Her sunny temperament has done much to lessen the pain and suffering since she has been confined to her bed and has gone far toward aiding in her recovery.

Mrs. Warner has been president of the Louisville Flower Mission for thirty years, and was one of the most prominent charitable workers in Louisville. She organized the Flower Mission and has been at its head ever since. Recently her health became such that she was compelled to give up much of her active work, as she is over seventy years of age.

Mrs. Warner has always been particularly prominent in work among the poorer people on the Point. During the flood of last January she visited the stricken district in person and helped to ameliorate conditions with money, food and clothes.

DUSKY DAMSEL HAD ROLL CONCEALED IN HER WIG.

Patrolmen Dalton and Hepp Niped Her In Time and Cranor Gets His $140.

Patrolmen Dalton and Hepp made a clever capture last night about 10 o'clock at Floyd and Green streets when Daisy Caldwell, colored, ran plump into Dalton's expectant arms. Daisy was wanted for relieving William P. Cranor, of 533 Third avenue, of $140 a few minutes before. Cranor and the woman, it seems, were going through the alley adjacent to the haymarket. When they passed out in the open Cranor discovered that he was minus a pocketbook containg the money. At his first cry for help the woman showed a clean pair of heels and disappeared.

Hepp and Dalton, who were near by, immediately surmised that she had run into an alley just across from the haymarket. Hepp stationed himself at the entrance while Dalton covered the opposite end, doing so just in time to catch the fleeing culprit.

She was searched and at first nothing was found, but upon the displacement of a cleverly worn wig, which the patrolmen say she wears for the purpose, the bills were found neatly tucked away. The pocketbook was found near the scene of the robbery, where it had been thrown by the woman.

Daisy is well known to the police, having served a term in prison, as well as numerous other lighter sentences. However, she denies the theft.

HEARS NEWS OF SISTER'S DEATH AT SON'S BEDSIDE.

Dr. John D. Trawick's Boy Very Ill—Mrs. Lula Trawick Weatherford Dies Suddenly.

Telegrams received in Louisville last night announced the sudden death of Mrs. Willis Weatherford in Atlanta, Ga., yesterday. Mrs. Weatherford, who was Miss Lula Trawick, of Nashville, was a sister of Dr. John D. Trawick, of Louisville, who is now at the bedside of his little son, Kendrick Trawick, in Nashville. Mrs. Trawick and the boy went to Nashville recently on a visitt o Dr. Trawick's parents and while there the boy became ill. He is hardly expected to recover.

LOUISVILLE'S NEW CHIEF OF POLICE.

COL. JACOB H. HAAGER.

GUNTHER OUT; HAGGER IS CHIEF.

that he was no longer connected with the Police Department.

"I have served the city to the best of my ability for almost thirty-eight years," he said, "and during that time I have always hewed straight to the line of duty. I have been a Democrat all my life, and I am still a Democrat. Whenever the opportunity offered, and I felt that I could do so without smirching my honor, I have favored the Democrats. They have been my friends for the last thirty-eight years, and it was only natural that I should do all I could to aid the party.

Understood He Would Continue.

"Soon after the decision of the Court of Appeals, reversing the decision of the lower court in the election cases, was handed down," said Col. Gunther, "I went to Frankfort and had a conference with Gov. Beckham, with a view to ascertaining whether I was to be allowed to retain my position. I reminded him that I had grown old in the service, and that I had always been his friend. I told the Governor that if I was to be let out, I wanted to know it, so that I could resign and make application for a pension. The Governor gave me to understand that I would be allowed to continue as Chief of Police, and I returned to Louisville satisfied. That is why I failed to hand in my resignation before this."

Immediately after leaving the office of the Board of Public Safety, Col. Gunther repaired to his private office on the first floor of the City Hall and began arranging his effects for leave-taking. While he was thus engaged several of the police officers who have served faithfully under him for years and who had heard of his resignation, called on him and expressed their regret. It was with difficulty that Col. Gunther controlled his feelings as he extended his hand and bade them goodbye.

"I may have seemed a little hard on you boys at times," he said, in a husky tone of voice, "but it was in the pursuance of my duty. While I was Night Chief, and since I have been Chief, I have had some tried and true friends in the department. It is with regret that I confess there have been others of whom I cannot speak in such high terms."

Regarded As Honest Official.

Those who know Col. Gunther best refer to him as having been a strictly honest and conscientious official. He has always been utterly devoid of fear, and was never known to order his men to go where he was afraid to lead. During the recent strike among the employes of the Louisville Railway Company, when strike-breakers were brought to Louisville to run the cars and were set upon by irate strikers, who hurled rocks and bowlders through car windows, Col. Gunther often led his men to the rescue. He appeared as unconcerned when missiles were flying about his head as though he was calmly seated in his office at the City Hall.

Col. Gunther bore the reputation of being a splendid disciplinarian. While his men, many of them, feared him, they also respected him, and whenever he gave an order they hurried to obey it.

* * *

Reputation As Detective.

Col. J. H. Haager, the newly-appointed Chief of Police, is forty-five years old and a native of Louisville. He bears the reputation of being one of the shrewdest detectives in the country. For four years prior to August 31, 1901, when he resigned from the Louisville Police Department, he served as Chief of Police. He first became connected with the Louisville Police Department in 1888, when he was appointed stationkeeper at Central police station. He held that position three years. For five years he served as Captain of police, and for eighteen months prior to his appointment to the office of Chief of Police he served as Chief of the Detective Department.

"When I resigned from the office of Chief of Police," said Col. Haager yesterday afternoon, "I did not think I would ever accept the appointment again. I engaged in business, but that was distasteful to me. I could not break off my old habit of living, so I established a private detective agency. Since then I have devoted a great deal of my time to detective work, and have made money. There is a fascination about the business that I could not break away from.

Had Intended Running For Sheriff.

"Being a lover of the political game, I had about decided to make the race before the people this fall for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff," continued Col. Haager. "Mayor Bingham, having heard of my intention soon after he was appointed by Gov. Beckham to succeed Mayor Barth, sent for me. He told me what he had heard relative to my making the race before the people, and I confirmed it. He then asked me to reconsider the matter and accept an appointment under him. He did not tell me what it would be, but told me to hold off for a while until he was ready to announce his appointments. It was not until this morning that he told me he wanted me to be his Chief of Police."

* * *

To Have "Flying Squadron."

Col. Haager said yesterday that he would begin some reforms in the police department at once.

"While they will be vigorous, they will work no hardships on the men," he said. "One of the new features I shall introduce will be what is known as the Flying Squadron. In Chicago they have three Flying Squadrons, but one will accomplish the work in Louisville. My Flying Squadron will consist of about one dozen detectives, all of them picked men and not connected with the regular detective department. They will be used in restoring order at big assemblages, quelling riots and the like. When they are not engaged in this kind of work they will be sent out in citizens' clothing with instructions to look out for people who carry concealed deadly weapons and other law breakers and arrest them. They will invade notorious resorts and such places, and I expect great results from such a body of men."

Col. Haager also said that he would make certain changes in some of the watches.

"Under the present system the watches of some of the men are too long," he said. "Men of family have too little time to be at home, and some of them do not get home to their suppers until 7 o'clock at night. This works a hardship on the wife and mother, and often necessitates her preparing two meals, one for the children and the other for her husband. I shall endeavor to remedy this, and there are other changes I likely will make when things get to running smooth."

* * *

Had the Military System.

When Col. Haager was chief of the Louisville police department before he inaugurated what was termed the military system. Under this system the patrolmen and officers were required to drill in full uniform certain days of the week. It is probable that this system will be renewed.

Col. Haager was asked last night whether he had recommended to the Board of Public Safety certain changes among subordinate officers in the police department and replied that he had not.

"I shall confer with Mayor Bingham to-morrow morning regarding changes among the subordinate officers," he said, "and after ascertaining his wishes in the matter I shall make my recommendations to the Board of Public Safety.

"I can assure you that the Mayor's wishes in the matter will be carried out. The Mayor is responsible to the people, not I. I consider that I, in a sense, am his private secretary, and am here to carry out his wishes."

* * *

Bright For Night Chief.

Rumor had it last night that Lieut. Edward Bright was to be promoted to the office of Night Chief of Police, and that Maj. Patrick Ridge, now holding that position, was to be reduced to the ranks. It was said that Scott Newman, a strong supporter of Lieut. Bright, had approached Col. Haager in the matter, and that the latter had assured him that he would recommend the promotion of Lieut. Bright to the office of Night Chief.

"It is true that Mr. Newman approached me about the matter to-night," said Col. Haager, "and I told him practically what I have told you, that I would first consult with Mayor Bingham, and recommend only those changes that he wishes made."

When asked whether he would recommend material change in the present make-up of the Detective Department, Col. Haager said it all depended on Mayor Bingham's wishes.

"I can't mention any names at present," said Col. Haager, "but as soon as I have talked to the Mayor then I shall announce the recommendations I shall make to the Board of Public Safety."

Col. Haager is a member of the National Association of Police Chiefs, having retained his membership in that association since he was Chief of Police before. It was only recently that he returned from Jamestown, where the annual convention of the association was held.

* * *

Other Changes Mentioned.

Following the appointment yesterday of Col. J. H. Haager as Chief of the Louisville Police Department, rumors of many changes among subordinate officers were rife. In addition to the rumor that Lieut. Edward Bright is to succeed Maj. Patrick Ridge as Night Chief of Police, it is said that Capt. Sam Owens, Capt. James Hendricks, Capt. James Kinnarney and Capt. Andrew Krakel are to be removed.

It is said that Charles Buddhu, who resigned from the police service last winter, is to be reinstated and made a sergeant of police, he having held that rank when he was relieved from service. Sergt. Buddhu was asked to resign from the force, the Board of Public Safety having assigned as a reason that his health was such that he could not properly attend to his duties.

Among others said to be slated for promotion are Lieut. Thomas Fitzgibbons, Lieut. Edward Burke and Lieut. Stephen Wickham. These, it is said, are to be made Captains.

Lieut. Edward Bright, said to be slated for Night Chief, has been a member of the Police Department for twenty-five years. For seventeen years of that time he served as Captain, and was reduced during Mayor Grainger's administration because, it is said, he favored the nomination of T. L. Jefferson for Mayor. Col. Haager was also a Jefferson supporter, and that is believed to make Lieut. Bright's chances for promotion better than they otherwise would be.

Maj. Patrick Ridge has been Night Chief of Police since 1901. He has been connected with the Police Department for the last twenty-four years.

* * *

Gregory Is Ridge's Friend.

A member of the Board of Public Safety, when asked whether Maj. Ridge was to be reduced, replied that his case has not been discussed by the board as yet. It is understood that Judge James P. Gregory will make a fight in the board for Maj. Ridge.

Lieut. Stephen Wickham, who, it is said, likely will be made a Captain, was a member of the Detective Department while Col. Haager was Chief of Detectives. Col. Haager accompanied Lieut. Wickham to the office of the Board of Public Safety yesterday afternoon and introduced him to the members.

Capt. Thomas Maher, Chief of Detectives, from information gathered yesterday, may be permitted to retain his office. Capt. Maher and Col. Haager are close friends, it is said. It is likely that the rest of the detective force will be given beats with perhaps one or two exceptions.

* * *

Gunther Wants a Pension.

Concurrent with his resignation, Col. Gunther made application to W. W. Davies, who by virtue of his office of chairman of the Board of Public Safety is president of the Police Pension Board, for a pension of $1,500 a year. Mr. Davies will take the matter up with the other members of the Police Pension Board, and there is hardly a doubt that the pension will be allowed.

Section 8 of the rules governing the Police Pension Board, under which Col. Gunther made application for a pension, reads as follows:

"Any officer, member or employe of the Police Department, having served twenty-five years or more, whether consecutively or not, in such Police Department, may make application to be retired from service in such Police Department, and if his application is granted, such Board of Trustees shall order and direct that such person be paid from said Policemen's Pension Fund a monthly pension equal to one-half the amount of salary said person was in receipt of as a member of said department at the time of the granting of his application; provided that no such application shall be granted unless the person so applying shall have reached the age of sixty years."

* * *

Col. Haager To Retire From Business.

Col. Haager said last night that under the terms of the city charter the Chief of Police is not permitted to engage in business.

"For that reason I have arranged to sell my shoe store.

"I also have money invested in my brother's bowling alley on Market street, and if there is any objection to this on the part of the board, I shall draw out my money. It is my opinion, however, that I have a right to invest my money as I please, so long as I do not engage in active business myself."

RETIRES AFTER FEW YEARS OF SERVICE

COL. SEBASTIAN GUNTHER.

MAY APPOINT BOARD OF WORKS TO-DAY

MAYOR BINGHAM HADN'T DECIDED THOUGH.

JOHN RAMSAY LIKELY TO BE POLICE CLERK.

FRIENDS FOR DR. ALLEN.

"I may name the members of the new Board of Public Works to-morrow," said Mayor Bingham last night, "but I am not certain. As for the other appointments I a mto make, I am not ready to say anything about them as yet."

Mayor Bingham was asked when he thought the Governor would name the thirty-six members of the new General Council, and he replied that the appointments might be made Monday, but he did not know.

Among those who called on Mayor Bingham yesterday was James B. Brown, former City Tax Receiver, and now cashier of the First National Bank. He remained with the Mayor for nearly an hour, and it is understood that they were conferring in regard to Mr. Brown's accepting an appointment on the Board of Public Works.

When asked about appointments to be made under the Board of Public Works, Mayor Bingham said that would be left entirely with the members of the new board. He said he intended to keep hands off in the matter of such appointments.

* * *

Percy Haley Calls On Mayor.

Percy Haley, of Frankfort, called on the Mayor yesterday, but merely to pay his respects, he said.

Judge Randolph H. Blain, of the City Court, was asked last night when he would make known his appointment of Clerk of the Police Court to succeed Alf Oldham, and replied that this announcement would be made by the Mayor when he names his appointees. When asked whether he had decided on who he would name for the place, Judge Blain declined to commit himself on the matter. He said he had held a conference with the Mayor relative to the appointment and had requested the Mayor to announce the appointment when he announces those to be made by him.

Ramsay For Police Clerk.

Friends of John Ramsay, at one time secretary of the Louisville School Board, circulated a tip yesterday to the effect that he will receive the appointment of Clerk of the Police Court. His chances are said to be excellent. When Judge Blain was asked last night whether Mr. Ramsay likely would be appointed, he said he preferred not to discuss the matter.

Thomas Craig, who served as Mayor Grainger's secretary, and who continued to serve in the same capacity to Mayor Barth during his administration, likely will be retained in the same position by Mayor Bingham, it is said, but nothing definite in the place has been given out. Mr. Craig possesses diplomacy and is conservative, and it is said his chances for holding on look good.

Hundreds of letters from Main-street men urging Mayor Bingham to retain Dr. M. K. Allen as head of the Health Department have been received by the city's Chief Executive, and it is not believed that Dr. Allen will be removed from office. He, it is said, has made one of the most efficient health officers Louisville has ever had.

Continuous Mileage Rates.

Atlanta, July 12.—The Supreme Court of Georgia late to-day rendered an important decision, upholding the right of the State Railroad Commission to establish continuous mileage rates over two conecting lines, one of which is owned, managed or controlled by the other. The case was that of the Wadley Southern Railway Company against the commission, in which District Judge Gober had against the commission's right to enforce such rates.

Last October the commission, after a full hearing on the subject in which it was shown that the Central of Georgia railroad owned the Wadley Southern, issued an order applying the continuous mileage rates. The Central claimed that while they owned the Wadley Southern, it was operated entirely independent of any other line. To-day's decision sustains the order of the commission.

MAKE ANSWER

To Suit of Negro Order of "Elks of the World."

WHITE ELKS AND SECRETARY OF STATE REPLY.

CASE COMES UP AT SEPTEMBER TERM OF COURT.

OTHER NEWS OVER THE STATE

Frankfort, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Judge J. H. Hazelrigg, of the local bar, representing the Grand Lodge, B. P. O. E., of the United States, Frankfort Lodge of the same order and Secretary of State H. V. McChesney, in the action recently instituted by a negro organization of Louisville, to obtain a Kentucky charter for an organization, to be known as the "Falls City Lodge, No. 44, of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World," today filed the answer of his clients in the Franklin Circuit Court, and also entered a cross-petition.

The answer of the Grand Lodgeee, B. P. O. E. of the United States, and of the Frankfort Lodge of that order is that at the time the negro organization attempted to secure a charter from the Secretary of State of Kentucky, these defendants were organizd and mpowered by their articles of incorporation to carry on and promote fraternal, charitable and social objects in this State under their respective names, and which are distinctly silima to the name attempted to be adopted by the plaintiff organization. They say that they are the real parties in interest in this action, and ask to be made parties thereto, and that the writ asked against the Secretary of State be denied.

The answer of the Secretary of State to the petition says that he has no interest personally or in a pecuniary way in the matters in controversy, and that the real parties in interest are the Grand Lodge and the Frankfort Lodge of the B. P. O. E. of the United S ates. He makes his answer a cross-petition against each of them for his own protection against their alleged threatened suit against him, and asks that they be made parties defendant and summoned to answer and make defense to the petition herein.

The petition will not be heard until the September term of the Franklin Circuit Court. Its decision will be appealed from to test the question in the Court of Appeals. Proceedings to be had in the case will likely be discused at the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Elks, to be held in Philadelphia next week.

WORK TRAIN WRECKED.

Sixteen Hurt on Q. and C. Near Tennessee Line.

Somerset, Ky., July 12.—Sixteen men were hurt in a wreck on the Queen and Crescent road yesterday when a local freight crashed into a work train near the Tennessee line. A relief train brought the victims to a sanitarium here. The injured are:

Caleb Owens, bruised and scalded. L. B. Mulkey, sprained wrist. W. N. Angel, jaw bruised. Frank Fitzpatrick, back and right arm sprained. Robert Shepperd, back and arm scalded. J. M. Ross, elbow bruised. Frank Lovell, scalp injured, left arm and leg cut. B. Lovette, scalp wound, face, arm and leg cut.

The wreck was caused, says an official announcement from Supt. Caldwell, by the work train failing to send out a flagman while taking water.

DIES ON EVE OF RETURN HOME.

End Comes To Kentucky Missionary In Africa.

Lancaster, Ky., July 12.—Word was received here to-day announcing the sudden death of the Rev. Strauss Cook, a missionary, of this place, in Africa. He had been located there for two decades, and just prior to his death had written a letter to Lancaster friends, in which he said:

"My work in this field is about ended. I shall soon start for Old Kentucky, where I shall remain."

He was considered one of the ablest ministers in the Christian Church, and had been actively engaged in religious work for forty years. Elder Cook was about seventy years old. It is not known just where or when the interment will take place.

FATAL BOLT OF LIGHTNING.

Prominent Hopkinsville Man Killed During Storm.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 12.—During a violent thunderstorm that passed over this section last evening John Y. Gray, Sr., a prominent citizen of this city, was struck by lightning and killed. He was at his barn near Fairview superintending some work, and had just gone inside the building and was leaning against a post when struck by a bolt.

A man named Scott, at work in the barn, was also knocked down and badly shocked. Mr. Gray was sixty-five years old, and is survived by his widow and one son, John Y. Gray, Jr., a well-known stock dealer.

Cheek Crushed By Mule.

Slaughterville, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hopkins, of Pineville, arrived to-day in response to a telegram calling them to the bedside of their adopted son, twelve years of age, who received a severe injury from the kick of a mule. The boy's cheek bone and the greater portion of the upper part of his face were crushed so that the brain was exposed. He is being attended by Dr. Bone, of Madisonville. The boy was formerly taken from a Louisville orphans' home and was living with Mr. James Pettus, near here. He will be moved to town, and if he survives a few days the physician thinks he will be able to be removed to Louisville.

Sell Street Car Franchise.

Mayfield, Ky., July 12.—A. J. Watts, Mayor of the city of Mayfield, at 10 o'clock this morning sold a street railway franchise to J. W. Williams, representing the firm of J. W. Williams & Co., for $200. The bond that the city required before the franchise could be sold was given by J. W. Williams & Co., J. W. Williams, George Rush, H. H. Loving, John F. Horth and B. H. Scott.

It is reported that in less than six months work will have begun on an interurban street railway from Paducah to Mayfield.

To Extend Rural Routes.

Eminence, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—On account of the increased demands on the local post-office Postmaster Williams has received official notice today from Washington, stating that on the 16th of this month the rural routes starting from this place will be extended to remoter parts of this county and the salaries of Rural Carriers Long and Ellis will be materially increased. The new routes will cover a part of Henry county that has never before been reached and the people along the new territory are greatly elated over the improvement.

Young Business Man Dead.

Paris, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Frank Duvall, a well-known young business man, died this morning after a short illness, of congestion of the brain. He is survived by his wife and one child. Mr. Duvall was a brother of Councilman John Duvall and George Duvall and Benjamin Duvall, deceased. The latter died some weeks ago in front of his brother's business house after an attack of coughing which caused hemorrhage of the lungs.

Dies At Supper Table.

Somerset, Ky., July 12.—Thomas Sawyers, one of the oldest and best-known citizens of Pulaski county, dropped dead at his supper table when apparently in the best of health.

He had just about finished a hearty supper when he was suddenly seized with a convulsion and expired without uttering a word.

He was one of the largest land owners in the county.

Dies While On Vacation.

Glasgow, Ky., July 12.—Maj. R. W. Comer yesterday attended the funeral of Miss Hattie Comer, daughter of Hon. R. F. Comer, at Gamaliel, Monroe county. Miss Comer had just arrived at the home of her father from Conyers, Ga., where she had been teaching, to spend her vacation. She was seeming in splendid health when she was stricken by apoplexy and died almost instantly.

New Church Dedicated.

Shepherdsville, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—The new Methodist church at this place has been dedicated, and every cent of the $2,000 indebtedness was subscribed.

It is a beautiful and convenient structure. Dr. McAfee, of the West Broadway Methodist church, is now conducting a revival in the new church and is preaching some able sermons.

To Preach In Pulaski.

Somerset, Ky., July 12.—The Rev. W. H. Warren has been engaged to spend a few months in evangelistic work in Pulaski county, and will enter upon the new charge at once. The Rev. Mr. Warren has been engaged in ministerial work for thirty-two years, of which twenty years has been spent in foreign countries.

Was Mexican War Veteran.

Springfield, Ky., July 12.—Mr. Kendrick Smith died after a short illness at his home, near here. He was eighty-one years old, and was a veteran of the Mexican War, and his death leaves only three Mexican War veterans in Washington county. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Henry Dowling of this county.

Hello Girls Walk Out.

Shelbyville, Ky., July 12.—Seven of the young women operators at the exchange of the Cumberland Telephone Company here went out on a strike today. Those out comprise all the force except the chief operator. They demanded more pay, which was refused, hence the walkout.

Old Shoe Dealer Dead.

Maysville, Ky., July 12.—J. Henry Pecor died at his home here this morning. He was the oldest and most successful shoe merchant here, having been continuously in business for forty-five years. He was well-known throughout this section, and leaves two brothers and two sisters.

Summon Fewer Witnesses.

Barbourville, Ky., July 12.—Fewer witnesses than at former trials will be summoned from this section in connection with the approaching trial of Caleb Powers, charged with complicity in the assassination of Gov. Goebel, only thirty being prosecution witnesses and eight for the defense.

At the first trial over a hundred witnesses were summoned here.

Wants To Be State Senator.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Dr. J. T. Walker, of Harlan, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Senator from the Thirty-third district.

Dr. Walker will be opposed for the nomination by Judge Joe F. Bosworth, of this city.

Meets Horrible Death.

Maysville, Ky., July 12.—Aseda Simpson, a six-year-old boy, was drowned in a vault here last night. He had awakened from his sleep and went out of the house.

About an hour afterward he was missed and a search revealed his body.

Lightning Kills Farmer.

Hawesville, Ky., July 12.—Dan Sweeney, aged forty, and a farmer of this county, was struck by lightning and killed while on his way to a barn during a violent thunder storm here yesterday.

Buried At Old Home.

Hawesville, Ky., July 12.—The remains of Judge William Ireland, who died in Evansville yesterday, were brought here to-day for burial and laid to rest in Beechwood cemetery.

IN WORTHY CAUSE

TWO SATURDAY AFTERNOON LEAGUE TEAMS CLASH.

Coco Colas and Bryant & Strattons Will Help Build Wing of New Children's Free Hospital.

Charity and the ball tossers are expected to have their innings to-day, when the "Bryant & Stratton" team crosses bats with the fast "Coca-Colas" in a game at Eclipse Park, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the Children's Free Hospital building fund. Society is expected to turn out en masse to witness the struggles of the two top-notch teams of the Saturday Afternoon League, owing to the fact that the affair is under the management of Mrs. Henry Andresen and several other prominent Louisville women who are striving to raise funds for the completion of a new east wing of the hospital.

The original game scheduled for Thursday between the "Coca-Colas" and the "Sutcliffes" was called off at the eleventh hour owing to the downpour which graced that afternoon. A huge crowd was out at Eclipse Park on Thursday to witness the contest and were much disappointed. Tickets for that game will be good for admission to-day. In addition quite a large number of additional tickets have been disposed of and it is confidently expected that the crowd will be a record-breaking one.

The "Bryant & Stratton" team has taken the place of the "Sutcliffes" for to-day's contest and the game should be fast. Brown and Weihe will do the battery work for the "Coca-Colas," while Hikes and Kelly will be on the firing and receiving line for the opposition.

SECURITIES TOO MUCH FOR MOUSE

UNFORTUNATE RODENT ATE $17 IN BILLS AND INCONTINENTLY EXPIRED.

Cincinnati, O., July 12.—[Special.]—When Fred Brock opened Josh Bailey's Main street restaurant to-day he saw a mouse through the transparent inclosure of the cash register. Brock considered it a bad omen that the mouse had taken refuge behind the "no sale" placard. The ringing of the bell caused the mouse to disappear. A little later the mouse was found dead and $17 in bills had been mutilated. A post-mortem showed the money killed the "wee beastie."

COLONELS LOSE HARD LUCK GAME

Millers Win Out In Tenth Inning After Locals Are Crippled.

BRASHEAR PUT OUT OF PARK.

Durham Issues Three Free Passes and Mertes Follows With the Necessary Hit.

UMPIRE KERINS HAS OF FDAY.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 12.—[Special.]—Ten innings were necessary for Minneapolis to defeat Louisville by a score of 5 to 4, and the Millers were only able to do so after Umpire Kerins had given several raw decisions and crippled the Colonels by sending Brashear out of the grounds in the tenth inning.

J. Durham was on the mound for Louisville and let the Reds down with six hits, while, in spite of the fact that Louisville pounded out eleven hits off Thomas, they were unable to win. All went quietly until the third inning, when O'Neill singled, Dundon walked and Mertes doubled, scoring O'Neill and sending Dundon to third. In an attempt to steal home he was caught and Mertes got to third. John Freeman singled and Mertes scored. Oyler was safe on Cooley's error in the fourth, went to second on Graham's single, to third when O'Neill walked, and both he and Graham came home on Dundon's single. Here Durham tightened up and there was nothing more doing.

Woodruff singled in the seventh. Durham was safe on a fielder's choice, Oyler dropping the throw to second, and all hands were safe. Stovall was safe on another error by Oyler, Woodruff scoring and Durham followed him to the plate when Graham let the ball go through him. Cooley singled in the eighth and Sullivan cracked out a beautiful two-bagger, which went clear to the flag pole in center field. Woodruff again came to the rescue and on his long hit both Cooley and Sullivan scored.

In the tenth, with the score a tie and one out, Brashear got into a dispute with Kerins and was ruled off the field, Woodruff going to second and Frantz to left. All this commotion slightly disturbed Durham and he issued three free passes and allowed a hit, bringing in Mertes with the winning run. Kerins was way off on balls and strikes and seemed to have it in for the Louisville team, sending Lous Durham out of the grounds for talking from the bench and fined him $10 for talking back and delay in going. EASTERN MEN IN THE FINALS

Jerome D. Travers and Archie Graham to Contest For Championship.

PROMINENT PLAYERS BEATEN.

Byers, Present Titleholder; West, Fowne, Wood and Others Fall By Wayside.

FINE MATCH IS EXPECTED.

CLEVELAND, July 12.—Two New Jersey golfers, Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, and Archie Graham, of the North Jersey Club, will to-morrow play thirty-six holes of golf over the Euclid links to decide to whom shall belong the honor of the national amateur championship.

In the two rounds of eighteen holes each that were played to-day Travers defeated Warren K. Wood, of the Homewood Club, Chicago, and the present national title holder, E. M. Byers, of Pittsburg, while Graham took the measure of W. T. West, of Philadelphia, who had next to the lowest qualifying score of the tournament, and W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburg, who in the morning round had disposed of the veteran, Walter J. Travis, after a contest that required two extra holes' play to decide it.

Travers has twice won the metropolitan championship, winning it this year from Max Behr. He also holds the New Jersey Championship, a title that Graham has won three times. Travers was beaten in the third round of the championship last year by W. J. Travis. Graham has been champion of his home club since 1897. He was beaten in the semi-finals for the metropolitan championship this year by Max Behr.

The chief surprise of the day's play was the defeat of W. J. Travis by W. C. Fownes, Jr. Two years ago Fownes defeated Travis at Wheaton 1 up in nineteen holes, but Travis was expected to win to-day as his golf has been consistently good. But he was decidedly off on his game just when he should not have been, and Fownes finally beat him, although two extra holes had to be played before Fownes could claim the victory.

In point of excellent golf the match between Travers and Warren K. Wood was by far the best of the tournament. Travers' sensational putting won the game for him. Time and again he ran down long putts, although Wood played golf that seemed perfection, as his medal score of 73 for the eighteen holes testifies, Travers' work on the greens was too much for him. Playing the same high-class game in the afternoon, Travers won easily from the present title holder, E. M. Byers, of Pittsburg, defeating him 6 up, 5 to play, the worst beating Byers ever received in a tournament.

The game this afternoon between Jerome D. Travers and National Champion Eben M. Byers resulted in a bad defeat for Byers, Travers winning by 6 up, 5 to play. The game was marked by the high class for Travers and the poor work of Byers. Apparently the strain of the morning with Ned Sawyer, whom he defeated after a nerve-racking contest, was too much for Byers after his total score for the first nine holes was 42, while Travers, playing the same unbeatable game that he has displayed since the match play began, took but 36. Travers took the lead at the second hole and steadily increased it. Travers won the second hole in 3, keeping his approach two yards from the cup from a distance of about thirty yards. He won the fourth in 4, one under Bogey, Byers missing a six-foot put after getting a bad kick on perfectly pitched approach. Both pulled into the high grass on the fifth, but Byers was waist high in the weeds and took two strokes to get out. Travers recovered beautifully and won the hole, 5-6. The sixth, seventh and eighth were halved, then Travers, by a putt of thirty-five yards, won the ninth in 3, two strikes under Bogey, making him 4 up at the turn. He nearly holed a forty-foot putt for a 2 on the tenth and won the hole in 3. Halving the eleventh and twelfth, the finish of the match came on the thirteenth green. Both drove long balls. Byers played a perfect brassy shot for his second, landing on the near edge of the green, but Travers, who was ten yards nearer the hole on his drive, took a cleek and drove the ball 185 yards straight on a line, the ball stopping within two feet of the cup. Byers came within six inches of holding out on his third, and then Travers ran down the little putt, which put Byers out of the championship game. The score:

Travers, out ....4 3 4 4 5 5 5 3 3—36
Byers, out ....4 5 4 5 6 5 5 3 5—42
Travers, in ....3 4 3 3 * * * * *—
Byers, in ....4 4 3 4 * * * * *—

*Bye holes not played.

Archie Graham, of North Jersey, had a rather easy victory over W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, Pittsburg, who defeated W. J. Travis in the morning game, Graham winning 4 up, 3 to play.

Graham played pretty golf throughout, making but few mistakes, making the first nine holes in 37, or one under Bogey, and the six holes played on the in 25 Bogey figures. Fownes showed a tendency to get off the course on his drives, dubbed several approaches and failed to take advantage of the few mistakes Graham made. The scores follow:

Graham, out ....4 4 3 4 5 4 5 3 5—37
Fownes, out ....5 4 4 4 6 3 5 3 5—39

LET JIM JEFFRIES REMAIN RETIRED

There Seems No Good Reason For the Big Fellow To Get Back In Ring.

ABOUT two years ago James J. Jeffries said he might re-enter the ring if the sporting writers of the country thought he should do so. In order to test that the Boston Journal has invited inquiries from the newspaper men as to whether, in their opinion, the big retired champion should again don the gloves.

A certain sporting editor believes that Jeffries should be allowed to retire for all time—not because we have lost faith in the ability of the big fellow, but for the good reason that he earned the title of champion honestly, met and defeated the best men in the world which were brought before him and therefore had the right to retire when he did. Let us have one champion who retired undefeated. After all big battles where the champions were defeated the critics usually had these lines to start their stories with "He went into the ring once too often." Now, why not let Jeffries alone and permit him to remain "the retired and undefeated champion of the world." There is no doubt at all that Jeffries, when at his best, was master of all the heavies. He may be the greatest of them all to-day, but it stands to reason that a fighter who has been out of the game three or four years, as Jeffries has, cannot be as good as when he retired. John L. Sullivan was supposed to be invincible, but James J. Corbett demonstrated what cleverness could do against a man who was strong but slow. Corbett simply wore down John L. by jabbing and keeping out of danger. Jeffries is no doubt much slower now than he was, which is only natural, and a young, strong, clever fellow like Tommy Burns might repeat the Corbett-Sullivan battle. If he should, why the same old story would come out about "going into the ring once too often," and they would forget about the possible change in conditions. It would simply be a case of beaten and Jeff would be numbered among the ex-champions. Again we say let Jeffries remain as the undefeated champion, not only of America, but of the world.

FOUR.

[New York Times.]

[From the Russian of "Skitaletz"—i. e., "The Wanderer," a typical folk-song of the Russian Revolution.]

"My sons!" rose the cry of a famishing mother—
Her sons they were four, and they came—
"Now bury my body and love one another;
Shun evil and discord and shame.

"Since peasants ye are, of a true peasant village,
Though landless were father and kin,
Win back the good acres for plowing and tillage,
And freedom, perhaps, ye may win."

They buried their mother, the sons, but, returning,
They found not the Russia of yore,
For holy and bright was the flame that was burning—
It kindled the hearts of the Four.

And one was a poet, a teacher, a pleader,
The voice of a people for right;
And one was a smiter of tyrants—a leader;
And two went forth boldly to fight.

And one of the fighters was hanged in the city;
And one on the battle ground fell;
The poet and leader, by fiends without pity,
Were starved in Siberia's hell.

"For land and for freedom!" Brave war cry, awaken
The soul of a nation to life!
But tell not the mother that death hath o'ertaken
Her Four in the front of the strife!

Some of the pearlers are making some good finds in the way of ball pearls. The bends around Strawberry Cutoff, on Black river, are running over with what are called muckers. This is the shell that the finest pearls are found in. There are not many that know of this bed of mussels." ....Mrs. Douglas Hammond, of Burlington, Ia., wife of the well known riverman, has been granted a pilot's license, and is now qualified to guide a boat on the river. There are few women pilots along the Mississippi....Wednesday was boat sale day at Evansville....The New Orleans States says: "The outside seam of the deck of a vessel is called the devil, so termed, it is supposed, because of the difficulty in caulking it; pouring the hot pitch over the oakum in the seams after caulking is called paying. Hence the origin, it is said, of the expression, 'The devil's to pay and no pitch hot.' Close quarters was first used in designating modern barriers, loopholed and extended across a merchantman's deck to repel attacking boarding enemies or pirates. Slavers were occasionally fitted this way in case of a rising among the captives. Plain sailing or plane sailing, as it was originally, was derived as follows: Before the Mercator sea chart all charts were on a plane projection; in using these the ship's course was treated as an angle, and the distance, latitude and so on as the side of a right-angled triangle; plane sailing was the simplest of all sailings, and thus came the term plain sailing. Rakish was used in the expression of the appearance of a vessel whose masts raked or leaned to an extreme toward the stern. It used to be the characteristic of a fast sailer, the piratical and slave vessels being generally rigged that way."....The Reaper was at Paducah Wednesday....A more melodious, sweeter-toned whistle never was blown on the river than the one on the Bonanza....The S. S. Brown runs Sunday excursions out of Vicksburg. ...The Memphis Commercial-Appeal says: "Capt. Sam L. Bryant, the commander of the Georgie Lee, in the Memphis and Cincinnati trade, has been appointed master of the S. S. Brown, now in the Vicksburg and Greenville trade."....Barge water at Pittsburg yesterday and coal coming.

RIVER TELEGRAMS.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 12.—[Special.]—The rise out of the Monongahela river caused the water to reach 8.2 feet at Davis Island this morning. The water fell to 7.8 feet this evening, when it began to rise. Operators expect nearly ten feet at Davis Island dam to-morrow and between two and three million bushels of coal will be shipped. The Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company will send out the Jim Moran with twelve boats and seven barges; Sam Clark, twenty-six barges; Boaz, twenty-five barges; Duquesne, seventeen light boats; Tom Dodsworth, seventeen light boats, and the Jim Wood and Valiant will take tows to Midland and Bellaire. Some of the coal will be turned over to the Joe B. Williams, which is coming up the Ohio. The People's Coal Company will send out seventeen barges with the Charlie Jutte and seventeen barges to-morrow morning with the G. W. Thomas. On Sunday the A. R. Budd Company will send out the A. R. Budd with fourteen pieces and the Harvester with seventeen pieces. The United Coal Company also expects to send out a tow. These tows will take out all the stock in the harbor, once more clearing the landings.

Cincinnati, O., July 12.—[Special.]—At 6 p. m. to-day the Ohio river at Cincinnati was 15 feet 3 inches and rising. The departures of packets from the port of Cincinnati to-day were: Tacoma, for Pomeroy; Courier, for Maysville; Bonanza, for Madison, and City of Cincinnati, for Louisville. The packets due Saturday are: Queen City, from Pittsburg; H. M. Stanley, from Pomeroy; Lizzie Bay, from Madison, and City of Louisville, from Louisville. The Queen City leaves Saturday for Pittsburg. The H. M. Stanley leaves for Charleston Saturday. The City of Louisville leaves for Louisville. Weather clear and cool.

Madison, Ind., July 12.—[Special.]—River 14.4 feet and rising. Weather clear and pleasant.

Evansville, Ind., July 12.—[Special.]—Capt. John Fletcher, part owner of the steamer Anna L., which burned and sank a few miles below here several weeks ago, left to-day for Portsmouth, O., where he will buy a new steamer to be placed in the Mt. Vernon, Ind., and Cumberland and Wabash rivers trade.

Memphis, Tenn., July 12.—[Special.]—River 17.8 feet, a fall of two-tenths of a foot in twenty-four hours. The Stacker Lee arrived early this morning from St. Louis with 3,815 packages of merchandise and returned at noon with her cabin full of passengers. The towboat Dolphin No. 3 departed at 10 a. m. with a tow of empty barges bound south.

Rates 10 cents a line. Advertisements under this head are repeated same day in The Times Free.

FOR SALE—10 PER CENT. NET ON YOUR MONEY IN FIRST-CLASS PROPERTY—Situated in the southern part of the city, in a beautiful and fashionable neighborhood, close to two car lines, we have a modern pressed brick apartment house, containing four apartments—two of 5 rooms each, leased at $55 a month each, and two of 6 rooms each, leased at $65 a month each; each flat also has a separate servant's room on the rear at the alley, something not found with other apartments. The building is constructed in a first-class manner, having concrete cellar, with laundries and storerooms for tenants, stone foundation, tiled porches in front for each apartment, hardwood floors and stairway, electric lights, plenty of closets, tiled baths and separate toilets, and all modern conveniences. The tenants are the very best and the owner has a "waiting list" of others who want to rent whenever a vacancy occurs. Latest hot water heating system and separate hot water heater. The total rental is $2,880; the total expenses, including janitor, heat, light, taxes, insurance and a liberal allowance for repairs, is $880, leaving NET $2,000, or 10 per cent. on $20,000—the price asked. This property is only 11 months old and cannot be duplicated to-day for less than $25,000. The owner has removed from Louisville to live permanently—otherwise this property would not be offered for sale. We will show you through it by engagement only. BUCHANAN & SON, Sole Agents, 235 Fifth st. *

FOR SALE—
Mr. Investor!
Mr. Farmer!
Mr. Tenant!
How would you like the idea of buying land at $15 which can be made income-producing from the start, netting from $10 to $50 per acre per year, with the certainty of a steady rise inside of ten years to $100 and more. The land is as good as the best Iowa soil, the climate even and healthy all the year round; the location is in Jackson county, Tex., 30 miles north of the Gulf, and the land will produce field crops of rice, cotton, corn, sugar cane, sweet potatoes, hay and millet; all fruits do well and no better country for vegetable and melon growing can be found. It is in the rain belt with perfect drainage and has good water. It is the land of the future, has no severe winters and will make an active and industrious man rich inside of ten years.
We have 30 sections, one as good as the other, ten miles from the county seat, Etna, at from $12.50 to $18. Terms, ¼ cash, balance in five years at 7 per cent. on or before. Further particulars on demand. Real estate men who can produce buyers are cordially invited to correspond with the H. AND P. CO., West Union, Iowa, Lock Box 575. *

BOOKS AND THEIR WRITERS.

THIRTY-FOURTH CHAUTAUQUA ASSEMBLY. GATHERING OF CELEBRITIES. PROMISES OF THE SEASON.

Changes and Progress. Improvement is the keynote for the opening of the thirty-fourth season of this great school for out-of-school people. The lawns are trim and clean, the flowers are blooming, new paint has covered old boards and concrete has replaced frame. All the unsightly shanties, soda fountains, booths and so forth that formerly gave a county-fair look to some of the streets have been torn down and their places taken by picturesque structures in logs or cement with inviting pergolas where the thirsty can partake of grape juice or soda and lead the simple life, keeping those sane hours said to be good for birds, but disastrous for worms.

Bishop Williams. The Michigan Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church has just finished a week of lectures. He is a speaker of force, an earnest thinker deeply interested in all the great life problems and imbued with a sympathetic understanding of the shortcomings, needs and remedies of present conditions. He attracted large audiences daily and his departure was deeply regretted.

Charles Zueblin. This progressive scholar gave three lectures, two of them illustrated, on the subjects of "Democratic Culture," "San Francisco, a City of Pumice," and "World's Fairs From Chicago to Portland." Though not yet approaching middle age, Prof. Zueblin has been identified for years with all that concerns municipal progress. He varies his university course with extensive platform work.

William Jennings Bryan. The procession of celebrities was led by that aspiring Democrat, the Hon. William J. Bryan, who took for his subject "The World and Its Ways," prefacing his remarks by an expression of pleasure that for once he need not make a political speech, yet ever and anon dropping into politics in a witty facetiousness that pleased his hearers mightily. In alluding to his platform, he said that it made no difference which hen laid the egg or which hatched it, he was only concerned with the chicken. And, referring to a recent cartoon of himself as a bird with only one feather left—tariff reform—he assured his audience that he had not only many feathers, but new ones growing. While his speech was without great depth, it was exactly fitted to the mixed multitude he addressed and met with immense favor. He was given the Chautauqua salute, reserved for honored guests, a beautiful flutter of linen resembling a flight of white doves. He asked the writer to tell Mr. Watterson he is thinking about growing a mustache.

Juvenile Problems. The past week was devoted to the consideration of the problems affecting young America. The Rev. William Byron Forbush began the series with "Confessions of a Father," following it with lectures on "The Boy Behind the Problem," "Adventures With Young Savages," "Getting a Few Exposures," "The Art of Being a Godfather" and "The Way of God With a Child." Melvil Dewy, a sane, practical speaker, spoke on "The Public Library and the Juvenile Problem; Mr. E. B. de Groot, of the Chicago Park Commission, considered "Public Playgrounds and Their Relation to the Juvenile Problem;" the Rev. Crawford Jackson, of Atlanta, Ga., gave many interesting facts concerning "The Juvenile Offender in the South and the Juvenile State;" Judge Willis Brown, of the Juvenile Court of Denver, Col., took for his subject "Manufacturing a Man," holding a court of honor, as an object lesson; Judge Ben B. Lindsay, of the same State, and Mr. W. R. George, of the Junior Republic in Freeville, N. Y., held conferences and delivered lectures.

Future Promises. Probably the most interesting week in prospect will be that of the last of July during which the question of Social Unrest and its Cure will be discussed in all its bearings by such speakers as the Hon. James Wadsworth, Jr., John Graham Brooks, Henry Clews, Melvil E. Stone, Herman J. Ridgway, Col. S. H. Church, J. G. Phelps Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, F. W. Stevens, Bishop Henry C. Potter, the Hon. Elmer E. Brown, Charles Stelzle and Miss Jane Addams—a galaxy unequaled on any programme. "Progress, progress," is the daily password in Chautauqua.

New Organ. The huge amphitheater is at present only used in the evenings, as the new organ is still in process of construction. It will be a superb instrument. The auditorium has had to have twenty feet added to the rear to accommodate it. Many musicians are on the grounds, including William H. Sherwood, considered by many the finest pianist in America; Sol Marcosson, of Louisville, but now residing in Cleveland; Mr. Hallam, the able conductor of the choir; Harry Vincent, the accomplished composer and leader; Miss Benedict, Miss Tait, Mr. James, Mr. Gunther, Mr. Chilton and many others. Three musicians calling themselves "The Holland Trio," have been giving exquisite performances both in public and private. No better music has ever been heard in Chautauqua than their rendering at the first concert of Elgar's "Salut d'Armour" and Tobani's "Reverie."

To-day promises lectures by Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge, of New York; Mrs. Clara Z. Moore, the graceful teacher in the School of Expression, Judge Lindsay, of Denver, closing with an illustrated lecture on "The Sepoy Mutiny" by Dr. J. M. Thoburn, Jr.

Memoirs of the Comtesse De Boigne.

The years do not seem to make the horrors of the French Revolution less real. But even while realizing what it meant to the world at large and acknowledging its inevitableness, its utility, the student of civilization, the economist, the philosopher who can interpret signs, or the scientist who can reconstruct the perfect whole from an imperfect part, must still feel the human pulsations of the individuals whose sufferings and misfortunes during that time helped to modify the Governments of the world.

These memoirs cover a period dating from 1781 to 1814. They abound in details of court life and repeat many a court anecdote, scandalous and otherwise, that will be new to even the most ravenous reader of the histories of those times. The Comtesse de Boigne lived eighty-five years in the atmosphere of courts. She was born at Versailles before the Revolution, her mother being one of the ladies of Madame Adelaide, daughter of Louis XV. At the beginning of the revolution she was taken to England, where her education was completed. She was open-minded, straightforward and truthful, hence her diary shows an impartiality as remarkable as it is rare. The editor calls her the complete embodiment of the transition between the old regime and the new.

After the restoration, her father, the Marquis d'Osmond, accepted an embassy at Turin, whither she accompanied him, and this with her experience afterwards at the London Embassy helped to form the conservative judgment that enabled her to record the facts preserved in this volume. On her return to France her salon was considered one of the most attractive in Paris, her indorsement sufficient to make an artist or author. Says the editor:

"All opinions were welcomed in Madame de Boigne's salon, and the doors were ever opened to talent and good education. Lamartine, whose poetry was certainly more popular in this cultured meeting place than his political ideas, was a constant visitor."

Her diary she calls the "Stories of an Aunt." At her death she bequeathed it to her nephew, the Marquis d'Osmond, with a considerable fortune. The young Marquis came into possession of both in 1881, but they contained so many personalities that would have offended families still living that their publication was postponed. Young Osmond gave the present editor, M. Charles Nicoullard, his intimate friend, the original manuscripts, and their contents have never been communicated or published until now. The last Osmond is dead, the estate divided, other deaths have removed the ban of silence, political conditions have altered. The editor believes that these papers will throw much light upon the period extending from the reign of Louis XIV. to the Revolution of 1848 as much from the details they record as from any generalizations.

For sixty years after her return from exile the Comtesse held high position in Paris, where her salon welcomed every person of any importance who came properly presented. The record of this period is particularly full. The fact of its not being intended for publication makes the writing have an offhand, unstudied fascination that renders it easily readable. No long-drawn-out description, nor wearisome moralizing detracts from its chatty style.

MEMOIRS OF THE COMTESSE DE BOIGNE. 1781-1814. Edited from the Original Mms. by M. Charles Nicoullaud. With portrait. Published by Schibner's Sons, New York City.

Much Discussed Novel.

"Alice for Short" is at present the most talked-of piece of fiction recently published. That it has certain rare qualities none may deny, yet its popularity is rather surprising, considering these qualities are not such as generally appeal to the public at large.

In the first place, it has literary distinction of style, an attribute that may be said never to be appreciated by the multitude. It has all the tortuous windings and strayings of the diffuse, early writers, and instead of going straight on with a story, and that a good one, tries every by-path that bi-sects the main road and follows it to the end.

Many elements are introduced, the psychic and artistic predominating.

The scene of the tale is laid principally in London in a certain old house near Soho, and in more fashionable, if not so picturesque quarters. Alice is the daughter of two drunkards, and the first thread of fiction begins to unwind when some bad boys run against her on the icy pavement causing her to drop and break her pitcher of beer. A young artist who inhabits the second floor front of the house where Alice's drunken mother is awaiting her beer, picks up both child and pitcher, discovering in one a blue-eyed heroine of rare attractiveness, and in the other, a "Robert Sproddle." He adopts both and whirls the reader into the midst of a continuous and ever-widening sea of incident.

But though Alice and Charley begin the story many other equally characteristic creations beguile the reader from page to page. The ghost of the "spotted lady," for instance, is a very tantalizing reality, and the unraveling of her murder a choice study in psychic phenomena. The mixture of the human and the mystical, the logical tracing of heredity and environment will please all earnest students along those lines. Apart from its many interests, the book will accomplish great things if read from one point of view alone. It shows how through interest in one poor child, a young woman of wealth and heart had revealed to her the horror of tens of thousands of lives in like condition.

This is but one of many issues elucidated, and the wonder is that the author has had art enough to produce in such perfection a work with so many ramifications. The majority will read "Alice for Short" for its fascinating story of love and art and ghosts; the apperceiving few will be beguiled by its truths, its premises so logically followed to conclusion.

ALICE FOR SHORT. By William de Morgan, author of "Joseph Vance." Published by Henry Holt & Co., New York City.

More Fun By the Author of "John Henry."

Rough and broad as the humor is in "Ikey's Letters," it has an undercurrent of horse-sense that covers much that is broad and somewhat shocking. The idealist will find no amusement in these pages, the purist will hold up horrified hands at the slang, but the hustling young American will ha, ha, and his father will chuckle.

Ikey is started out on his first trip to sell goods for his father's firm in Cincinnati and, as he says, he takes his nerve with him. With a nine-million-dollar Pa behind him, Ikey thought he might spend money and had the courage of his convictions. But he writes that every time he spends fifty cents he mentions the firm's name, so that it is good advertising. He doesn't get many orders, but he loses his heart to several stenographers and actresses. One Mary affects him to the point of poetizing. The reader will admit that the verses would have brought credit to a smarter boy than Ikey. For the benefit of other "Marys at the Mill," they are here given:

O Mary
When you pound that old machine,
You are
Very fair to look upon, I ween!
See your
Fairy fingers chasing
First at
Letters then at spacing.
At the
Typer you're the limit, O my Queen!

O Mary,
At the Mill, I love to see
Your fingers
Hop around from key to key;
When I
Dictate to you dearest.
In my Heart I hold you nearest,
'Cause I
Hope that some day you'll dictate to me!

When his father read the above lines he wrote back that if he had ever had any suspicion his son was a poet he would have taken a broomstick and knocked the lyrics out of him. He adds: "I think if I had you here now I'd make an earnest effort to stand you on your head and spill a few of your hexameters over the carpet." The trip ends with a characteristic exchange of telegrams.

IKEY'S LETTERS TO HIS FATHER. By George V. Hobart, author of "John Henry," etc. Published by C. W. Dillingham Company, New York.

Impressive Poetic Drama.

Mr. Percy Mackaye's "Sappho and Phaon" is distinctly one of the most interesting poetic dramas of the year, in some respects the most interesting. It reveals a scholarship, a passion for poetic beauty, a gift for dramatic characterization and construction that lift the author to an eminent position of achievement and promise.

Sappho and Phaon marks Mr. Mackaye as one of those who find in classic antiquity the world of beauty, the embrace of whose glowing forms inflames their imaginations. In his preface the author ascribes his inspiration especially to that "incomparable undertaking, mysterious with the promise of hidden beauty and human revelation, the excavation of Herculaneum."

Keeping close to this source of inspiration he opens this drama with a prologue cast in a half-ruined chamber in one of the Herculean excavations. The dramatis personae are several archaeologists and Italian laborers. Chief among the former is Medbury, both archaeologist and poet. He is in a rapture over some great finds—a make-up box, once owned by Actius, the Pompeian player, and the scroll of tragedy by Varius, the poet—"Sappho and Phaon," played as its inscription reads before Virgil and Horace. The others having left him, as he sits there in a dream of the antique time, the old figures come forth upon the stage before him. A high promontory overlooking the Aegean is the setting for the first. Here are introduced Atthis, who loves Sappho's brother, Anactoria, friend of Sappho's, in love with Alcaeus, the poet, who in turn is enamored of Sappho, as is also Pittacus, Tyrant of Mythelene; finally Sappho, herself, the tenth Muse, between whose lips "the wild bees of persuasion hive." The latter part of the act consists of scenes that are veritable Alma Tademas. Up from the sea comes Phaon's slave—a slave, however, who once has seen the goddess Aphrodite and hence walks appareled in her celestial light. Sappho from the height looks down upon him—and looking, loves. He approaches and reveals a dove caught in his net to be sacrificed to Poseidon for the life of his sick child. Sappho persuades him to release this bird of Aphrodite. In his yielding and so defrauding Poseidon lies the germ of the tragedy precipitated by the offended divinity. Meantime Phaon's net has been torn. He and Sappho fasten it upon a tripod and a caryatid and mend it together. While Phaon enspelled gazes at her through the net she weaves the meshes around his fingers, symbolizing how Aphrodite has entangled both in the strong net of love. Here enters Thalassa, the slave woman who has borne children unto Phaon, but whom in his obsession with Sappho he has forgotten. Alcaeus seeks Phaon to work his ruin. The god assists him by conjuring a mist wherein Phaon, groping for Alcaeus, kills by mistake his own little son, Bion. Moreover, because he has not sacrificed to Poseidon, his other child dies, too. At this point appears the mother, Thalassa, whose misery together with their common loss now awakens in Phaon the passion of pity and of paternity and the sense of his infidelity:

"Mother of them, my slave-mate,
Come with me! I—thousand I—shall draw them again to us—call their Flitting ghosts back into flesh and blood—warm again in our arms!"

Sappho having watched in anguish and despair now ascends the steps of Aphrodite's shrine, whence with a highly passionate and poetic exclamation she leaps into the sea, apostrophizing it thus:

"Another wave has broken at your feet
And moaning wanes into oblivion.
But not its radiance * * * That flame am I
Nor Thou Poseidon shall extinguish me.
My spirit is thy changeling, and returns
To her who glows beyond the stars of birth.
* * * Clasp me in your wings of sunrise
Burning, for see! I go forth to you, burning Still—Aphrodite!"

The ardor of these lines suffuses the whole poem in a poetic atmosphere appropriate to the theme. There is a unique charm in the setting of the play in the imagination of a modern, the poet Medbuy.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO TO BE SOLD OUT.

Famous Italian Author, Though He Earns a Handsome Income By His Pen, Has Lived Beyond His Means and Now His Creditors Have Swooped Down Upon Him—Some Examples of His Extravagant Tastes—Morichini's Novel Ruthlessly Exposing Roman Society Leads To An Assault Upon the Author—He Brings An Action Against His Assailant That He May Have An Opportunity of Publicly Demonstrating the Truth of His Picture—Latest Italian Literary News.

[From a Courier-Journal Staff Correspondent.]

Florence, June 26.—Rumor has it that the affairs of Signor Gabriele D'Annunzio have reached that stage which Wilkins Micawber was wont to describe as "a crisis." The author of "Francesca di Rimini" has received immense sums for his writings, but large as his income is he spends more than he makes and now he is to be sold out. He has extravagant tastes in most things, especially in matters sartorial. Here is a little inventory of his wardrobe which appeared in a Neapolitan journal:

Shirts, 72; socks of all kinds, 12 dozen; hats, evening suits, smoking coats, shooting jackets, innumerable; gloves for walking, 48 pairs; evening gloves, 24 pairs; umbrellas, of violet hue, 8; parasols, green, 10; handkerchiefs, 20 dozen; cravats, resplendent and varied, 150; waistcoats, 10; shoes for walking, 14 pairs; slippers, "soft, silent and tremulous," 2 pairs.

When D'Annnunzio went to Egypt his boxes contained among other things forty-eight shirts and 150 neckties, while he also carried with him ten green sunshades and eight violet umbrellas. He liked Egypt, but the camels objected to him, and he almost moved the Sphinx. In the gay set with which he consorts in Florence there have been two suicides this season due to pecuniary embarrassment. D'Annunzio is a pessimist of the pessimists, but I imagine he finds too much in life to minister to his vanity to contemplate putting an end to his existence because his creditors are after him. But it is rather ominous that one of his latest fancies was to order a costly marble tombstone for himself.

Mario Virgliano has just published a book entitled "Gli Allegri Compari di Borgodrolo," in which the hero is called Signor Pickwick. Pickwick in his second and Italian existence, is a poet and endeavors to conduct two opposing newspapers in the town of Borgodrolo. The book is lively, highly amusing and abundant in the humorous and farcical element we have learned to call Pickwickian.

There are two books just now very much before the Italian public. The first is De Amicis' "Nel Regno dell' Amore," the other "Semi Su Pietre" of U. L. Morichini. The latter has exhausted its first edition in less than eight weeks and has made a stir in Roman circles perhaps unequaled by a modern novel. The story concerns the life of the "Black" gentry of Rome and is written by a young man of remarkable ability, who in it has set forth ideas of reform in the church entirely different from those of "Il Santo." At sixteen he appeared on the stage of scholarship with the translation of a Greek document of extraordinary importance; "The Doctrine of the Twelve Apostles," accompanying it with polemical articles, which appeared in various periodicals.

Born in what is known as the "Black" set in Rome, he observed closely its ways and, when still pursuing his official studies, he planned the volume which on its appearance rent Roman society asunder and gave birth to a scandal still the talk of the day. The author proved himself too much of a realist. Certain "Blacks" who recognized themselves, refused to accept truth as his apology. He set forth his idea of Catholicism, and his own high clerical set, offended by his large-minded and modern views, denounced him as a rebel. On the other side, the "Christian Democracy," who greedily read the book, found in it a condemnation of their systems and began a violent attack through letters and criticism. On the 14th of April Signor Morichini was assaulted in the "Circolo of S. Peter," of which club he was a member. His assailant, an impetuous young man, who had misinterpreted the spirit of the book, fell on the author, striking him with his fists and insulting him with coarse epithets.

Signor Morichini has now brought an action against his assailant. Himself intensely religious, possessed of confidence in his jokes, Signor Morichini welcomes the publicity of a trial as affording him an opportunity to prove the truth of his picture of Roman society. At present he is engaged upon a poetical dramatic composition of great importance.

Among foreign authors now talked of in Italy is the famous "Ellen Key." Both in Germany and Italy this Swedish writer and exponent of the woman's cause is hailed as a prophet. She lectured lately at Milan and was received with lively applause. At present she is at Rome, where she is detained by a slight accident, which interferes with much walking. She expects to spend next autumn in Florence.

Among the authors who have spent part of the year in Florence was Winfield Scott Moody, whose stories of life among art connoisseurs and purchasers are running in Scribner's.

Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner, who dramatized "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and who began her career by arranging "Miranda of the Balcony" for Mrs. Fiske, is living now in Berlin. Her husband, Prof. A. Flexner, brother of Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller University and discoverer of the cure for spinal meningitis, is pursuing studies in that city. Mrs. Flexner, like the author of "Mrs. Wiggs," is from Louisville.

Few outsiders know that there is still living in Florence the American author, whose fame was made by one single little book and at a word from Ruskin. Some twenty or more years ago "The Story of Ida" was read everywhere. The author, Miss Alexander, always known as "Francesca," is now an elderly lady, and, with her mother of ninety, lives in a wonderfully artistic apartment in the Piazza Santa Maria Novella. A more ambitious work on art illustrated by herself is her chief production, but the world knew her only as Ruskin's "Francesca.'

Among the American writers residing in Florence is Miss Eva Madden, of Louisville, author of "The Little Queen," "Little Crusaders" and other historical books for young people. She is a sister of Mrs. Attwood Martin, author of "Emmy Lou." Miss Madden's next book, "Two Royal Foes," a story of Queen Louisa of Prussia and Napoleon, will be brought out by McClure at Christmas in company with Mrs. Attwood Martin's "Letitia," now running in The American. The first of this author's short stories picturing the life of the German woman in her present narrow condition will appear in The Century.

The British City.

These essays by Frederick Howe are virtually an attempt to find the ideal city or the way to make one. The British City is not absolutely such an ideal, but it is approaching this. Its excellence Mr. Howe finds in the fact of its growing democracy, in the fact that large business interests are identified with the city, not against it—municipal ownership having gradually gone on its way of absorbing street railways, electric lighting, gas, water enterprises, besides other things that have to do with matters sanitary, ethical and educational. Taken as a whole, says Mr. Howe, it is doubtful if contemporary politics in any portion of the world presents a more disinterested, honest and efficient body of public officials than are to be found in the Town Councils of Great Britain.

Despite this fair picture there are evils Mr. Howe sees which to the reader seem almost commensurate with the excellencies. Prime among these evils is the domination of the city by the members of Parliament and especially the House of Lords, which has no sympathy with the ideals of democracy that are being worked out in the cities. So, even as in America, the final view one gets is of those two ubiquitous powers—democracy and privilege — contending for mastery. Still because this conflict is on against the powers that would make for good does not by any means lessen one's faith and interest in these beneficient agencies. On the contrary, the fact makes the attention all the sharper to such achievements or efforts to win in this conflict as are described in Mr. Howe's chapters on Glasgow, London, the city and the tramways, municipality and labor. Among these the chapter on Glasgow, the "city of thrift and conscience," is especially to be recommended. The chapter comparing American and British cities is at once stimulating and comforting. If in some respects the former are inferior they are, on the other hand, found superior in open-mindedness to ideas, in freedom from feudal abuses, the tyranny of ideas inherited from earlier civilizations, freedom from a land monopoly in control of legislation. But these are not virtues in which it is safe to rest content. Above them, or as additional ones to be cultivated, are suggested: British thrift, intelligent conscience, the service of a high-grade of citizenship in municipal affairs.

Summarizing his deductions made from observations in Europe and this country, Mr. Howe sees at work a great movement. This is founded on economic matters, and everywhere, says he, the city is the center of this new activity which tends toward a democratic decentralization, toward the putting into use of powers resident in the municipality for the relief of poverty, for the development, physical, mental, moral, of the masses. For good or evil, the city, he continues, is the most portentous fact of the Twentieth century, and he wonders that no great mind has lent its constructive powers to the city. At this point Mr. Howe would seem to forget Mr. Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, to whom the book is diffusively dedicated. However, if Mr. Howe has failed to find this single constructive mind he has by no means failed to find active constructive forces. He is ardently optimistic, primarily resting his hopes upon the morality of social justice, the "mission of industrial democracy to the world," which will eventually create the cities beautiful wherein health, comfort, education, protection—in fact, all that makes life worth living, may be found.

Reed Anthony.

If our knowledge of the lives of our fellowmen be scant, decidedly it is not the fault of the purveyors of literature, the publishers, nor is it from any reticence on the part of human nature itself which yearly seems to grow more loquacious. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker, every man of them stands ready to tell his simple annals, to expatiate upon the glories of his trade, till one begins to think this sad old world a pleasant enough place where everyone is doing something so prodigiously interesting to himself and forsooth, as he hopes, to his fellowman. American life, with its variety of phases seems especially to provoke this kind of literature. One example of it is this book, set forth as the autobiography of a "cowman." The author begins his story simply: "I can truthfully say that my entire life has been spent with cattle." Then he proceeds to outline and elaborate this life from the days when, as a small boy of ten years, over fifty years ago, he crossed with his father to West Virginia and drove over the mountains to the Shenandoah valley 200 young steers. The autobiography includes phases of ranch life in Colorado, Texas, Virginia and elsewhere, with special emphasis on the affairs of the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Cattle Company. It is a tale without any particular literary distinction, having as its chief merit its beng a direct transcript of the ranch life of the last fifty years, a life not without difficulty and adventure.

What Great Writers Work For.

No great writer has ever consciously striven for a deathless fame. Such a writer is wholly absorbed in his work. Any vague desire he may hitherto have nourished is displaced by a distinct vision of beauty and truth which eclipses every ulterior object, demanding only and imperatively its own embodiment. Like Horace, he must be able to say exegi monumentum before he exclaims Non omnis moriar!

The prosperity of writers with readers of their own generation is no security for their hold upon posterity. In present conditions it would almost seem that the near regard is won at the expense of the near future. It may be that hereafter each new generation must, because of its new and more exigent demands, have and cherish only its own authors.—[H. M. Alden in Harper's for July.

Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge, honorary president of the First International Congress on Cancer, Heidelberg, surgeon in the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, has a comprehensive article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal on the subject of The Transmissibility and Curability of Cancer. He says that apart from expert testimony and facts the laity has a way of settling things for itself, not infrequently reaching conclusions on subjects that the medical fraternity have not even considered seriously. Thus the public has a growing conviction that cancer is contagious and much inconvenience and suffering have resulted. On one occasion that he cites all the nurses in a small hospital struck for fear of contracting cancer from a recently-admitted patient. Dr. Bainbridge proceeds then to consider certain factors playing important roles, viz.: heredity, congenital transmission and infection or contagion. The conclusion is that the contagiousness or infectiousness of cancer is far from proved; that communication of the disease from man to man is so rare that it can be practically disregarded, and that in its first stages cancer is curable by operation, with chances in favor of its nonrecurrence. Many cases are cited in support of these opinions.

The Circle for July is out with a cover design appropriate to the Fourth and to the noisy boy who rules the country on that day with his inevitable firecracker. The opening article by Frederick D. Greene, assistant general agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, gives us a most refreshing insight into the practical workings of that great organization after sixty-three years' hard-won experience among the very needy.

One of the serious articles of the July Century, the fiction number, is a discussion by Prof. Brander Matthews of "The American of the Future," a plea for national ideals that shall be communal and not individual. Ther is no reason to suppose, Prof. Matthews holds, that we shall not make our profit out of the best that every contributing blood can bring, since this is exactly what we have been doing in the past.

Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine for July contains several strong national editorials from the pen of the editor, Hon. Thomas E. Watson. Holding a thoroughly independent position, Mr. Watson deals with the law-breaking corporations and the wrong-doings of the rascals who trample upon the laws of the people in a fashion and with a fearlessness that has no parallel in the history of the present. The editorials are illustrated with striking cartoons by that thought-compelling cartoonist, Gordon Nye.

The Outing Magazine for July is a big and tempting issue, alive with high-class fiction and with special articles of present-day importance. "The Tales of a Collector of Whiskers" has in it a second episode, entitled "The Bearded Peasant's Revenge." These tales are delightfully absurd and full of quaint humor. A second installment of Mr. Emerson Hough's story, entitled "The Way of a Man," also appears. It deepens the impression made by the first installment—that this story will be one to be remembered. The special articles are ideal for midsummer reading.

A cheerful piece of tomfoolery will be found in the July Bohemian, entitled "How Sherlock Holmes Caught Raffles." It is a story of the greatest of detectives and the greatest of criminals in fiction. Owen Kildare, who has been called "the literary prodigy of the times," has a strong story entitled "The Mollycoddle," a tale of New York's seamy side. "The North Pole at Last" is full of absurd humor. "The Lady of Fancyland" is a charming bit of fiction daring. Four storiettes will help while away a summer day.

A description of the manufacturing methods of a furniture company of some prominence engaged in the making of desks, sectional bookcases and filing devices is freely illustrated in Wood Craft for July. An outspoken American sends from abroad a first-hand criticism of furniture and also furnishes some suggestive ideas for manufacturers and designers.

When the editors of Success Magazine served up in their July issue a most interesting and illuminating article on the free and easy ways of the President, they could find no more appropriate nor timely title than "Roosevelt—Democrat." Mr. Roosevelt has been referred to for some time as an ideal Democrat in politic, and this article, a series of incidents prepared by Robert Lee Dunn, who, as a campaign photographer, accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on many of his trips, shows the real unaffected democratic spirit that has made him the most popular man that ever occupied the White House.

"In the Land of Chance" is the title under which Harold S. Symmes tells in Putnam's Monthly for July a story of one of the typical mining camps of Nevada, with incidents that have been almost exactly duplicated in real life since this tale was written.

Journalistic timeliness and well-considered variety characterize the July issue of the Atlantic, though stresss is laid particularly on government and politics. In "The Power that Makes for Peace," by President H. S. Pritchett, of the Institute of Technology, we have a singularly vigorous and penetrating article, and in Samuel P. Orth's "Government by Impulse" an essay in which, among other things, American campaign tendencies are exposed.

In the World's Work for July Percival Landon, whose new book "Under the Sun" was recently published by Doubleday, Page and Company, contributes an exceedingly interesting article on "The Retiring of Lord Cromer." Mr. Landon refers to this English nobleman "as the one absolute monarch in the world to-day and probably the greatest of living benefactors of his time." Mr. Landon touches upon the vital points in the problem of Egypt and shows himself a master of his subject.

Transatlantic Tales, the magazine that publishes in English the best contemporary stories of other lands, is running a series of stories that rival or surpass the Sherlock Holmes and Raffles tales. Indeed, Arsene Lupin, the French master thief and charmingly impudnt gentleman, who is the hero of the series, finally meets and outwits Sherlock Holmes himself.

"Mr. Dooley" tells about the presidential candidates in the July American Magazine. The cartoons are by McCutcheon. Roosevelt, Taft, Fairbanks, Foraker, Root, Beveridge and others are "mentioned." "A fine lot iv men f'r anny Raypublican to choose from an' an akelly fine list f'r him to reject fr'm."

The Woman's Home Companion for July contains the opening installment of a new serial by Anthony Hope, entitled "Helena's Path." It is a most interesting and thoroughly wholesome story, embodying all the delightful romance of the Zenda stories, though somewhat more realistic. Its publication implies a rich literary treat for the numerous admirers of the author who gave us the "Dolly Dialogues."

A Good Word For the Jamestown Exposition.

The Jamestown Exposition has been having a hard time with the New York papers of late. Its faults have been glaringly proclaimed, despite the interesting fact (as told last week in Harper's Weekly) that the New York State House is far from complete, and the Government pier the most incomplete structure of all. And its virtues have been overlooked or damned with faint praise. So to settle the matter once and for all, it sent for W. I. Buchanan, late of the Buffalo Pan-American Exposition and the right-hand man of David R. Francis at the St. Louis World's Fair. Mr. Buchanan says that the character and scope of the Exposition are vastly greater and more extensive than he had anticipated; that there are, indeed, certain features of the Exposition that are, in every sense, distinctly better than those of any exposition since Chicago, notably the exhibits of the United States Government; secondly, the States Exhibit Building, both of itself and the exhibits it contains, he thinks, surpass any State exhibits heretofore attempted. Even if nothing more were done to the buildings and their contents than had been done when Mr. Buchanan was there, there would still be a show worth looking at, for, he said, "there is vastly more to be seen and enjoyed in architectural beauty, in landscape and water effects, than anyone has reason to expect."

Meanwhile a great deal has been done. Between three and four thousand men have been set to work completing the buildings, the roadways, walks and grounds. Mr. James M. Barr, the former successful president of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, has been made the head of the Exposition, and a new director of advertising has been appointed.

Virginians are not an excitable people; they never get nervous, and they do not hustle. If the truth were known the feeling that hustling is a little underbred has permeated the entire people, and they all go at an enterprise slowly; but when they begin, they stick to it. This is the Virginian characteristic: that they never give up an enterprise, a cause, a friend, or an enmity. If they take hold, they keep hold.

The setbacks the Exposition has received have taken effect to get up Virginia's fighting blood. The Fair will be a greater success for the dull opening.

One Music.

There is a high place in the upper air,
So high that all the jarring sounds of Earth—
All cursing and all crying and all mirth—
Melt to one murmur and one music there.
And so, perhaps, high over worm and clod,
There is an unimaginable goal,
Where all the wars and discords of the soul
Make one still music to the heart of God.
—[Edwin Markham in the Nautilus for July.

Author and Publisher.

The author of "The Cruise of the Shining Light," Norman Duncan, is a slow and careful writer during the early stages of a story. During the opening chapters progress is difficult and many changes are made and many passages entirely rewritten. Toward the end, however, he always finds that there is a marked difference. for then both words and ideas come readily, and he writes rapidly and with few changes.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. report that they are just having to again send to press Willis Fletcher Johnson's remarkably comprehensive, yet interesting and spirited book, "Four Centuries of the Panama Canal."

The school book publishing houses of Effingham Maynard & Co. and Charles E. Merrill & Co., united and incorporated in 1893 as Maynard, Merrill & Co. Messrs. Walter E. Maynard and Effingham Maynard have severed their connection with the company, the ownership of which now vests in Messrs. Charles E. Merrill, Everett Yeaw, Edwin C. Merrill and Charles E. Merrill, Jr., who from this date will conduct the business under the name of Charles E. Merrill Company.

Publicity for wrongdoing is the best protection of the public against food adulterations; hence the so-called "muzzling" feature of the new Pure Food Bill which has been presented to the Pennsylvania Legislature has been eliminated. The sections providing for the protection of the innocent dealer have been retained. In Dr. Wiley's new book on "Foods and Their Adulterations" much information of interest regarding Federal laws on the subject will be found.

President Roosevelt, in advising his audience on the occasion of the semi-centennial celebration of the Michigan Agricultural School at Lansing to devote some time to interesting light reading, said: "I cordially recommend the first chapter of 'Aunt Jane of Kentucky' for use as a tract in all families where the men folks tend to selfish or thoughtless or overbearing disregard of the rights of their womenkind." A fourth printing of Eliza Calvert Hall's book is now announced by the publishers, Little, Brown & Co.

Friday Evening, July 12.—The New York stock market was quiet with a firm undertone, closing prices showing fractional net gains.

Money on call was firm at 2 to 4½ per cent., ruling at 3½. Time loans were strong on long dates, but weaker on short dates. Sterling exchange was weak.

The Chicago wheat market closed strong, the September delivery showing a net gain of ⅝c. Corn was up ¼c. Oats were ⅜c higher.

The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 5 to 11 points, moved within narrow limits and closed 5 points higher to 12 points lower than opening prices.

The Chicago cattle and sheep markets were strong. The hog market was 5c higher.

"In the Louisville appointments Gov. Beckham has thrown down the Courier-Journal awful hard."—[Elizabethtown News.

The writer of this seems equally indifferent to his grammar and his facts. Anyhow, it is a false statement as far as it seeks to convey the impression that the Courier-Journal had any other than a general and public interest in Governor Beckham's municipal appointments. The Editor of the Elizabethtown News claims to be a decent and an honest man. He is a neighbor whom we should be glad to respect. But he has so acquired the habit of misreading the Courier-Journal that he appears incapable of referring to it except to malign it. Our good opinion may be of small account to him; but he ought to have wit enough to go farther away from base in selecting the subjects of his invention and the objects of his ill-humor.

Just Plain Yellow Bricks.

The exigency of the modern newspaper for fresh and striking matter, coupled with the ignorance and unscrupulessness of the space writer—a comparatively new and wholly irresponsible factor in daily journalism—will account for the many anachronisms which find their way into the press of our time.

There is nothing whatever in the Japanese war-talk except the need to fill so many columns during a dull summer. Japan does not want to fight. Neither do we. Japan is not ready to fight. No more are we. There is nothing to fight about. The California incident, together with the dual character of our Government, is perfectly understood by the ruling powers in Japan. It is too early to talk about the Philippines as a disturbing cause. In short, the whole farrago of stuff and nonsense, some of it manufactured out of whole cloth and all of it silly and sensational, has no other basis than that of stuffing alike the eternal maw of the Mergenthalers along with the public credulity.

There is something to talk about in the Pacific Naval demonstration; its unseasonableness; its costliness and its needlessless; but these ugly features do not attract the indolent, indifferent and short-sighted editorial scribblers, who rarely see anything until it has happened, just as the space-writers see most things that never have happened, and never will happen.

The other day the reporter, whose knowledge of history is limited to what he has witnessed with his own eyes, had Prentiss, the famous Mississippi orator, dying in New Orleans—as a piece of current news—just fifty-seven years after the event.

Quite an ado is being made of a scion of the British Aristocracy who lately worked his way across the Atlantic in order to earn his living in America. Ordinarily such cases are pure inventions. Generally, "there is no sich a person." In the present instance, however, the name is given as that of the heir to the Earldom of Leitrim, Francis Patrick Clements. As a matter of fact there happens to be such a member of the House of Leitrim. He is a younger brother of the present Earl, who is under thirty years of age, and married, though not yet a father. If he has no male heir, and Francis Patrick outlives him, why Francis Patrick will then be the Earl of Leitrim. Until then, presumably, the younger brother has nothing at all and quits England to earn his living abroad precisely as hundreds and thousands of penniless younger sons have done before him.

Two or three weeks ago, Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German Ambassador, was about to retire because of an incurable illness. He has just arrived in New York "the picture of health," with no thought of retiring.

And so it goes from the discovery of subterranean caverns under the city of Minneapolis—undreamed of before although for years being filled up with concrete at vast outlay by hundreds of workmen—to the latest sea-serpent, one story after another doing duty and going the rounds, sometimes misleading, often cruel, and always the offsprings of pure cussedness, remarkable chiefly for its stupidity.

N. B. The latest is a Japanese Spy, "caught drawing plans of a fortress" in California—why not a whale caught in the headwaters of Salt River?

Tell It To the Marines.

From a Democratic member of Congress, who is firmly of the opinion that the President "has all along been planning to put the Republican party in a hole," we use his exact language, "in order to force his own nomination," the Editor of the Courier-Journal has received a letter from which we make the following extract:

"I read your article the other day defending Roosevelt. You don't know the man. His game the last two years has been to break up both parties, to organize a Roosevelt following strong enough to hold the two opposing party fragments, and then to precipitate a crisis which will place extraordinary power in his hands and enable him to shape things just to suit himself. This entire Japanese business has been worked to that end. What he is after is to goad Japan into a hostile attitude. The Naval demonstration in the Pacific has no other object before it. If by hook, or crook, he can get some pretext for martial law, you will soon see what he will do with recalcitrant newspapers and bucking politicians. Mark my words, Teddy means business and is out neither for his amusement, nor his health."

Our Congressional friend, who let us say is not Senator Tillman, nor Champ Clark, writes, nevertheless, very much as they would write. Gentlemen of this cast of thought refuse to see anything but that which is sinister and evil in the President. They read history, and, by the profound dissimulation of the historic buccaneers of War and Statecraft whom they encounter, they are warned to beware of ambitious men carrying big sticks. But, they fail, we think, to mark the distinction between past times and these times, other peoples and the people of the United States, the Twentieth of the Centuries and its dark and bloody predecessors.

There is certainly a deal of indifferentialism abroad in the land. Men who are keen after dollars are not very sensitive to doctrines. There are also many social and theoretic, sentimental and humane notions stalking through the addled brains of the ignorant and visionary. But the country is not yet ripe for revolution. It is still far from rotten. Jefferson never said a wiser thing than that error is harmless when truth is free to combat it.

We live in an age of publicity. Time and space have both been annihilated by modern invention. News flies from point to point upon the instant and, whilst it may be that this gives some advantage to the unscrupulous use of power, this is not enough to put the masses at long, or serious disadvantage. The button that is pressed at Washington to order the arrest of the conspirator in California, or the suspension of the newspaper in South Carolina, will quickly be met by other buttons. We have had three Presidents assassinated in a single generation—for nothing—what show of life would a fourth have, who undertook to play Diaz?

Not a bit of it! We have not gone as far as that quite yet, either in disregard of law, or in the adulation of heroes. Mr. Roosevelt is not a fool, whilst, even to meditate what our correspondent indicates would prove him a madman.

The Pacific demonstration is certainly ill-timed. It will prove very costly. It is of a piece with the braggadocio sensationalism of the big-stick policy. It will probably be brought to strict question by the next Congress. If it should result in a war, or the appearance of war with Japan, it would prove an unpopular, not a popular war, and would hurl President Roosevelt from his pedestal. If in total disregard of Constitutional limitations and restraints, he should attempt to lord it anywhere, or over anybody, he would be brought to a round-turn, hurried before a lunacy commission and taken away to a sanitarium, whilst the people would proceed to the nomination and election of a successor.

Let us not forget that God still reigns and that the Government and Constitution are yet intact.

Hardware Men On Revision.

The Hardware Dealers' Magazine has published a number of letters from leaders in that industry on the subject of tariff revision. Some of them hope no action will be taken, but a large number are earnestly in favor of a change. One man thinks the tariff should be revised, but that the question should be kept out of politics. He does not explain how it is going to be kept out so long as it is a party issue.

One of the letters advocates a tariff commission of a nonpartisan character, though an experience with commissions has not been encouraging. The commission idea is a dodge to excuse Congress from doing its duty. Several of the letter writers are much disturbed with reference to the effect of our policy on our foreign trade. George P. Hart, vice president of the Stanley Works, Stamford, Conn., says that his views have been changed radically, and he adds:

"As a manufacturer making goods which are sold in nearly all foreign markets, and speaking from an experience of many years, I affirm that the best interests of the American manufacturer in the lines with which I am familiar will be served by an early, large, but preferably a gradual, reduction in our present tariff, and that, failing this, a far greater and more serious disturbance will threaten when the next period of depression sets in and our manufacturers find themselves confronted with a shrinking home market and a foreign market crippled and curtailed by reason of a tariff policy which tends to antagonize the countries in which we find our best foreign markets and the best outlets for our surplus products. For all of the reasons thus briefly indicated, I am heartily and earnestly in favor of tariff revision at the earliest possible date."

It is cheerful to see our manufacturers looking out for the markets of the world. When that idea becomes fixed they are soon converted to the idea of a more rational tariff.

The Tobacco Trust.

An important step was taken in New York a few days ago, when the Federal Government instituted proceedings in the United States Circuit Court of that city for the dissolution of the Tobacco Trust. This action is taken under the Sherman Act of July 2, 1890, which provides that the court may restrain and prevent the operations of a combination to create a monopoly. James C. McReynolds, the special Government attorney, who brought the action, claims that while an injunction is asked, if the court finds that the appointment of receivers is necessary to prevent operations of this combination it may appoint them. The alternative is within the discretion of the court. If an injunction alone were asked and granted it might prevent the purchase of tobacco by the combination, but if receivers are appointed the business would be continued, the public would not be embarrassed by inability to purchase tobacco, and the receiver might sell the various factories to independent concerns, thus effectively destroying the combination.

This, in a few words, shows the far-reaching possibilities of the movement which, it is said, will be vigorously prosecuted. The public is accustomed to hear the Tobacco Trust spoken of as a great combination formed for the control of prices both of the raw product and the manufactured article, in the same category with the Steel Trust and the Oil Trust, organized for a similar purpose. But comparatively few are aware of the magnitude of this organization, the large amount of capital which it represents, and the unjust effect it has upon the agriculturists who raise the staple, to say nothing of the increased cost of the manufactured article to the consumer. Sixty-five corporations connected with the Tobacco Trust and twenty-nine individuals are named as defendants in the petition filed.

This instrument shows that the American Tobacco Company was organized in 1890 to acquire five competing cigarette manufactories, with joint assets of less than $25,000,000, and an annual consumption of nearly 15,000,000 pounds of tobacco. Within less than two decades its total assets have increased until they now exceed $275,000,000. It also shows that by the absorption and elimination of competitors, the destruction of formidable opposition, and the entry of the trust into various departments of manufacture and trade, domestic and foreign, in tobacco products, it has practically succeeded in monopolizing or controlling the trade in its own interest. It charges that the members of the combination have divided up the business of the world among them; that they annually purchase 475,000,000 pounds of domestic leaf, and of the total product in the United States manufacture, sell and distribute tobacco of the value of more than $280,000,000, 80 per cent. of the smoking and plug tobacco, 95 per cent. of the snuff, 80 per cent. of the cigarettes and 75 per cent. of the small cigars, and at an early day, unless prevented, will completely monopolize the entire industry.

There is no State more interested in this proceeding than Kentucky. Being the largest producer of tobacco, of both the light, or Burley, and the dark variety, its planters have suffered from the exactions of this pernicious monopoly more than those of any other State. Formerly when there were independent factories there was competition between the buyers, as in wheat or other products, and their crops brought fair prices. There was competitive buying both from the planters direct and from the city warehouses, but the trust, being the chief purchaser, has been able, in great measure, to fix the price far below its real value measured by the sale of the product. Latterly the planters have formed associations, pledged not to sell direct to the trust, but to hold their crops for fair and remunerative prices, under control of the association. By this means the price of tobacco to the producer has been enhanced by a form of combination which does not come under the prohibition of the Sherman Law. If the proceedings which have been instituted against the trust prove successful there will be no further need of resort to such means by the producers, as the price will then be regulated by the natural law of supply and demand. The principle of both forms of combination is objectionable, as leading to abuses in one as the other. While the movement of the planters has, as a whole been marked with justice and respect for the rights of those of their class who decline to participate, there have been exceptional instances of hostility manifested against them, in injury done to their plant beds or growing crops, which cannot be too strongly condemned. The dissolution of the trust will put an end to this practice, as well as the monopoly which has so long robbed both producers and consumers.

The President Perplexed?

The President is said to be somewhat perplexed as to the course he shall pursue toward E. H. Harriman. The Interstate Commerce Commission and other close advisers counsel him not to proceed against the railroad juggler, while Attorney Kellogg, the legal expert especially engaged to investigate the case, says to "go after" him, by all means. Not to proceed means to disregard a group of important men. Not to proceed means to discredit the work of one whose ability in the first instance was considered of such a high quality as to justify his employment in so momentous a matter as the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company. Hence the presidential quandary.

If Mr. Roosevelt is consistent he will not give any thought to the feelings of his advisers. The question of crediting or discrediting will not trouble him. Having asked for expert advice, he will not be handicapped or restricted by it. His own impulse will be the deciding factor.

Expert advice did not bother him in the case of the Panama canal. He started out ostensibly to let the world's foremost engineers settle the question whether to build a sea-level or a lock canal. From different points of the compass came the leading lights of the profession to Washington to wrestle with and pass upon the great query. After full discussion, the conference decided that the nature of the country, the purpose of the waterway and other considerations made a sea-level plan the wiser and more feasible. Scarcely had the meeting adjourned before the President announced that, no matter what the experts had decided, he was for a lock canal. So it is a lock canal that is under construction on the isthmus.

Why, then, should the President be at all perplexed by the advice of the experts in the Harriman matter? What is mere expert opinion when it collides with presidential impulse? Presidential impulse is the only thing infallible. It gives the keynote to the Rooseveltian regime. Presidential impulse has settled other mighty issues, and it will have to settle this one.

Credit Where Credit Is Due.

The Ohio Sun celebrates its second birthday by publishing an industrial edition, in which it reviews the growth and prosperity of Columbus and gives credit for its success to a progressive public that has accorded it the indorsement of advertising and reading patronage. The policy of the Sun, as set forth in its editorial columns, has been to be clean, honest, impartial, newsy, but not yellow. Its aim has been to keep abreast of the times, even a little ahead of them, without running into sensationalism or sacrificing purity.

"And what has been the result? The convictions of the founders of the Sun have been fully justified. The people of the community have recognized real character and merit in newspaper-making, and have rewarded it substantially. The Sun's success has been greater in its first year than that of any other publication in this country."

One man, or several men, may plan a daily newspaper. Its founders and its public, in a partnership mutually profitable, make its growth possible. The newspaper can take care of its own morals, but the community must aid in creating its prosperity. A virile community begets a vigorous press. Preaching and teaching upon an empty stomach is full of discouragements. Fortunately, when a newspaper of ideals and ideas is established in a center of population and industrial activity there is an excellent opportunity for virtue to win its reward, but, when its publishers find it squarely upon its feet after a year's endeavors credit is due not only to its staff, but also to business men who have recognized its merit as an advertising medium and readers who have responded to its efforts to serve the news hot with the coffee and rolls and to promote the spread of sanity and honesty and good will between men. Read its leading newspaper and you have a key to the character of a city. Exceptions may prove the rule for a time, but eventually the fittest survives. Readers and advertisers who support a vicious press are in a measure responsible for its vices. By their newspapers you may know them. Their sins will find them out. If our youthful contemporary lives carefully up to its platform and continues to enjoy the prosperity it boasts upon the anniversary of its establishment, not only the Sun, but also the city of Columbus will deserve congratulations upon the occasion of each of its birthdays.

Go South, Young Man.

Mr. Richard Harding Davis, writing recently from the Ivory Coast of Africa, said that he had visited many tropical places with more than a local reputation for heat, but found none of them as much like a furnace as in New York during a period of extremely high temperature in July or August. To realize the truth of the statement it is only necessary to read the daily reports of deaths and prostrations from heat in New York and other large American cities. Few persons think of the South as being a comfortable place of residence between June and October, as compared to the North, yet, according to a Florida newspaper, persons who would enjoy summer days of comfort and restful summer nights should live in Florida.

The West Palm Beach Tropical Sun says that Northerners who remain upon the Florida coast during the summer find the climate excellent. The thermometer rarely registers above 96 degrees, trade winds blow constantly and nights are cool, sunstroke being almost unknown. The Orlando Sentinel asserts that Floridians not only enjoy an excellent climate throughout the year, but also have the pleasure of seeing their dollars go further than those of the people of other States. The Sentinel asserts that the Floridian who earns $600 a year lives in a good six-room house surrounded by bearing fruit trees, raises all the vegetables produced in America, wears well-made clothes, sends his children to good schools, enjoys the society of the best people, takes part in public affairs, and treads the pathway of life serenely, immune from the worries and the nervous diseases common to centers of population and scenes of strenuosity.

What is claimed for Florida in the matter of climate, and as to the advantages enjoyed by the comparatively poor, is true of every Southern State. The man in New York or Chicago who earns $600 a year and has a family grills in uncomfortable rented quarters in the summer and is pinched by poverty throughout the year, while the man in the small Southern city or in the country, who has the same income, lives comfortably, clothes and educates his children, sleeps at night throughout the summer and has a good opportunity to become the owner of a home. He has, also, the opportunity to invest his savings in country real estate that brings good return and increases in value gradually but surely.

In the large cities the few win large rewards, but the many are in a condition of industrial slavery, and in many instances lives are cut short by exertions incident to attempts to escape from slavery. For the average man it is easier to earn $1 in the country than $2 in a city, and in the country $600 buys more of the solid comforts than does $1,200 in the city. Persons from the country who go to summer resorts do not go to escape the tortures of summer heat. There is rarely a night in rural Kentucky that is too warm for comfort in a well-built house. At this time of the year when the poor are clamoring to sleep in the parks in New York, because to pass the night in tenements means to broil, it is apparent that the man of limited earning capacity should go South or West, or in any other direction, to get out of the cities where the dollar goes fast but not far, and where summer means suffering and sickness and death to the poor.

An Oriental On English Drama.

A dramatic critic from the Mikado's kingdom has been giving English readers the benefit of his comment upon the English stage through the columns of the London Times, and he who reads may find much that is refreshing and enlightening. The author's naïvete, racial prejudices and antipodal viewpoint make his writings unique. He has just expressed his views of a performance of "Julius Caesar," which he witnessed in London. His principal objection he stated as follows:

"The character of Portia especially appeals to us, for she has the nobility and greatness of a Japanese lady in the middle ages, willing to sacrifice everything for her lord. But the manner in which Portia spoke to Brutus on the stage seemed strange indeed. We would consider that she addressed her husband in too equal a style. Had she been a Japanese wife she would have shown him more reverence. She put her face near to his, pleading with him, and she placed her arms around him. No Japanese wife of a man of great position would be so familiar with her lord. She would show him more respect and more deference. The Japanese wife who saw this performance would at once say: 'This is too Geisha-like.'

"I prefer the Japanese fashion here. We think in Japan that the husband is greater than the wife and that the wife should do him reverence and pay him respect. We have many good arguments to support us in so thinking, but this is not the place to advance them."

These remarks will strike the average Japanese as wholly appropriate and sound, but to the Englishman and the American they seem ironical, if not queer. To think of a dramatic performance's undergoing condemnation because the wife of the play was portrayed as too nearly the equal of her husband!

What think the champions of women's suffrage in America? And what think the so-called "suffragettes" who have been besetting the members of Parliament in London? If these want to do real missionary work they might catch a ferry to Japan. They might succeed eventually over there in establishing the equality of wife and husband, which even such barbaric nations as the United States and England recognized years ago.

Richard Mansfield is slowly recovering from nervous prostration. Thousands of persons who sat through one performance of "Peer Gynt" will marvel at the vitality of a man who walked through it every night and yet survived.

WILL ACCEPTED FOR ACT ITSELF

Open Sunday Saloons Proof Enough For Fine.

Judge Blain Hard On "Lid-Lifting" Barkeepers.

Sentences Pronounced Too Small For Appeal.

LICENSE BOARD ACTS NEXT.

With no inclination to permit any evasion or side-stepping of the Sunday-closing law, and with a firm determination to enforce the spirit and letter of Mayor Bingham's "lid" order, Judge Blain listened to fourteen cases against saloonkeepers and their bartenders in the Police Court yesterday morning and afternoon. The docket, although not an unusually long one, was not gone through with until 3 o'clock, the court having been in continuous session since 9 o'clock in the morning, with no adjournment for lunch. Of the fourteen cases heard but two of the defendants were adjudged innocent, the remainder of them being fined for the most part in the sum of $19. Marvin Hart, e-heavyweight champion pugilist, and his right-hand man were the two who went free.

The saloonkeepers and bartenders fined were: Theodore Lang, William Herman, James Wills, Charles Frazier, Gus Wempe, Dan Rodgers, Albert Humpich, Thomas Mullaney, Henry Stottman and Frank Heinbrock.

The case again William Jacke, of 737 West Jefferson street, which was transferred from Magistrate Hampton's court, was continued until July 16, because his counsel, Kennedy Helm, was out of the city.

Their Troubles Only Begun.

The fines assessed are but the beginning of the trouble the saloonkeepers found to have kept open will be drawn into. In every case the alleged attempts to lift the Sunday "lid" will come up for a final hearing before the License Board and the advisability of revoking the licenses of the offending saloonkeepers will be considered. What will happen there is merely a matter of speculation and conjecture, but the saloonkeepers who were present at yesterday's Police Court session are convinced that it is almost suicidal to their business to be caught tampering with the rivets that fasten Mayor Bingham's "lid" in place every Sunday.

* * *

Scoring For Thomas Mullaney.

Thomas Mullaney, who was charged with keeping his saloon open twice last Sunday, was given two fines. After assessing the second fine Judge Blain delivered Mullaney one of the severest arraignments from the bench that has been heard in the Police Court in many months.

"This is one of the most open, defiant and absolute violations of the law that has ever come before my notice in the many years that I have been practicing law," declared Judge Blain, his face showing his intense emotion of indignation.

"You were arrested in the morning for keeping your place open, and that should have been a sufficient warning to you that you were disobeying the law. But that you would open up again in the afternoon is inconceivable. I'll fine you $50. You can appeal it if you so desire."

Treating of Guests Barred.

Patrolmen Sang and Shehan testified that they found Mullaney's saloon open at 9 o'clock in the morning. There were men in the place at the time, but they did not see them drinking. Judge Blain decided that the law required that saloons be closed on Sunday and assessed a fine of $19. The case was no sooner finished until the second charge against Mullaney, which brought out the Judge's wrath, was heard. Corporal David Gibbons told how he entered the rear of the saloon last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and found many men and dozens of empty, open and uncorked bottles in the room. Mullaney put up the defense that the men were his guests, but Judge Blain was unable to look at the affair in that light.

Sentences All Nonappealable.

It seemed to be the policy of the court to assess fines of $19 so that the cases would be nonappealable. Nothing under a fine of $20 can be carried to a higher court. In every case heard there was ample opportunity for Judge Blain to have dismissed the men, as they were all represented by counsel who showed that no liquor was sold, but Judge Blain decided that it was not necessary to sell anything, as the law was violated when the bar-rooms were kept open.

He maintained that the order to close only specified "places where spirituous drinks are sold" in order to make plain what places came under the order to close and that a fine would be imposed wherever such a place was found open, no matter whether it was shown that drinks were sold or not. He also made it clear that the police could make the arrests without securing a warrant when the offenses were committed in their presence.

Saloon Open—Enough Said.

In the case against Albert Humpich, son of Val Humpich, the defense declared that Albert Humpich had only invited a few friends into the saloon to indulge in soft drinks. Humpich admitted this on the stand and Judge Blain assessed a fine of $19 repeating his statement that saloons should be kept closed on Sunday. Henry Stottman, who conducts a saloon at Cooper and Payne streets, testified when his case came up for hearing, that it was without his knowledge that his saloon was open. He said that his brother-in-law, Frank Heinbrock, who was also on trial charged with selling drinks, went into the saloon without his knowledge. Heinbrock declared that he had been forbidden to go into the saloon and that he forced an entrance by main strength and that several men followed him and he sold them drinks.

"Mr. Stottman," said Judge Blain before assessing the fines, "the saloon belongs to you and it is your business to see that it is kept closed. I'll fine you $19. Mr. Heinbrock, the evidence seems to show that you were not the bartender. However, you had no business in the saloon. I'll deal lightly with you; your fine is $15.

Attorneys Taken By Surprise.

Through the entire session the attorneys for the defense appeared to think it only necessary to prove that no drinks were sold. After all the evidence was heard in the case against Dan Rodgers and it was not proven that he had not sold any drinks, Attorney James P. Edwards, counsel for Rogers, said:

"You have failed to make out a case, your Honor."

"The case was made out when the saloon was open on Sunday," replied Judge Blain. "The fine will be $19."

* * *

Refuses To Increase Fine.

Attorney Aaron Kohn defended Gus Wempe, charged with keeping his saloon open after 1 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Kohn asked that the fine of Wempe be increased from $19 so that the case could be appealed.

"The fine will remain as it stands," answered Judge Blain, in a quiet but decisive tone of voice.

"Very well," replied Mr. Kohn.

* * *

No Continuances Allowed.

Every effort on the part of attorneys to retard the wheels of justice by asking continuances and postponements of trials was quickly checked, and in only one istance was a continuace granted.

"These men have had ample time to get their witnesses together," explained Judge Blain, "and their cases will be tried now. Swear in the witnesses."

Marvin Hart Dismissed.

Of all the men who appeared before Judge Blain charged with violating the Sunday closing law, only Marvin Hart, the pugilist, and his bartender, Charles Schrader, were dismissed. Hart was arrested at 12:45 o'clock last Sunday morning. The evidence showed that he and his bartender were cleaning up after Saturday's business and were not selling anything. They were engaged in the harmless occupation of waging war on an army of cockroaches, Hart testified. Judge Blain decided that it would be unreasonable to ask a saloonkeeper to leave his place in a filthy condition after a busy Saturday until the next Monday morning and that they could clean out Saturday night. He dismissed the two men.

In one of the cases it was shown that the bartender was not a bartender, but was merely washing glasses. The Judge admitted that the statement might be so, but decided he was guilty of violating the Sunday law and called for a fine of $19.

Dog License Fines Stick.

At the close of court, one of the court officials asked Judge Blain whether he intended suspending the $5 fines assessed Thursday on several men whose dogs were without licenses. Judge Blain was informed that it was the custom in such cases that when the licenses were taken out, to remit the fines. Judge Blain merely reiterated his statement of Thursday that no fines would be suspended except on a formal motion presented in court three days after the sentence. He declared emphatically that he intended to abide strictly by this ruling, as it was the law.

Mendelssohn's Spring Song.

Ah, at that first exquisite strain
We see the freshly verdured plain;
We hear the bees.
We feel the balmy breath of spring
That flutters like an unseen wing
Among the trees.

Ah, at that first exquisite strain
We hear the mill, the sudden rain,
The lowing flock.
We hear the plashing of the rill
That leaps adown the wooded hill
From rock to rock.

Ah, at that first exquisite strain
We see the fields of waving grain;
We hear the birds.
With music from a master's hand,
That speaks the tongue of every land,
What need of words?

MARYLAND COURT UPHOLDS "UNWRITTEN LAW."

Woman and Son On Trial For Girl's Alleged Traducer Are Acquitted.

Laplata, Md., July 12.—A verdict of acquittal was returned by the jury in the Bowie case at 1:35 o'clock. The jury arrived at a verdict in five minutes. The case was given to the jury at 12:25 o'clock and the court took a recess.

State's Attorney Wilmer's statement last evening that the prosecution would be satisfied with a verdict of manslaughter was a surprise, and was met by the demand of former State Senator Posey, for the defense, that the jury either acquit or find the accused guilty of murder.

Congressman Sidney E. Mudd, of counsel for the defense, in his address to the jury disclaimed belief in the insanity of Mrs. Bowie or her son, though he declared that under the circumstances they should not be held responsible, mentally nor legally, for their part in the tragedy. Touching the unwritten law, Congressman Mudd said:

"The family in this land of ours is the nucleus and the nursery of the Commonwealth. The protection of the sanctity of the family ties, the chastity of women, the development and maintenance of exalted respect for the honor of the mother, the sister and the daughter becomes therefore a natural and essential feature of the law in this land. In nearly every State of this country there will be found an exemplification and recognition of this fact and an adoption of this doctrine. It is in this sense that I confidently claim the protection of what I have called the 'unwritten law' as an adequate defense for these defendants."

EASY COAL STAGE STILL LACKING IN OHIO RIVER.

Despite the noonday downpours of the past three days, the river stage will continue to stay below the necessary mark for coal boats to make headway from Pittsburg south. A rise of 5.7 inches has been recorded on the Louisville water front since the inauguration of noonday squalls last Wednesday, but several more inches of water are necessary before the big barges can make headway southward. The river stage yesterday was 6.4 feet on the canal, and 4.2 feet on the falls, and rivermen prophesy a small rise yet to come. Pittsburg coal men are getting out light barges for Southern points.

LAW UNFAIR

President McCrea On the Two-Cent Rate

AGAINST INTERESTS OF BOTH RAILROAD AND PUBLIC.

DIFFERENCE AS TO APPORTIONMENT OF PASSENGER TRAFFIC.

CASE TO BE CARRIED UP.

Philadelphia, July 12. — President James McCrea to-day took the witness stand in the Common Pleas Court in the case of the Pennsylvania railroad's suit to restrain the enforcement of the two-cent fare law in this State and testified that the new law is unfair and impracticable and against the interests of not only the railroad company, but the traveling public. He said the new law would not stimulate passenger traffic, as was contended by those who advocated the law, but would be a hardship upon those who pay a lower rate than two cents by reason of the necessity of the company being forced to raise the commutation and other low rates now prevailing.

Much of to-day's proceedings were taken up with the question of apportioning the percentage of passenger traffic from the other business of the company. The company has presented figures showing that the passenger traffic amounted to about 21 per cent. of the whole business done by the company. The city and county of Philadelphia, the defendant, contends that the Pennsylvania's figures are not accurate, that they are more or less guesswork, and instead of losing money in operating its passenger trains if the fares are reduced, the company would earn about 7 per cent. on its passenger business. This conclusion was reached by different methods.

The Pennsylvania's calculations were made on the basis of "revenue train miles," or the number of miles traveled by trains that returned a revenue to the company, while the city made its calculations on "locomotive miles," or the number of miles traveled by all locomotives, including shifting engines. The Pennsylvania used the "locomotive mile" system in its account until the first of this year, when it discarded it for the other system because it is being adopted by all railroads.

The taking of testimony closed today. In the argument the Pennsylvania railroad will base its calculations "on the revenue train mile" system, while the city will argue its case on the other basis, leaving the court to decide. The case will be carried to the highest courts.

LOUISVILLE ENGINEER KILLED IN WRECK.

Lafollette, Tenn., July 12.—A fatal wreck occurred on the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Kilsey, Tenn., six miles north of this place, at 7 o'clock this morning. George Porter, of Louisville, Ky., engineer on a southbound through freight train from Corbin, Ky., was killed. There were no other casualties.

The through freight collided with a distributing train, operated for the Lafollette Coal, Iron and Railroad Company. Traffic is delayed by the wreckage, which, it is expected, will be cleared late this afternoon.

The wreck is said to have been due to Engineer Porter losing control of the air brakes on his train.

Engineer Porter formerly lived on Broadway, near Eleventh street, with his aunt. He was for many years a fireman on the L. and N. running out of Louisville, but about five months ago was promoted to engineer and assigned to the Corbin run. He was about twenty-five years of age and unmarried.

MAY BE DRIVEN TO PURCHASE AIRSHIPS.

Montgomery, Ala., July 12.—In the House to-day Mr. Sanders, a member from one of the country counties, introduced a bill to prevent automobiles from running on the public roads in the State. As there are several thousand machines in the State, it is wondered where they would run.

HANDS FOLDED,

James M. Day Found Dead In His Room.

MOWED LARGE LAWN BEFORE HE WENT TO SLEEP.

MRS. ELLEN KELSO SUCCUMBS AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

RIVER PIRATES RAID FARMS.

James M. Day, for many years a prominent citizen of New Albany, was found dead in his room at his home, Bank and Elm streets, that city, about 6 o'clock last evening. While he had been failing for several weeks, he was not considered ill, and was about the streets every day. Thursday night he spent at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. B. Lynd, on the Silver Hills, west of New Albany, and returned home yesterday morning. After cutting the grass on his large lawn, he complained of fatigue, and remarking to the housekeeper that he intended going to his room to rest, as he was suffering from a slight pain in the region of his heart, went up to the second floor. At 6 o'clock a member of the family went to call him to the evening meal and found him dead. His death had apparently occurred several hours before. He was lying on the bed with his hands folded over his breast, and had evidently passed away like one dropping into a peaceful sleep.

Mr. Day was born in New Albany, July 4, 1838, and was consequently a few days past sixty-nine. For many years he was connected with the wholesale dry goods house of S. C. Day & Sons, but for the last few years had been retired from active business. His wife died many years ago, and he is survived by five children, Miss Lucy Day and Mrs. S. B. Lynd, of New Albany; Robert Day, of Louisville; Charles Day, of Mexico, and Miss Nannie Day, of Chicago. Besides these, he leaves his aged mother, three sisters and two brothers, Will H. Day, Mrs. Mary Scribner, Mrs. Hattie West and Drs. D. F. Bowman, of New Albany, and Addison M. Day, of Boonville, Ind. He was an elder in the First Presbyterian church, and had much to do with the management of its affairs.

HEAD OF LARGE FAMILY.

Mrs. Ellen Kelso Dies After Relapse To Long Illness.

Mrs. Ellen Kelso, widow of Maj. James V. Kelso, died at her home on the Silver Hills, west of New Albany, shortly afternoon yesterday, her death being due to a complication of diseases. She was stricken with paralysis about two years ago, but had so greatly improved that she was thought to have practically recovered. She was taken ill last Sunday, and gradually grew worse until the end came.

Mrs. Kelso was born at Freedom, Pa., on March 24, 1839, and came to New Albany with her parents when a child. She was married to Maj. Kelso on July 8, 1856, and was the mother of eleven children, nine of whom survive her. They are Charles D., Joseph and Edward Kelso, Mrs. Charles Goodbub, Mrs. Thomas Rory, Misses Martha and Elizabeth Kelso, of New Albany; James Kelso, of Chicago, and Harry Kelso, of Louisville. Besides these, she leaves sixteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

She was a devout member of the Main-street Methodist Episcopal church, having united with that congregation when a child, and was greatly esteemed by the membership on account of her pleasant manners and kind heart. In her home life her absence will be most keenly felt.

SHANTYBOATMEN'S

Depredations Rouse Ire of Indiana River-front Farmers Who Suffer.

A gang of river pirates operating from a shantyboat recently raided the river bottom farms southwest of New Albany, stealing impartially from nearly every farmer along the shore for a distance of ten miles. From Abram Jones they stole two barrels of potatoes standing in his shed, and "lugged" them to the boat. At the next farm a wagonload of vegetables, including several barrels of potatoes, loaded ready for the market, were carried off, while at the next place several dozen chickens and a set of harness were stolen.

They visited the farm of County Auditor Thomas Hanlon, two miles below New Albany, but were driven away by the barking of his watchdog, and were heard running down the hill by Mr. Hanlon and pulling away in a skiff. The depredations were carried on to a point below Bridgeport, and the indications are that their boat, being loaded with stolen produce, the thieves proceeded down the river.

Names Dispensing Deputies.

Dr. D. F. Davis, Health Officer for Floyd county, at New Albany, has appointed his deputies in the outside townships to attend to any applications for diphtheria anti-toxin, which is to be furnished free to indigent persons, in accordance with the provisions of a law enacted by the last Legislature of Indiana. Applications from persons living in the city must be made to Dr. Chester Funk, secretary of the Board of Health. These applications, when indorsed by the attending physician, are presented to the proper officials, and there is no delay in furnishing the valuable remedy, as the orders are filled by any druggist, to collect for the same from the city, the town corporations or the township authorities.

Colored War Nurse Benefits.

Capt. James Albertson, superintendent of the National Soldiers' cemetery, on Ekin avenue, New Albany, has received instructions from the authorities at Washington to the effect that hereafter all army nurses who have been in receipt of a pension or who have certificates of service shall be entitled to the privilege of burial in the national cemetery. Among those in New Albany entitled to this privilege are Lucy Nichols, an old colored woman, who has a pension of $12 a month, which was granted by special act of Congress. She served during three years of the Civil War with the Twenty-third Indiana infantry, a noted command recruited and mustered into the service in New Albany.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN NEW ALBANY.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McChord and their little son, Robert Gordon, will leave to-day for White Sulphur Springs to remain until September.

—The Board of Review and Equalization, which began its sessions the first Monday in June, will adjourn to-day, the term expiring under the law.

—Capt. Robert Morris, an old-time steamboat commander, eighty-four years old, left yesterday for Chicago, where he will spend a month with his son.

—Mrs. John S. McDonald, her daughter, Miss Helen McDonald, and her sister, Miss Ella Jones, will leave to-day for Winona Lake to spend several weeks.

—W. A. Beach, who has been at Martinsville for several weeks, taking treatment for a severe attack of rheumatism, has returned home greatly improved in health.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Gwin, of Augusta, Ga., are here to visit their sons, Earl S. Gwin, cashier of the Second National Bank, and William P. Gwin, of the firm of Thorn & Gwin.

—Miss Elizabeth Enlow and Francis X. McGovern were married a few days ago at English by the Rev. W. H. Howerton. The bride has been for several years deputy postmaster at Taswell.

—The body of Bertram D. Hopkins, of this city, who died of typhoid fever in the Marine Hospital, Louisville, was sent yesterday morning to Chicago, Mr. Hopkins' former home, for burial.

—Capt. John Bills, the veteran Monon passenger conductor, who has been in the service of the company for more than twenty-five years, is at French Lick Springs enjoying a ten days' vacation.

—Mrs. S. T. Rogers and her daughter, Miss Mildred, will leave to-day for Winona Lake, where they will spend a few weeks. Miss Mildred has been ill of typhoid fever for several months and is now convalescent.

—J. F. Meyer and George Williams, viewers appointed to take action in the matter of the roads of Georgetown, were engaged yesterday in examining the location of the proposed roads, and they will make their report as soon as practicable.

—The Sisters of Providence, who conduct the parochial schools of Holy Trinity parish, have gone to St. Mary's-of-the-Woods convent, near Terre Haute, where they will be in retreat for several weeks.

—Past Grand Master James W. Dunbar, of this city, will assist in the Masonic ceremonies at the laying of the corner stone of the Clark county asylum. Calvin W. Prather has been appointed by the Grand Master of the State to have charge of the ceremonies.

—The case of the State against Jacob Green, charged with using profane language, was tried in Magistrate Fogle's court this morning, and after a number of witnesses were examined the defendant was dismissed. The charge against Green was made by Charles Umbreit.

—Jonathan C. Sanders and Mrs. Zora C. Reese, fifty-seven years old, were married yesterday afternoon by Magistrate W. M. Mix at his office in the Masonic Temple. The groom stook at the marriage altar for the first time, while this is the second matrimonial experience of the bride.

—Prof. I. G. Strunk, who has severed his connection with the New Albany Business College, left yesterday over the Monon for Chicago, and will go thence to Eton Rapids, Mich., where he will spend several weeks with relatives. From there he will go to Illinois to visit before returning home.

—The funeral of Miss Katherine E. Yochem took place yesterday morning at St. Mary's Catholic church, Lanesville. The services were conducted by the rector, the Rev. Father Peckscamp, and the burial was in the cemetery near that place. A number of persons from this city attended the funeral.

—A civil service examination of clerks and carriers will be held this morning in the court room on the second floor of the Federal building. A number of applications have been made for examination, and the board of examiners will be occupied with the examination for the greater part of the day.

—Recent additions to the membership of Castle Shalott, Knights of King Arthur, are: John Gadient, Oscar Brown, Laura Devore, Robert McKnight, Arthur Fenwick, William Hampton and Wallace Mann. New names are offered at every meeting and the order is rapidly increasing in membership.

—Francis M. Steepleton, an old soldier of the Civil War, who served in the Seventeenth and One Hundred and Fourteenth regiments, Indiana volunteers, is dead at his home near Laconia, twenty-five miles southwest of this city, of Bright's disease. He was sixty-eight years of age, and is survived by his widow.

—James Simmons, arrested by Patrolman Seery for intoxication, was fined $11 in the City Court yesterday and was sent to jail in default of payment. He stated to the officers that he had been an inmate of an insane asylum in Georgia and was traveling North for his health. He will be detained until something further is learned of him.

—W. H. McDoel, president of the Monon railroad, and other officials of the company, have been here inspecting the improvements made to the company's property. These consist of a new roundhouse with a capacity for sixteen engines, just completed at a cost of $25,000. More tracks will be laid in the yards, and it is probable that extensive repair shops will be built.

—Thomas Wright is laid up at his home, 33 West Fifth street, with a fractured leg and arm and a wrenched back. Wright, who is a painter, was at work on a house of J. W. Blackman, near Sugar Grove, in Harrison county, fourteen miles southwest of the city, when the ladder gave way, precipitating him to the ground, injuring him as stated. He was brought to his home yesterday.

—Holly Hill, who has been employed as engineer on the Panama canal for the last nine months, notified his wife by wireless message sent from the steamship Colon that he would arrive in New York yesterday morning on his way to this city. After spending his six weeks' vacation here Mr. Hill will return to Panama, accompanied by Mrs. Hill, and they will be away one year.

—The Rev. Dr. John P. Moffatt, who accepted a call to the pastorate of the Second Presbyterian church a few weeks ago, arrived here yesterday from Scranton, Pa., and he will fill the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian church to-morrow morning and evening. His family is expected here next month. He is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Creed, at "Creedmont," on the Silver Hills, west of the city.

—Bids for a loan of $15,000 will be opened this morning at 10 o'clock at the office of City Controller Carl F. Best in the City Hall, and the contract will be awarded to the firm, individual or corporation offering to make the loan at the lowest rate of interest. Under the terms of the ordinance $1,700 of the money is to be delivered at once, while $2,300 will be paid July 31, and the remaining $11,000 on the last days of August, September and October.

UNCLE SAM HAS TWO HIGH-SALARIED WOMEN.

Director of the Mint Says One of Them Could Take His Place.

Washington, July 12.—[Special.]—Miss Margaret V. Kelly, a clerk in the office of the Director of the Mint, has been promoted to a salary of $2,000 per annum, the largest salary given to a woman in that department. Miss Kelly is a native of New Hampshire and Director of the Mint Roberts says the Government could not find a better Director of the Mint than she.

The Treasury Department also contains another high-salaried woman clerk, Miss Clara Grencen, in the office of the Controller of the Treasury. Miss Grencen draws $1,800 a year, and the Controller hasn't a better lawyer in his office.

ON THE TRAIL OF TOBACCO PLANTS' ENEMIES.

Clarksville, Tenn., July 12.—A. C. Morgan, special field agent of the United States Department of Agriculture, arrived to-day to begin an investigation of the flea beetle and other insects which have played havoc this year with the tobacco plants.

Mr. Morgan will pursue his investigation through Kentucky and Tennessee, and as soon as his work is completed remedial measures for the extermination of the insects will be instituted.

BITE OF COMMON FLY CAUSES SEVERE WOUNDS.

Sturgis, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Tom Quinn is nursing a very sore arm as a result of a common house fly biting him last week. It was thought a few days ago amputation would be necessary, but his affliction is somewhat improved since.

Two or three residents of Boxtown, a colored suburb of this city, are seen with hands in a sling resulting from a fly bite.

Drowns Before Comrades Come.

Tell City, Ind., July 12.—[Special.]—Curt Muelch, aged fifteen, was drowned here to-day while in swimming with two boy friends. He was seized with cramps, and before his companions could get to him he had gone under. He was the youngest son of ex-Councilman Fred Muelch.

Ice Cream At St. Luke's.

Ladies of the St. Luke's Guild, Episcopal church, Anchorage, will give an ice cream supper to-night at the Anchorage Country Club house. Good things to eat will be dispensed from 7 to 10 o'clock and the proceeds will be devoted to church purposes.

No Place Like Louisville.

After spending more than a year in the real estate business in Los Angeles, Cal., Mr. Wedon B. Gray, formerly of Louisville, has returned to this city and will again engage in business here. Mr. Gray says there is no place like Louisville.

NOT VERY GREEN

Indiana Reformatory Trusty "Just Walked Away."

FRED BAUGH ONCE RATED UNSOPHISTICATED COUNTRY BOY.

SUPERINTENDENT WHITTAKER OFFERS REWARD.

MISS MONTGOMERY ON DUTY.

A reward of $25 has been offered by W. H. Whittaker, general superintendent of the Indiana Reformatory, for the return to that institution of Fred Baugh, who walked away from the barns, where he was working as a trusty, and has not been heard of since leaving. Baugh went to the institution something over a year ago from Clinton county, Ind., to serve from two to fourteen years on a conviction to the charge of forgery. He was a green country boy and it was alleged he had forged an order on a store at his home. He showed a disposition to obey the rules at the Reformatory and was made a trusty, his duties being to look after the cows and hogs at the barn.

He was faithful and it was not believed he needed much watching. The hogs became fat enough to sell and they were taken across the river, Baugh being left to look after two cows until a new stock of hogs could be purchased. It is supposed Baugh became lonesome and concluded to walk away. What direction he took is not known, as no one saw him leave, but if he is found the chances are that he will not have an opportunity to walk away again in the next twelve years, but had he remained he would have been eligible for parole in a short time.

AT HEAD OF GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Miss Sadie Montgomery Takes Up Her New Duties.

The duties of superintendent of the Girls' School of Indiana have been assumed by Miss Sadie Montgomery, a native of Jeffersonville and a sister of Judge Harry C. Montgomery, she having been elected to the position several months ago. The institution was established by the last Legislature of Indiana, the intention being to remove the younger inmates of the Indiana women's prison from the older and more hardened ones. To this end buildings have been secured six miles west of Indianapolis. The site is said to be a beautiful one.

The women's prison is in Indianapolis. Nearly two hundred girls between the ages of thirteen and twenty-one were selected for transfer. Sixty of the healthiest and best-humored ones were taken to the new institution on Thursday to get it in readiness for the others, and they attracted much attention. Dressed in their uniforms of checked material they were marched to the interurban station to be sent out on a car that runs past the door, but it was found the line had been put out of service and the cars could not run. Large furniture wagons were secured and into these the girls were loaded, they being greatly delighted with the trip. The others will be transferred as soon as possible.

Long-time Fugitive Arrested.

"Dode" Carrington, a paroled man from the Indiana Reformatory in Jeffersonville, who has been a fugitive from justice for nearly four years, has been arrested at Elkins, W. Va., and will be returned to Danville, Ill., to stand trial on the charge of killing his sister-in-law, Lydia Carrington, on August 3, 1903. George Carrington, husband of the woman, was also implicated in the killing, but his trial was continued from time to time until he finally died. After "Dode" Carrington was arrested he managed to have bond fixed at a small amount and he gave bail, fleeing as soon as possible.

NOTES OF THE NEWS OF JEFFERSONVILLE.

—John A. Graham, a well-known business man, has returned from a trip to Kansas, where he went two weeks ago on his annual vacation and for a visit to relatives.

—The lawn party for the benefit of Mercy Hospital was attended by so few people Thursday night on account of the weather that it was decided to continue it last night and this evening.

—Mrs. Sarah Davis, who was overcome by the heat at her home on East Maple street last Monday, and who for a time was believed to be in a critical condition, has been pronounced out of danger.

—The recent enumeration of the voters in Scott county shows the number to be 2,184, there being but one negro in the whole county. His home is in Finley township, and he has lived there for years.

—In the readjustment of salaries by the Post-office Department, one clerk in the local office will receive an advance of salary from $600 to $800 per annum. The carriers were given increases recently.

—Mrs. Ed. R. Stanley, who is said to be the only woman advance agent in the country, was in the city yesterday making the preliminary arrangements for a tent show that will be here during the latter part of next week.

—For the next few weeks no Sunday services will be held at the Indiana Reformatory, as is the custom during the heated term, and the Rev. W. E. Edgin, chaplain of the institution, will remain at Winona for some time.

—The citizens of New Providence are being asked to contribute toward extending the water mains for fire protection, and a special meeting of the Town Council is to be held for the purpose of taking steps in the matter.

—The burial of Edward G. Green, who died at his home near Marble Hill of heat prostration, took place at Charlestown yesterday, the body having been shipped to the town for interment in a lot beside the body of his first wife.

—Farmers in the vicinity of Underwood have found their oats crop to be such a failure that in many fields the grain is being mowed and will be used for hay, it being too small and of such thin growth that it cannot be cut with a reaper.

—More damage than was supposed was sustained by the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company during the recent storms, and many lines were disabled. By working a large force and at a considerable cost the service has been restored.

—A final adjournment was taken by the Board of Review last evening and if E. T. Sage, County Assessor, is well enough today he will make out a statement of what has been done. This will show an increase in the valuation of nearly all the corporations.

—Wendall Ruddell, the eighteen-year-old son of Dr. I. N. Ruddell, who was taken to Mercy Hospital recently to be treated for brain trouble, has improved to such an extent that he left with his father last evening for a visit in the eastern part of the county.

—News of the death of Amon Marsh, of Scottsburg, who was well known in this city, has been received here. He was eighty-four years old and a veteran of the Mexican and Civil Wars. A wife and three daughters survive him. The funeral took place yesterday.

—Dr. W. H. Sheets, City Health Officer, has published a notice warning the local physicians that they must comply with the law regarding the prompt filing of death returns before burials take place. It is claimed many have violated the law, and are subject to prosecution.

—The drouth that existed in some parts of the county has been relieved by the rains of Thursday which prevailed in every township, but considerable damage was done to the growing corn, some of it being beaten flat on the ground. Most of it, however, can be straightened up.

—Enoch Edgerton, who is now under arrest in Louisville, walked away from the county jail in this city several weeks ago, while serving a sentence on a conviction to the charge of petit larceny. If he is acquitted on the charge now against him, be will probably be brought back.

—John Groher, Councilman from the Fourth ward, has gone on duty as a merchant policeman, succeeding Lee Cunningham, who quit because the saloonkeepers, so he asserts, would not pay him as they thought he was a spotter. This he denies, but he concluded to resign.

—George W. Cumming and John W. Plater, substitute trustees for George W. Young and Arthur Turnbull, yesterday released $18,000 of the bonded indebtedness of the Standard Chain Company in the office of George W. Stoner, Recorder of Clark county, which leaves $560,000 of the original $750,000 unpaid.

—Judge Harry C. Montgomery, who is spending the summer near Goshen, Ky., came home yesterday for a few days, and this morning will hear the habeas corpus proceeding filed by Isabelle Smith against George Morris and wife for the custody of Willie D. Walker, a son of the plaintiff by a former marriage.

—A pair of horses owned by Leonard Kranz, who conducts a packing plant near Sellersburg, and which were valued at $350, were killed by coming in contact with a telephone wire that had fallen across a trolley wire. Joseph Oglesby, colored, who was driving the team, was shocked and Otto Kranz was slightly hurt.

—A letter received in this city yesterday from Capt. L. C. Baird, who is now at Salt Lake City on his vacation, visiting his mother and other relatives, states that his brother-in-law, Horace Dunbar, and his brother, Will C. Baird, who left here a few months ago, "grub-staked" a broken miner, who has just returned from the silver fields and reported that he staked off a claim from which he brought back ore that assayed $7,000 to the ton.

JEFFERSON COUNTY'S GIRLS SOUGHT AFTER

REASON FOR MANY MARRIAGES AT STATE COLLEGE.

LAST DAY'S SESSION OF INSTITUTE MOST INTERESTING.

MRS. STONESTREET'S ADDRESS

"The extraordinarily large number of marriages of young women who attend Kentucky State College is because all of them are from Jefferson county," announced Prof. A. S. Mackenzie, of that institution, yesterday afternoon, in his closing address before the Jefferson County Teachers' Institute.

Prof. Mackenzie paid something more than gallant tribute to the yong women from the Falls City and thereabouts. He declared that a half thousand young men from various sections of the State were in attendance every year at the State institution, but that the feminine members of the university's roster was composed almost entirely of Jefferson county's prettiest girls.

"They come to Kentucky State College with the ambition to be educators. The preponderance of men and the lack of young women enough to "go round" soon puts another aspect on affairs. The result is that ere the close of the scholastic year each of the majority of the girls—and all but about three of them this year were from Jefferson county—have plighted their troth to one of the many attetnive male students."

* * *

Corner In Scholarships.

Prof. Mackenzie also declared that Jefferson county possessed an ability to corner the majority of the scholarships offered by the State institution. Eight of these scholarships were presented students from Jefferson county and were well taken advantage of. Prof. Mackenzie likewise declared that both boys and girls from this section of the State made the brightest and most successful graduates the university turned out.

Probably the most interesting subject of the day in the several addresses was that of Mrs. Rosa A. Stonestreet, County School Superitnendent, who talked upon the relations of superintendetn and teacher. Mrs. tSonestreet's handling of her subject was able and the trend of her remarks will do much to establish harmony and team work between teachers and their superiors. Other speakers during the closing session of the institute were Miss Mattie Nuttall, "School Evils;" Principal R. C. Williams, "School Government;" Miss Florence Corothers, "Efficiency in Class Rooms," Prof. Bell, Miss Fannie Watson and Miss Anna Hardesty.

The Jefferson County Teachers' Institute has been a success extraordinary, and has had an unusually large attendance.

RACE MEETING NEARS CLOSE

Sport At Latonia Ends To-day Until Late In The Fall.

CARTHAGE WINS HANDICAP.

Johnny Ferriss, W. H. Fizer and Other Turfmen To Ship Their Horses North.

EXTENSION STORY ABSURD.

LATONIA SELECTIONS.

First Race—Sorrel Top, Albert Fir, Tsara.
Second Race—Ed Kane, Hollow, Tackle.
Third Race—Oak Grove, Boserrian, Viperine.
Fourth Race—Wells Eentry Redgauntlet, Phil Finch.
Fifth Race—Col. Bob, Albert Star, Simon Well.
Sixth Race—Sponge Cake, Matador, Fonsoluca.
Seventh Race—Sultry, County Clerk, Princess Orna.
Two best bets—Wells Entry, Col. Bob.

CINCINNATI, O., July 12.—[Special.]—The racing picked up to-day, and and the day before getaway day saw the largest Friday crowd at the track that has been out at the meeting. In the programme for the day a steeplechase over the short course and a purse race at one mile divided the card as the feature attractions.

In the handicap "Cap" Jim Williams again won another race, this time with the old Respess horse, Carthage, which he claimed in the Merchants' Selling Stakes, thus disproving the theory that Carthage could not run in the mud, for he got out in front and was never headed, winning, pulled up, by five lengths.

Johnny Ferriss and W. H. Fizer will ship their horses North, as will some of the others. Such horses as Pasadena, Goldproof, Cablegram and Phil Finch will go East and be dropped into some of the cheap selling races there, where they ought to easily earn their oats. Most of the poorer class of horsemen have decided to remain at the track, and it is quite likely that 400 or 500 horses will be quartered here until the racing begins again at Louisville.

Say Story Is Absurd.

The story that appeared in the Courier-Journal of to-day in regard to the statement that it was hinted that if the Latonia Jockey Club would contribute to a certain campaign fund that it could have any reasonable extension of the dates, excited comment at the track and throughout the State. The statement was not made as a positive fact and no one high in authority would stand for their names to be used in connection with it. The story, as stated, was what the rank and file of horsemen, bettors, bookmakers and general turf followers have been discussing on Vine street in Cincinnati, which is the sporting headquarters, for the past week. There is no doubt that the men that compose the Racing Commission of Kentucky are an honorable lot of men and would not stoop to any such tactics, but those who discussed the story said that the commissioners might have been imposed upon by persons who urged against an extension of dates on grounds other than those gossiped about.

Hyperbole a Surprise.

In the first event of the day the bookies were not going to give anyone a chance to put anything over on them, and the prices that they laid would not look well in a poolroom. Most of the money centered on Sister Polly, and she closed as the favorite at 18 to 5. Hard Shot and Little George both got a good play, and toward the close of the betting a lot of tips floated out of the paddock. Hyperbole, which was returned the winner, opened up at 6 and went as high as 10. Our Anna, one of the tips, got out in front and stayed there until the eighth pole, where she quit cold. Hyperbole came fast in the stretch and won easily by two lengths. Little George also closed strong and was second a head in front of Captain Fearson, the longest shot in the race.

Another Long Shot Wins.

Another upset occurred in the second race, Joe McCarty coming home in front with 15 to 1 quoted against him. Belarius and Caltha were made the favorites, both closing at 4 to 1. The play on the others was well scattered. Joe McCarty got off well and went right to the front and stayed there throughout, winning easily by two lengths from Uneasy, another long shot that was always right up with the pacemakers. Caltha got away well, showed plenty of early speed and lasted until close to the wire, where she quit. Ogbent, a good thing, did not have any early speed, but closed fast and finished fourth.

* * *

Carthage Wins Handicap.

Carthage was opened up as the favorite in the third event at 3 to 2, but reports had gone out that the Williams horse was lame, which made the price go up to 12 to 5. There was a decided plunge on him then and the price was forced down again to 3 to 2. La Veita opened at 2, was backed down to 8 to 5 and when the Carthage money came in went up again to 2 to 1. Motador and Javenese were both held around 4 to 1. Carthage went right to the front after the start and was never headed, winning easily by five lengths. La Veita was crowded back at the start, but closed fast in the stretch and got the place, being a head in front of Matador, who laid out of it until the stretch, but could not then get up. Javenese was well up but tired following the fast pacemaker, and slowed up almost to a walk in the stretch. Tom Chance, true to his name, never had a chance.

Killing On Col. Bob.

A sprightly looking lot of youngsters came together for the fourth race, and the good thing went through. Col. Bob opened up at 7 to 5, went up to 8 to 5 and then the Hayes people got busy and made one of the biggest killings of the meeting, forcing the price down to 4 to 5. Cloyne opened up at 3 but went to 5. Beth Goodwin opened at 4 and went to 7. There was hardly any play on the other horses. Col. Bob got off well and Lee took him right to the front and stayed there, but he had a close fit coming down the stretch, for through the last eighth Cloyne and Col. Bob were on even terms and raced this way to the wire, Col. Bob getting the decision on the nod, though it took the judges some few moments to separate them. Beth Goodwin was off nearly last, but closed strong and just nosed out Dunvegan for the show money.

Peter Becker In a Drive.

The steeplechase, the feature of the card, brought out a good field and resulted in a great contest, being the best held at the track. The warnings and the suspensions which Judge Hopper has given have made the boys wake up and take notice. Snowdrift, who was shipped here from Canada yesterday, and Blue Pirate were made the favorites, opening up at 2 and going as high as 3. Full of Fun also closed at 3, dropping from 4. The others all received a fair play and there was hardly a horse in the race that was not supported. Peter Becker got off well and rushed into the lead and stayed there throughout the race winning in the hardest kind of a drive by a head. Graceland showed much improvement and coming from way behind was only beaten in the stretch by a scant head. Full of Fun was always well up with the leader and was third, four lengths in front of Itacatiara.

Deacon Scores Again.

Zinfandel was made a warm favorite for the sixth event and was well supported around 7 to 5 and 3 to 2. Marmorean was also well supported, opening at 4 and staying at that price throughout the betting. Deacon was backed some at 8 to 1 and Kokomo opened at 8 and closed at 6 to 1. Lightening Conductor got out in the lead and stayed there for a short time. Zinfandel had some early speed but quit cold after going a couple of furlongs. In the stretch Deacon, who had been laying back in a good position, came on and won easily by six lengths. Lightening Conductor stayed up with the pacemakers and got the place, being a head in front of Marmorean, who was in third place all the way.

Water Lake Beats Attilla.

In the last event the big horse Clyde was made the favorite, opening at 3 to 2 and closing at 2 to 1. Little Elkin opened at 4 and was backed down a half notch. Water Lake and Attilla were the other horses in the race that received support. Clyde got out in front and set the pace for three-quarters of a mile but tired then and fell back. At the three-eighths pole Water Lake, who was always well up in a contending position, came on and won by a half a length. Attilla laid back in the first part but closed strong and got the place, being three lengths in front of Little Elkin who tried to get through on the rail in the stretch but did not have enough left to catch the first two.

CHAT OF LATONIA.

The clearing weather brought out the largest attendance that has been present on any Friday since the meeting opened. This was easily accounted for, as there is only one day left, and when people take racing away from the public, it seems as if that is the time they appreciate the sport most.

Fourteen books, with the two regular field books and combination book, were kept busy handling the public money. They kept most of the money in the opening event, as only one of the first three choices finished in the money.

* * *

Joe McCarthy, a bottled-up good thing, was uncorked in the second race. He was not played at the track, the money being placed on the son of McDowell-Plot in the out-of-town poolrooms and handbooks. A heavy play was made on the colt in Pittsburg. The two-year-old was trained at Huntington, W. Va., and has been kept under cover in order to get him in a maiden race in the mud.

* * *

Capt. Jim Williams did not lose a dollar when he let Phil Finch go and claimed Carthage. The latter's last two races have exploded the story about the gelding not being able to run in the mud. His breeding along indicates his mud-running proclivities, as he is by Serrano-Hetty Green. Any time Hetty Green fails to run in any kind of going when money is in sight, it must be when she is dead or too sick to be out.

* * *

T. P. Hayes got getaway money in the fourth race. He had to take a short price for his money, and came near losing it in the last jump. Cloyne closed fast, but swerved slightly fifty yards from the wire, then came again. The bobble cost the Stevens filly the race, as she was only beaten a short nose on the post.

* * *

It never pays to kick on a race track. An example of this occurred in the steeplechase. Sobell was supposed to have the mount on Blue Pirate. He was informed that Ford was given the mount. "I rode him the other day when he had barplates on," said Sobell. "Now you have heels and toes on, they will not let me have the mount."

Sobell was given the leg up on Peter Becker, and won.

* * *

A man in the press box wanted to bet $5 on Zinfandel. The bookmaker gave him a ticket on Deacon. When the mistake was noticed he had the blockman change it to Zinfandel. Deacon rolled home, and the man went to the swearing room and cut loose.

* * *

Pieratt, who had the leg up on Attilla, claimed a foul against J. Lee, on Water Lake. The judges did not think there was any interference and let the race go as it finished.

LATONIA FORM CHART.

LATONIA, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Twenty-ninth day of Spring Meeting of Latonia Jockey Club. Weather clear; track heavy.

Joe McCarthy rushed to the front in the first few strides, hung slightly on the back stretch, but came strong in the run home. Uneasy, well placed all the way, easily held the others safe for the place. Caltha managed to get into the lead, but had nothing left for the final drive.

2327—THIRD RACE—One mile; purse $500; for three-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Winner, W. S. Williams' ch. g., 4, by Serrano—Hettie Green; trained by owner. Value to winner, $400. Fractional time: :26, :52, 1:19 3-5, 1:48 1-5.

Carthage went to the front first quarter and towroped his field to the wire. La Veita, off well in motion, dropped back of the pace, but closed strong in the last sixteenth. Matador suffered from slight interference and came fast when clear. Javanese quit in the stretch.

2328—FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs; purse $500; for two-year-olds. Start fair. Won driving; place same. Winner, T. P. Hayes' blk. c., 2, by Cesarion—Fonsoletta; trained by owner. Value to winner, $400. Fractional time: :25, :51 2-5, 1:05 3-5.

2292	Clear Run	94	1	......	5...1	6...1	9	9	E. Martin	20-1	40-1	12-1

Col. Bob forced the pace throughout, but had to be hard ridden to stall off the rush of Cloyne. The latter, well placed at all stages, made a desperate challenge in the last hundred yards, and would have won in another jump. Beth Goodwin came from a long way back and ran a good race. Dora Neff had early speed, then quit.

2329—FIFTH RACE—Free steeplechase handicap; short course; purse $500; for three-year-olds and up. Start good; won driving; place same. Winner, F. A. Libby & Co.'s rn. g., 4, by G. W. Johnson—Faustina; trained by A. Noble. Value to winner, $400. Time, 3:06 4-5.

Peter Becker took the lead at the second jump and was never headed, but had to be urged in the final drive to stall off the rush of Graceland. The latter trailed his field the first half, then moved up gamely, but could not quite get up. Full of Fun tired in the closing strides. Snowdrift dropped out of the running the last part.

2330—SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse $500; for three-year-olds; selling. Start bad; won easily; place driving. Winner, C. V. Mueller & Co.'s b. c., 3, by Alloway—Mallon; trained by J. Lally. Value to winner, $400. Fractional time, :25 3-5, :51 3-5, 1:18 4-5.

*Ran out.

Deacon avoided the pace, took command on the stretch turn and drew away in the final drive. Lightning Conductor had the most speed, but tired in the run home. Marmorean had no excuses. Zinfandel ran well the first part, then tired badly. Kokomo ran out on the far turn.

2331—SEVENTH RACE—One and one-half miles; purse $500; for four-year-olds and up; selling. Start good; won driving; place same. Winner, Mrs. N. B. Davis' b. c., 4, by What-er-Lou—Queens Lake; trained by N. B. Davis. Value to winner, $400. Fractional time, :26 3-5, :53, 1:19, 1:49, 2:17, 2:47.

Water Lake laid away from the pace the first half and fought it out with Attila in the last quarter. Attila ran poorly the first mile, then closed strong. Little Elkin trailed his field for a half, then began moving up and was going fast at the finish. Clyde blew up after forcing the pace for a mile.

HARMONY AMONG SOUTHERN HORSEMEN.

President Winn Returns From New Orleans and Says Conditions Are Favorable For Winter Racing.

MATT J. WINN, president of the American Turf Association, arrived in Louisville yesterday, after spending several days in New Orleans. Col. Winn went to the Crescent City in order to investigate the conditions of the two tracks located there and he returned home enthusiastic regarding the prospects for the coming winter season of racing.

According to President Winn an Executive Committee, composed of representatives of both tracks, has been selected as follows: Messrs. Brewster, Renaud, Harrison, D. H. Barnes, S. P. Hazelip and Longshore.

This committee will have full power to select racing officials who will conduct the sport at both tracks. A presiding judge will be secured from the East and one from the West will also be named, while one racing secretary will do the handicapping for both courses. The sport will begin at New Orleans on November 23, at City Park, and it will close at the Fair Grounds on April 11. The racing will alternate between the two tracks every two weeks. Col. Winn says that a harmonious feeling prevails among all those interested in racing in New Orleans and he anticipates a splendid season of sport at the winter tracks. He says the outlook could not be brighter.

Col. Winn will hold a meeting with representatives of the Latonia and Lexington tracks within the next few days when a schedule of dates for the various fall meetings will be agreed upon. After this matter has been decided the Kentucky State Racing Commission will be applied to for dates. Just what the plans are have not yet been made public and in fact have not yet been discussed. The matter, however, will be adjusted to the satisfaction of everybody concerned. It is certain, however, that the association does not intend to give a week's racing at Douglas Park during the State Fair. There will be trotting and pacing races during the Fair, with possibly one running race each day, but there will be no pool selling in connection with the sport.

SIR THOMAS EAGER TO TRY FOR CUP AGAIN

LONDON, July 12.—It is probable, although Sir Thomas Lipton will not admit it, that the New York Yacht Club will receive a challenge for the America's Cup for 1908. The time for challenging does not expire until October, and it is not likely that the challenge will be sent until the last moment. Speaking of the matter to-day, Sir Thomas said he would not say yet whether he intended to send a yacht across the Atlantic next year or send a challenge before the time for a challenge expired, as it would simply be giving the holders of the cup more time in which to arrange for its defense.

Friends of Sir Thomas say he is most anxious to make another try, and that unless something unforeseen happens another Shamrock will cross the Atlantic next year.

Sir Thomas to-day sent to Boston a handsome silver cup as a prize for sailing a race between fishermen.

NO TRUTH IN STORY.

Members of Racing Commission Brand As Absurd Tale of Why Latonia Dates Were Refused.

Lexington, Ky., July 12.—The members of the State Racing Commission who live near here say the story sent out from Cincinnati concerning the refusal of the Commission to extend the Latonia dates is absurd and has no foundation. Mr. des Cognets, one of the members of the Commission, after reading the story, said:

"The story is simply so ridiculous that I do not care to say anything about it."

Col. E. F. Clay was communicated with by long-distance telephone at his home in Bourbon county. He had not seen the story, but when it was read to him over the 'phone he promptly responded: "There is not a word of truth in the report. The Commission refused the dates simply because they thought it was best for racing in the State."

ELKS' EXALTED RULER READY FOR WORK.

Philadelphia, July 12.—Judge Henry A. Melvin, of Oakland, Cal., Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, which will meet in this city next week in reunion convention, arrived to-day, accompanied by Frederick C. Robinson, of Dubuque, Iowa, Grand Secretary of the Order, and several others. All is in readiness for the convention and to-night the court of honor, which contains thousands of electric bulbs, will be illuminated for the first time as a test of its competency.

Monster Farm Sold.

Glasgow, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—The Lollar farm, near Black's Ferry, Cumberland county, was this week sold to C. W. Alexander, J. R. Keene and J. E. Coe, of Burksville, for the sum of $10,000 in cash. This farm contains 1,000 acres, 900 of which consist of primeval forests and is said to be the finest body of timber in all Southern Kentucky.

GOLF BALL AN EASY WINNER

Leads All Way and Finishes Far In Front of Red Friar.

SONORUS BELLE RUNS THIRD.

Robin Hood Defeats Shot Gun, the 7 To 10 Favorite, In Gentlemen's Cup Race.

RESULTS ON OTHER TRACKS.

NEW YORK, July 12.—There were no particular features in the Brighton Beach races to-day outside of the fourth race, which was won by Gold Ball by three lengths. Three favorites, a second choice and long shots divided the money.

A handicap at one mile and a quarter, a steeplechase and a selling affair calling for gentlemen riders were the attractions of a fair card offered the Metropolitan turf devotees at Brighton Beach this afternoon.

Spooner, belonging to Andrew Miller, figured easily the best of his competitors in the day's opening scrambl at six furlongs and the books accordingly installed the son of Peep O'Day a 7-to-20 favorite. Off with the rise of the webbing, he simply tow-roped home, while Jubilee was forced to hustle to land the place by a head in front of Long Ball.

Seven good candidates for the "Suicide Club" fought it out over the sticks in the second, the race resulting in a victory for Kernel, at odds of 7 to 1. The latter fenced faultlessly and showed superior speed on the flat, while Garrett, the 13-to-5 choice, was second in front of Guardian.

Much interest centered in the running of the third, when gentlemen jockeys piloted the thoroughbreds home amid the plaudits of the clubhouse occupants. Only three started, Mr. Cassidy, on the 9-to-5 second choice, Robin Hood, defeating the 7-to-10 favorite, Shot Gun, with Mr. Tucker aboard, by three lengths. Mr. Carman piloted Arabo to a poor third, ten lengths to the rear of the second horse.

The day's feature, a handicap at one mile and a quarter, resulted in an easy victory for Golf Ball, hailing from the barn of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr. Dugan rode a splendid race on the son of Plaudit, waiting until well in the stretch before making his move. Red Friar was second, while Sonoma Belle anchored in the third place. Summaries:

SIXTY-FOUR DEGREES

AWARDED GRADUATES OF KENTUCKY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE.

Masonic Theater Packed At Fifty-eighth Annual Commencement of College Last Night.

The fifty-eighth annual commencement of the Kentucky School of Medicine was held at the Masonic Theater last night. There were sixty-four candidates for the degrees, which were conferred by Capt. John H. Leathers. A large audience had gathered in the theater long before the time appointed for the exercises. A splendid programme had been prepared by the faculty and was so much appreciated that all but a very few of the audience remained to the last word, in spite of the high temperature of the theater.

The medal for the highest average, known as the Dudley Medal, was won by Thomas M. Smith, of Alabama. Of the two hospital honors, which carry with them the appointment as interne at each of two hospitals, F. Taylor Orendorf, of Mississippi, won the first and will be the interne at the City Hospital, while Emmet Field Horine, of Kentucky, will be the interne at St. Anthony's Hospital. The Junior medal went to John F. Knox, of Kentucky, the Sophomore medal to J. S. Schaefer, of Indiana, and the Freshman medal to H. C. Osborne.

The programme follows:

Detroit 1—3, New York 0—8.

Detroit, July 12.—Detroit and New York broke even in a double-header. The first was a brilliant exhibition, won by Detroit, 1 to 0. Chesbro outpitched Killian, but the latter's support was perfect. The only run was a fluke, due to Moriarity's wild throw into the bleachers. Schmidt really won the game for Detroit through throwing out five men going to second base.

New York took the second game easily, hitting Mullin hard until he was taken out. Hogg was effective at all times. Cobb, of Detroit, made his hundredth hit of the season in the second game, the first American League batsman to reach the century mark. Score:

BRISK DEMAND

Very Small Seasonable Stocks Carried Over.

PROMPT COLLECTIONS NOTED THROUGHOUT COUNTRY.

MANUFACTURING RETURNS TELL OF LARGE ORDERS.

MANY STEEL MILLS CLOSED.

New York, July 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade to-morrow will say:

There is not the customary complaint of midsummer dullness in general trade channels, while the demand for seasonable fabrics is rapidly depleting stocks that threatened to be carried over. Brisk retail trade is accompanied by more prompt collections, and many cities that were slow to respond to the better feeling now send satisfactory reports. Jobbers and wholesalers are receiving liberal orders for fall and winter merchandise and interior buyers are active in the primary markets. Manufacturing returns tell of large orders on hand and very heavy production during the first half of the year.

Lower prices for pig iron were due to the larger output and more prompt deliveries that reduced the premiums paid for early shipments. Consumption has not appreciably diminished, although a few of the steel mills are closed for repairs. Despite some furnaces rendered idle for the same reason, the total number in blast increased six during June.

Quiet conditions prevail in the primary markets for cotton goods, but the mills are fully occupied and there is no prospect of easier terms, owing to the large amount of business under contract, unless extensive cancellations are received. The strength of the market is due to the statistical position, buyers being compelled to wait longer for deliveries than ever before in the history of the industry. It is also noted that requests are urgent for earlier forwarding than the date under contract, showing the light stocks in other than first hands, and there is no prospect of relief during the balance of this year at least.

Woolens are not active, new lines of men's wear being opened daily without attracting much attention and little development is anticipated before the last of the month.

Little interest is manifested in the demand for hides. It is now the season of desirable short-haired domestic hides, upon which full quotations are demanded. The one drawback is the larger supply of winter hides still held by packers and dealers in this country, and the principal foreign markets are also overstocked. Antwerp and Havre hold 350,000 hides and the River Platte slaughter during the first six months of 1907 was 200,000 more cattle than last year. This statistical position tends to limit tanners' purchasers to immediate needs only.

Leather trade broadens as contracts are received by shoe factories, and the curtailment of production has held prices well above the decline that has occurred in hides. Dry hides hemlock sole leather is now within a cent and a fraction of the highest point last winter, while the fall raw material has been four cents. Buyers are arriving at the Boston market for footwear, operating liberally in fall goods, and there is no prospect of lower prices.

OPTIMISTIC TONE.

Continual Favorable Weather Has Good Effect On Market.

New York, July 12.—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say: Continued favorable weather, coupled with improvement in re-order business with jobbers and in payments on past business, give a more optimistic tone to the general situation than seemed possible a month ago. That some trade was lost for this reason is, of course, certain, as is the fact that reduction sales have been necessary to move some slow-selling goods; but it is noted that cotton goods have again been advanced, that dress fabrics are selling better and men's wear woolen and clothing dealers take a much more cheerful view of the outlook. Telegrams to Bradstreet's show the effect of midsummer conditions in many lines, but fall shipments have begun in large volume than a year ago, and where the crop outlook is defined there is a slightly more pronounced disposition to buy more freely for future delivery. The leading industries note great activity, with summer shut-downs limited by the desire of manufacturers to catch up with orders. Prices of commodities as a whole are at a high midsummer level. Building is less active at some centers, but of record volume at other cities, and prices of lumber and other materials reflect some irregularity.

Manufacturers at the East are displaying still more interest in the wool market and sales are reported very large. Demand is very general, however, for long staple wools suitable for fine grades of woolen and worsted goods. Old stocks are small. Fine washed delaines note special activity. Primary markets at the West are reported well cleaned up.

Commodity prices as of July 1 show great strength for a midsummer period, the approximate index number on that date being $9.0404, a gain of half of one per cent. over June 1 and a decrease of nine-tenths of one per cent. from the high mark of March 1, 1907. Textiles lead in strength mainly because of the advances in cotton and cotton goods. Four groups and 57 out of 105 staple products were unchanged on the month. Compared with a year ago, the price level is 9 per cent. higher.

Pig iron continues very quiet, and prices are easier. Production in the first half of 1907—13,500,000—exceed that of the corresponding period of last year by 7 per cent. New business in finished lines is smaller. Demand for structural material is light, but some heavy business is pending. Steel bars are taken quite freely. A comparatively large business in open hearth steel rails on special specifications is reported, but otherwise the market is quite dull. The paucity of crude steel, especially in the Pittsburg district, continues quite marked, and one plant in the Ohio valley has been diverting rails and sheet bars to the manufacture of steel billets. Shipments of ore from the lakes are of record proportions, being 6,433,000 tons in June. Coke is not so firm as last week, nor is it so weak as a month ago, the supply being large with demand only moderate. Copper is much lower, the long-expected "official" decrease in price having materialized. Some new business followed as the result of the reduced prices, but thus far there has been no general buying movement, and there is a disposition to question whether prices have been lowered sufficiently to induce an active demand for the American concerns.

Business failures for the week ending July 11 number 185, against 135 last week, 143 in the like week of 1906, 166 in 1905, 203 in 1904 and 173 in 1903. Canadian failures for the week number 28, as against 16 last week and 19 in this week a year ago.

Wheat including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending July 11 aggregated 3,264,714 bushels, against 2,098,984 last week, 1,952,273 this week last year and 5,016,149 in 1901. For the first two weeks of the fiscal year the exports are 5,363,618 bushels, against 3,697,616 bushels in 1906-07 and 8,803,788 in 1906-07. Corn exports for the week are 1,411,675, against 1,410,804 bushels in 1906. For the fiscal year to date the exports are 2,822,479 bushels, against 1,286,318 in 1906-07.

BUSINESS OF THE BANKS.

Increase of 13.1 Per cent. Shown In the Clearings At Louisville.

New York, July 12.—Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending July 11 shows an aggregate of $2,982,623,000 as against $2,768,461,000 last week and $2,845,919,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Canadian clearings for the week total $97,545,000 as against $82,358,000 last week and $85,997,000 in the same week last year.

To Wed Tennessee Girl.

Paducah, Ky., July 12.—[Special.]—Announcement that Mr. Wilson Ginter Puryear will be wedded to Miss Clara Belle Gear, at McKenzie, Tenn., next Tuesday is more than usual interest. Mr. Puryear, who is teaching at a training school at McKenzie, is the son of Mrs. E. H. Puryear, of Paducah, and a member of one of the oldest families in Western Kentucky. Miss Gear is the daughter of Mrs. Belle Robbins Gear, of McKenzie.

WHERE THEY PLAY.

Sutcliffes vs. Vic Lorch in a double-header at Rhodes Park. Batteries—Sutcliffes: Leathers, McMonigle and Angemeler; Vic Lorch: O'Neal, O'Neal and Arnold. Umpire—Ryan. Scorer—Hemphill.

Y. M. H. A. vs. Fetters, at High School Park. Batteries—Y. M. H. A.: Graham or Peter and Warder; Fetters: McBride or Jones and Yantz. Umpire—Murphy. Scorer—Williams.

Kranz Bros. vs. Crippen-Allens, at Portland Park. Batteries—Kranz Bros.: Haag and Reed; Crippen-Allens, Wieting brothers. Umpire—Crowder. Scorer—Hemphill.

Bryant & Stratton vs. Coca-Colas, at Louisville Baseball Park, for the benefit of the Children's Free Hospital. Batteries—Coca-Colas: Stilz or Brown and Welhe; Bryant & Stratton: Hikes and Kelly. Umpire—Clark. Scorer—Schupp.

Capt. Sutton's heavy-hitting aggregation forged to the front in the Saturday Afternoon League race. The printers are going like a house afire, and it will take the hardest kind of work of their near opponents to displace them.

The ladies having in charge the benefit game for the Children's Free Hospital have secured from the director of the Saturday Afternoon League the Coca-Cola-Bryant & Stratton game as an attraction, and the game will be played at the Louisville Baseball Park this afternoon instead of the Butchertown Park as scheduled. The collegians, flushed with two successive victories, are confident of puncturing the pennant aspirations of the champion Coca-Colas. Capt. Coder will present his strongest team in anticipation of victory and a step nearer the coveted bunting.

INDICATED CROPS

Figures Based On Latest Government Report.

LOWEST WHEAT YIELD SINCE 1904.

CORN AND OATS PROMISE BIG YIELDS.

THE FIGURES IN DETAIL.

The indicated winter wheat crop, figuring the Government returns by the formula used by the statistician of the New York Produce Exchange, is 382,595,000 bushels, an increase of 2,800,000 bushels from the June 1 estimate, but about an even 100,000,000 below the final returns for last year, says the Journal of Commerce. Spring wheat indications point to 251,899,000 bushels, a decline of 3,300,000 bushels from the June returns and 9½ millions above the 1906 harvest. The current indication was exceeded in 1905, in 1902 and 1901. And the total wheat crop indication—634,494,000 bushels—compares with a 1906 harvest of 735,000,000 and a 1905 harvest of 693,000,000. In 1904, however, the harvest was only 552,000,000, or 82,000,000 below the present promise. The bumper wheat year thus far was 1901, whose harvest yielded 748,460,000 bushels.

According to the report the area planted to corn—unquestionably largely as a result of replanting of abandoned winter wheat—shows an increase over the preliminary acreage returns of last year of 2,564,000 acres and of 1,362,000 acres over the final acreage returns. This increase in area counteracts a reduction of 7.3 points in the condition comparing with July a year ago, and is responsible for a promised crop of 2,560,000,000 bushels, which compares with an indicated yield of 2,703,641,000 bushels at this date last year and a final harvest return of 2,927,416,000 bushels. The harvest of 1905 amounted to 2,707,993,000 bushels and of 1904 2,467,480,000 bushels.

The formula used by the statistician of the Produce Exchange, Mr. Henry Heinzer, in figuring acreage and condition into bushels is to take the average value at harvest of a condition of 100 for a series of five years. These averages of the value of a condition of 100 follow:

	Value of a condition of 100.
Winter wheat, bushels per acre	17.4
Spring wheat, bushels per acre	17.5
Barley, bushels per acre	31.5
Corn, bushels per acre	32.6
Oats, bushels per acre	38.1
Rye, bushels per acre	18.3

It is on the foregoing basis that the following comparisons are made:

Charleston, July 12.—Turpentine and rosin, nothing doing.

New York Dry Goods.

New York, July 12.—An advance of ½c per yard was made to-day in ⅜ fruit of the loom goods and some prints. The dry goods market is strong. Dress goods are more active. Jobbers are making larger shipments of goods and are receiving larger orders on dress goods, underwear and domestic cottons. Raw silk is quiet. Cotton yarns are firm and quiet.

St. Louis Wool.

St. Louis, July 12.—Wool weak; medium grades, combing and clothing 25@26c; light fine 22@23c; heavy fine 15@17c; tub-washed 30@36½c.

Boston Wool.

Boston, July 12.—The Commercial Bulletin, basing its report upon statistics gathered for the Government, will say to-morrow of the wool market:

"The market is active and firm. The tendency favors sellers. Special grades of fleeces, notably fine delaine, have advanced. Half-blood and ⅜ fleeces are in strong demand, selling at full prices. The general market, however, is not higher. A great deal has been done in supplies to arrive and these encourage dealers in the belief that activity will continue and increase as spot supplies enlarge. At the London auction sales merinos and fine crossbreds are firm and medium and low cross-breds easy, being 5 per cent. off from May. Some cables made merinos 5c higher. The opening is considered strong, in view of the poor quality of the offerings. It is thought a reasonable expectation that as offerings improve in quality prices will harden. Local receipts are the largest of the season from domestic sources of supply, but the movement is considered slow by most dealers. The shipments of wool from Boston to July 11, inclusive, are 144,399,730 pounds, against 124,162,966 the same time last year. The receipts to July 11, inclusive, were 141,441,395 pounds, against 137,940,467 the same period last year."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MONETARY.

Friday Evening, July 12.—The New York money market was easier to-day. Call money ruled at 3½ per cent. and time money for the shorter periods was weaker. The known movements of money indicate a cash loss by the banks since last Saturday's statement of $6,500,000. However, this loss will probably be offset by decreases in loans and deposits and a small surplus shown to-morrow. No change was noted in the local market situation. The borrowing demand was only fair and rates remained at 6 per cent.

Exchange on New York was quoted at 25c premium.

Day's clearing $2,456,178
Balance 345,655

There was less interest in Louisville Gas and Louisville Heating common to-day, and altogether the movement in securities was of small volume. Fifteen shares of Louisville Gas sold at the Stock Exchange at 135 and at the close six shares were offering at 135 and thirty at 140, with no bids. Nothing was said on Louisville Heating common, although sales at decidedly better than yesterday's closing bid of 57½ were said to have been made on the curb. Despite denials by officials of the Louisville Gas Company and the Louisville Heating Company of knowledge of attempts being made to merge the two properties, rumors persisted that such attempts are being made. Possibly the rumors were put out for market effect. Louisville Traction common was easy, being 93½ bid and 95 asked. In the outside list St. Louis United Railways common and Kansas City common were practically unchanged.

At the Stock Exchange 104½ and interest was bid and 105¼ asked for $1,000 Louisville Railway 5s. Rochester Railway and Light 5s were 98½ and interest bid and 99¼ asked for $1,000. St. Joe 5s were offered at 99 and interest. Louisville Home Telephone 5s were $1,000 offered at 75½ and interest. Louisville Gas was 135 bid for four shares, fifty offered at 140, 135 bid for ten, fourteen shares sold at 135 and six offered at 135. Turner-Day common was 109 bid for ten shares. Louisville Traction common was 93½ bid for ten shares and ten offered at 97 and then down to 95. Twenty-five shares of Springfield Railway and Light were offered at 72.

Toledo sold in New York at 25¼. United Railways Investment preferred sold at 45 and closed at 44 bid and 45 asked. The common closed at 28¼ to 29. Detroit closed at 65 to 67. Subway was 23½ to 24½ and Giroux 8⅝ to 8⅞. L. and N. unified 4s closed at 97¾ to 98½ and the collateral trust 4s at 93 bid. Kansas City Railway and Light common closed in Chicago at 54 to 55½. St. Louis United Railways common closed in St. Louis at 31 to 34, the preferred at 68⅜ to 68¾ and the 4s at 79¾ to 80. New Orleans common was quoted in New Orleans at 21 to 22, the preferred at 66½ to 66⅞ and the 4½s at 80 to 82.

Stock Exchange Sales.

The following were the sales at to-day's session of the Stock Exchange:

4 shares Louisville Gas 135
10 shares Louisville Gas 135

The announcement that the gross earnings of the Philadelphia Company and its affiliated concerns for June have increased $154,329 makes it appear that this item for the second quarter will involve about $4,930,000, or $450,000 more than those for the quarter ended June 30, 1906. The United Railways Investment Company owns a controlling interest in the Philadelphia Company.

Thomas Moore, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Ephraim Miller, of White Plains, N. Y., and Henry W. McKay, of Hempstead, L. I., are named as the stockholders of the Texas Interurban Company, which has filed its charter in Texas. It has a capital stock of $4,000,000. Its purpose is to build a system of interurban electric railways radiating out of Austin.

A perusal of the prices at which the most active Government securities on the New York Stock Exchange are now selling and their quotations of a year ago shows that those of the United States have fared better than any of the others, says the Wall Street Journal. Of four United States bonds, two show advances, one unchanged and one is lower. The decline in the 4s of 1907 of 1⅝ points is due to their maturity this month. Of five Japanese bonds, one Cuban and two of the United States of Mexico, one is unchanged and the others show declines ranging from ¼ to 3⅝ points. The following table shows the last sales and the price a year ago of the most active Government bonds trading in on the Stock Exchange and the net change:

*Advance.

Probably the declines are natural in sympathy with the general heaviness of the bond market during a good part of the current year. The bonds of the United States are placed in the category of gilt-edged securities and while it has been shown that even this class of stocks suffered to a certain extent, the bonds of the Government have proved their stability. The Panama Canal 2s, which were found to be very unpopular with the public, have had but one sale since their authorization. The Philippine Island purchase 4s are very inactive and no sale has been recorded this year.

The official announcement is made that the production of gold of the Rand Mines in June amounted to 507,000 fine ounces, against 524,447 fine ounces in May and 475,975 in June a year ago. Last month's figures, based on the market value of $21.25 per ounce, represent $10,647,000, against $11,145,136 in May and $7,989,468 in June last year.

The aggregate amount of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange during the first six months of 1907 was $432,609,630 against a total of $662,769,450 during the whole of 1906 and $531,434,900 in 1905. If the rate established in the first six months continues, the year's total will exceed $850,000,000, the largest since 1901, when it amounted to $1,642,913,715. This large amount was due to the listing of the stocks of the United States Steel Corporation, which totaled $1,018,088,000. The amount of bonds listed in the period of 1907 mentioned above was $189,988,900 against $571,898,500 during the whole of 1906 and $980,026,650 in 1905. The very poor bond market of the present year with sales far behind previous years is in great part accountable for the small amount of listings. At the present rate of bond listings the year's total will be the smallest since 1897. Last year's large amount was due to the floating of the Japanese Government bonds and likewise the total of 1903 to the floating of the Russian Government certificates of rente.

It is estimated that the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company's gross earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 were about $61,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent. over the previous year. The increase in operating expenses, however, prevented an increase in net. In the year just closed the road earned almost 10 per cent. on its two classes of stock, as compared with 12 per cent. in 1905-1906. The following table is an estimate of the income account for 1906-07 as compared with 1905-06:

WALL STREET BRIEFS.

General market in London irregular, without much feature.

London settlement concluded to-day.

State Attorney General brings suit for dissolution of Interboro merger.

Foreign markets continue to ignore Japan war scare.

Thirty-eight roads for the fourth week of June show an average gross increase of 10.61 per cent.

Some American buying of Canadian Pacific reported in London.

Alabama expected to repeal law taxing foreign lenders of money in that State.

Seattle Assay Office ranks second to New York in volume of gold receipts.

Money moderately easy abroad, but further decline in rates not looked for.

Officially announced subscriptions for Union Pacific debentures exceeded $4,000,000, so that underwriting syndicate would take rather less than $71,000,000.

Twenty active Railroads advanced Thursday .09 per cent.

Twelve active Industrials advanced Thursday .03 per cent.

MARKET LETTERS.

New York.—There seemed to be no liquidation and the bulk of the trade was professional. The easing of call money would indicate that the strain on the banks was practically over and still lower rates are looked for next week. It is expected that the bank statement will make an unfavorable showing, as the known movements of money indicate a net loss in cash of about $6,500,000. The effect on the reserve will probably be very much modified by decreases in loans and deposits and the situation should materially improve next week. A rather dull and inactive market to-morrow seems probable.—(A. O. Brown & Co. to Hunt, Bridgeford & Co.

New York.—Dribbling liquidation was noted up to midday in the American Tobacco issues, the 6 per cent. bonds losing a couple of points. Toward the close the entire loss was recovered. Less talk was indulged in to-day regarding the Administration's attitude toward industrial corporations, but considerable interest will be taken in the Interstate Commerce Commission's report on the Harriman investigation. This report will be published Sunday morning and to-day's forecasts were that nothing drastic need be feared. Funds are hardly available for much bull speculation, but we think money can be made by judicious purchases on the drives, with the idea of taking moderate profits.—(C. I. Hudson & Co. to S. C. Henning & Co.

New York.—Call money renewed to-day at 4½ per cent., a substantial concession from yesterday and lower than generally expected. This was the favorable development of the day. Time money, however, still stays at high figures and lenders seem to be willing to put out only small amounts at high rates. It is believed that the Interstate Commerce Commission's report on the Harriman case will be given out Sunday morning, but it is supposed that it will merely contain a presentation of the facts developed and that recommendations as to possible action thereunder will be left to the Attorney General. Owing to the vacation season, it is not expected that his conclusions will be reached before autumn. It is quite possible that the report of the Commission may not prove very inspiring reading to those who depreciate the interference by the Government in corporate and railroad management. Judging by the inactivity to-day, to-morrow's market is not likely to amount to much.—(Post & Flagg to John W. & D. S. Green.

New York.—There was a further contraction in the volume of trading on the Stock Exchange to-day when the dealings were reduced to a very small aggregate. Price movements were irregular, but on the whole the market presented a firm undertone. Liquidation was manifestly absent and by midday stocks had advanced on an average of 1 to 1½ points for the leading issues from the bottom and during the balance of the day the market was absolutely devoid of feature except as to dullness.—(Miner & Co. to Herman F. Monroe & Co.

New York.—Extremely dull market without feature. There were no stocks pressed for sale. We are inclined to look for a rally to-morrow.—(Kelley, Miller & Co. to Almstedt Bros.

New York.—The market showed moderate improvement in the tone during the first hour's trading and the buying by the same interests that started an upward movement a little over two weeks ago apparently exhausted the small amount of stocks obtainable from either bear operators or the bulls. The room traders were bearish in their talk, but were satisfied to simply predict lower prices without trying to force declines. There was very little commission business.—(Ex. Norton & Co. to J. J. B. Hilliard & Son.

New York.—In Texas a law is now in effect imposing imprisonment for anyone who represents a trust as agent or who sells goods made by a trust or combination. The length of imprisonment is from two to ten years, as the court may elect. In Washington the Government wants to appoint receivers for several concerns owned by combinations and compel such concerns to compete with one another for trade. In New York financiers who represent the world are not advising confident purchases of securities, for the simple reason that they do not know what the outcome of this latest fanaticism may be. We are inclined to believe that the next period of activity will be at the expense of values.—(Miller & Co. to John L. Dunlap.

New York.—The market was extremely dull and professional to-day, with commission house business reduced to a minimum, but the tone throughout was decidedly strong and advances throughout the list were very general, with Union Pacific as usual the leader on what little market there was. Sentiment was helped by the very much easier rates on call money, which opened at 4¾ per cent., renewals being made at 4½ per cent., and then eased off during the rest of the day, so that in the afternoon as low as 2¼ per cent. was quoted. The close was strong with most stocks very near best prices of the day.—(C. & E. Randolph to E. E. Paine & Co.

New York.—The market ruled exceptionally dull and while there was some inclination displayed to rally prices the dealings were of such trivial character that movements amounted to nothing almost. The bank statement preliminary estimate makes the loss in cash show about $5,000,000. This was not looked upon as bullish, but it did not force the market out of its lethargy. It would not be surprising if this present dullness in the market were succeeded by bullish activity as the future outside of financial affairs seem to have a favorable outlook.—(J. S. Bache & Co. to Washington Flexner & Co.

New York.—The market shows a gradual hardening tendency with a small volume of stock pressing for sale. The liquidation apparently has temporarily ended, and the presence of a large short interest in the market acts as a sustaining influence. The professional element, whose operations dominate the market at this time, are bearishly inclined, seem more disposed to predict lower prices rather than try to force a decline. Predictions are made for a very poor bank statement to-morrow, but the same has undoubtedly been discounted to a very great extent, it being generally thought that the worst of the money situation is over. However, we have had quite a decline and a recovery of at least a few points would seem in order.—(W. L. Lyons & Co.

STOCK MARKET REVIEW.

New York, July 12.—Money on call firm at 2@4¾ per cent.; ruling rate 3½; closing bid 2¼; offered at 3; time loans strong on long dates, but weaker on short; 60 days 5; 90 days 5¼; six months 6; prime mercantile paper 5½@6. Sterling exchange weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8650@4.8655 for demand and at $4.8330@4.8335 for 60-day bills; posted rates $4.84 and $4.87½; commercial bills $4.83@4.83¼. Bar silver 67½c. Mexican dollars 52½c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular.

The market for securities became torpid today, the activity dwindling until at times late in the day the trading was idle. The fluctuations were correspondingly narrow, but the undertone was firm. The forecasts of the week's currency movement showed a less formidable inroad on cash resources of the banks than had been anticipated and while the decrease was sufficient to leave room for the question of maintenance of a surplus, considering the small margin of that item last week, the comparatively easy tone of the call money market to-day had a reassuring effect. As the Subtreasury operations have taken $10,583,000 from the banks, it will be seen that interior banks have withdrawn on their New York correspondents for repayments of the $30,000,000 of Government deposits to a rather less amount than was expected. The banks estimate that the interior movement of currency has been in favor of this center on balance to the extent of several million dollars, which will reduce the loss on Subtreasury operations by that much. This gain on the interior movement is a decided improvement over the showing for recent weeks, although New York exchange at Chicago has ruled at a discount during the week. As the surplus reserves of the banks stood at less than $900,000 last week, it is difficult to understand how the surplus has been conserved. Last week's bank statement, however, in reporting a loss of $5,000,000 in cash understated a reported gain shown in the known movements of money by more than $12,000,000. A rectification of this glaring discrepancy in to-morrow's bank statement is probable.

The progressive easing of the call money market since the pinch of Wednesday precludes the supposition that the banks are near the limit of their surplus reserves. The Union Pacific and Atchison bond issues were subjected of continued discussion. The subscription warrants for the Union Pacific bonds were listed on the Stock Exchange and after selling down to 89¾ distinguished themselves by an advance to 91, at which cash sales were made. As only $4,000,000 of the $75,000,000 offered to stockholders at 90 were applied for, the source of the new demand at a higher price was a mystery. On the curb the full paid subscription warrants sold as low as 87¼, compared with 88, the syndicate subscription price.

Some of the stocks of corporations which were the special target of Government prosecutions were weak, including the Interborough-Metropolitan stocks and the American Tobacco group. American Snuff sold at a decline of 12½ points from the preceding sale. The determined abstention of holders of the matured United States 4 per cents. from presenting them for redemption is a subject of wonderment in view of current conditions, which show a scarcity of loanable money supplies and a practical famine of investment capital. The inert attitude of these bondholders is attributed in some sort to a profound distrust of investment conditions as they exist at present.

One of the subjects of comment was the expected publication on Sunday of the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Harriman investigation. The Harriman stocks were firmly held during the day. The stagnation of the market was its feature in the latter part of the day, but the gains were held to a firm closing.

FOREIGN FINANCIAL.

London, July 12.—Money was in good supply in the market to-day and met with a fair demand. Discounts were firmly maintained. On the Stock Exchange, although the settlement was concluded satisfactorily, business was light, owing to the forthcoming new issues and the absence of public support. The tone of British securities, however, was generally steady, with a hardening at the close. Americans were supported at above parity in the forenoon, owing to the belief that the gold movement had ended for a time. Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were most favored in the afternoon. Prices were stationary, but New York bought well later and caused a firm close. Foreigners were quietly steady. Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 102¼. Copper shares were easy. Rio Tinto was weak at the close. Closing quotations: Consols for money 84 3-16; do for the account 84¼; Anaconda 12; Atchison 92⅝; do preferred (ex-dividend) 95½; Baltimore and Ohio 100¼; Canadian Pacific 180; Chesapeake and Ohio 35¾; Chicago Great Western 11¼; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul 135½; De Beers 23¾; Denver and Rio Grande 28½; do preferred 73½; Erie 25½; do 1st preferred 61½; do 2d preferred 43; Grand Trunk 29⅝; Illinois Central 145; Louisville and Nashville 117½; Missouri, Kansas and Texas 34¼; New York Central (ex-dividend) 115; Norfolk and Western 77; do preferred 86; Ontario and Western (ex-dividend) 36¼; Pennsylvania 62¾; Rand Mines 5¼; Reading 51½; Southern Railway 20½; do preferred 69; Southern Pacific 80¾; Union Pacific 140¾; do preferred 89; United States Steel 37¼; do preferred 102½; Wabash 14½; do preferred 26; Spanish 4s 96½. Bar silver steady at 31⅛d per ounce. Money 2@2¼ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝@3½ per cent., and for three-months' bills is 3⅝ per cent.

Berlin, July 12.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were irregular. Americans fluctuated, but later improved, especially Canadian Pacific, on London influences. Exchange on London 20 marks 44½ pfgs. for checks. Discount rates: Short bills 4⅝ per cent.; three months' bills 4½ per cent.

Paris, July 12.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened firm, but closed heavy. Trading was dull. Russian Imperial 4s were not quoted and the bonds of 1904 closed at 488. Three per cent. rentes 95f 37½c for the account. Exchange on London 25f 15c for checks.

LEAF TOBACCO.

Friday Evening, July 12.—Sales of leaf tobacco on the local auction breaks to-day were very limited, only 118 hogsheads being offered. The market for new Burley showed some improvement and most all the grades were in better demand. The quality and condition were also rather good for this time of the year, some hogsheads selling as high as $19.75. No special features were noted. For old Burley the market ruled firm and unchanged. Nothing out of the ordinary occurred in the dark market. There was some irregularity, but most grades ruled firm.

The week's sales totaled 1,192 hogsheads—926 by auction and 266 privately. During the corresponding week last year sales totaled 2,173 hogsheads and in 1905 they amounted to 2,699. This week's Burley sales were composed of 608 hogsheads of the 1906 crop and 154 hogsheads of old crops, and the dark was made up of 87 hogsheads of old crops and 343 new. Since January 1 sales have amounted to 78,766 hogsheads, compared with 98,400 last year and 87,063 in 1905. Sales of new crop to date aggregate 76,219 hogsheads, against 96,646 to this date last year. Rejections this week were 18 per cent. of the sales by auction.

The following is the report of offerings today on the Louisville market, including all the warehouses:

Cincinnati Market.

Cincinnati, July 12.—(Special.)—The week-end market was strong, liberal offerings of fine and fancy leaf being the feature. There were good sales of the better grades at 12c to 20¾c. Sales totaling 309 hhds were as follows: 1 at $5.50; 10 at $7.50@7.95; 86 at $8@9.95; 110 at $10@11.75; 120 at $12@14.75; 38 at $15@19.50; 4 at $20@20.75.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Louisville.

(Furnished by the Bourbon Stock Journal, Bourbon Stock Yards, Louisville, Ky.)

Louisville, July 12.—Cattle—The receipts of cattle to-day were very light, 53 head, for the week thus far 2,071. There was a light attendance of buyers on the yards, the demand limited and the market quiet throughout the day. Good to choice butcher cattle were fully steady, other grades slow. Nothing much doing in the feeder and stocker trade, the best steady, others slow; common trashy stockers dull. Bulls and canners steady; milch cows unchanged; no heavy shipping cattle here, feeling steady. The pens were fairly well cleared; market closed quiet.

Calves—Receipts of calves 107; for the week thus far 874. The market ruled steady, bulk of best 7c; some fancy shade higher; common dull.

Hogs—Receipts of hogs 2,303; for the week thus far 11,350. The market opened fairly active on medium and light hogs; values 5c higher, while heavy hogs were slow sale at steady prices; we quote selected 200 and up $5.90; 160 to 200 lbs. $5.95; 100 to 160 lbs. $6.10; light pigs $5.25; roughs $5.25 down. The trade closed steady on lights and mediums; dull on heavies. Be careful and avoid grassy half fat hogs; no demand for that class.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts of sheep and lambs 4,706; for the week thus far 31,401. The market was very slow this morning. Best lambs were about 25c lower, tops selling around $7.25; good seconds $6.25. Fat sheep were about steady; best $4.50@4.75; common sheep and trashy cull lambs dull. Stock ewe trade quiet.

BIG SHORTAGE OF STOCK CARS.

For the past several days there has been quite a scarcity of double-deck livestock cars at this point. Yesterday and Wednesday the Chicago sheep and lamb buyers were compelled to carry over a good portion of their purchases owing to the inability to secure cars via any route. To-day the lamb market was extremely dull and suffered a decline of 25c per 100 pounds, due to the fact that the regular buyers were unwilling to buy and take chances on getting stock shipped.

(Reported by the Central Live Stock Exchange, Central Stock Yards.)

Louisville, July 12.—Cattle—The attendance of buyers was rather light; not many fresh cattle here. Good to choice well-finished butcher cattle are in good demand at steady to strong prices. Half-fat grassy cattle are slow and hard to sell. Feeder and stocker trade continues slow. Bulls, canners and milch cows about steady. Feeling on shipping cattle continues firm.

Calves—The receipts of calves were 37 head; market ruled firm; bulk of the best calves selling around $7; something fancy a shade higher; common calves slow sale.

Hogs—The trade opened fairly active; lights and mediums 5c higher than yesterday. We quote 200 pounds and up at $5.85; 160 to 200 pounds $5.95; 100 to 160 pounds $6.10; light pigs $5.25; roughs $5.25 down. Be careful about half-fat grassy stuff, as they have to be sold at a sacrifice.

Sheep and Lambs—The trade was rather slow to-day. Best lambs changed hands at $7.25@7.50; good seconds $6.25; fat sheep $4.50@4.75; common, trashy sheep and cull lambs very slow. Stock ewe trade rather slow and not many sought after.

New York.

COTTON MARKETS.

New York, July 12.—The cotton market was fairly active again to-day, with sales estimated at 400,000 bales. Fluctuations were irregular, with the market making a new low record for the movement during the early session, but recovered part of the loss later and closed steady, net unchanged to 11 points lower, with late months relatively firm. The opening was steady at a decline of 5@11 points under continued pressure from local bears and liquidation, notwithstanding better cables than looked for. The weather map was considered good and the near months were influenced by apprehensions that the former bulls would retender all the cotton taken up on May and July contracts, but there was a fair demand for the new crop positions on a scale down, and after selling off to a net loss of about 10@12 points the list rallied on covering and New Orleans bull support. In spite of the good weather many of the private reports from the South regarding the progress of the crop are unfavorable, and, as was the case yesterday, numerous bullish messages were received from New Orleans regarding the probable crop and its course on the market. The market continued very nervous on the rally, owing to fears that there would be a renewal of pressure from the bear clique. The early decline carried the active new crop months about 75 points under the high level of last week. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged.

Estimated receipts at the ports to-day were 3,000 bales, against 2,035 last week and 3,317 last year. For the week 15,000 bales, against 13,428 last week and 27,736 last year. To-day's receipts at New Orleans were 1,447 bales, against 165 last year, and at Houston 393 bales, against 160 last year.

Spot quiet; middling uplands 13.10c; do gulf 13.35c. Closed quiet and 5 points lower; middling uplands 13.05c; do gulf 13.30c. Sales 1,300 bales.

Futures opened barley steady and closed steady. Prices ranged as follows:

HESTER'S COTTON STATEMENT

New Orleans, July 12.—Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement, issued before the close of business to-day shows a decrease in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round figures 13,000 bales, a decrease the same days year before last of 54,000 and an increase the same time in 1904 of 20,000.

For the twelve days of July the totals show a decrease under last year of 38,000 bales, a decrease under the same period year before last of 121,000 and an increase over the same time in 1904 of 38,000.

For the 315 days of the season that have elapsed the aggregate is ahead of the 315 days of last year 2,433,000 bales, ahead of the same days year before last 415,000 and ahead of 1904 by 3,441,000.

The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 34,191 bales against 47,194 for the same days ending this date last year 88,199 year before last and 13,700 same time in 1904; and for the twelve days of July it has been 76,441 against 113,962 last year, 197,460 year before last and 43,238 same time in 1904.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 9,789,208 bales against 7,701,434 last year, 9,720,962 year before last and 7,086,296 same time in 1904. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac rivers to Northern mills and Canada 1,204,326 against 968,887 last year, 1,070,122 year before last and 915,019 same time in 1904; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 39,727 bales against 58,906 last year, 115,544 year before last and 67,247 same time in 1904; Southern mills takings 2,233,000 bales against 2,129,433 last year, 1,964,768 year before last and 1,776,346 same time in 1904.

These make the total movement for the 315 days of the season from September 1 to date 13,286,259 bales against 10,853,662 last year, 12,811,396 year before last and 9,844,938 same time in 1904.

Foreign exports for the week have been 28,466 bales against 56,541 last year, making the total thus far for the season 8,288,603 bales against 6,321,816 last year, an increase of 1,966,787.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the past seven days show an increase of 1,150 bales as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total takings since September 1 have increased 180,196. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 4,835,230 bales against 4,527,043 last year. These include 2,320,396 by Northern spinners against 2,196,296.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during the week 27,569 bales against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 41,204 and are now 23,363 smaller than at this date in 1906.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 13,584,029 against 11,298,193 for the same period last year.

Hester's World's Visible Supply.

New Orleans, July 12.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, made up from special cable and telegraphic advices, compares the figures of this week with last week, last year and the year before. It shows a decrease for the week just closed of 174,572 bales against a decrease of 147,652 last year and a decrease of 116,393 year before last.

The total visible is 3,278,465 bales against 3,453,370 last week, 2,733,461 last year and 3,199,803 year before last. Of this the total of American cotton is 2,015,465 against 2,138,037 last week, 1,500,461 last year and 1,967,803 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,263,000 against 1,315,000 last week, 1,233,000 last year and 1,232,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton as above shows a decrease compared with last week of 174,572, an increase compared with last year of 545,041 and an increase compared with the year before of 48,662.

Of the world's visible supply of cotton as above there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and continental Europe 2,028,000 bales against 1,450,000 last year and 1,665,000 year before last; in Egypt 61,000 bales against 59,000 last year and 103,000 year before last; in India 719,000 bales against 818,000 last year and 879,000 year before last; and in the United States 468,000 against 426,000 last year and 563,000 year before last.

Taking of American Cotton By Spinners Throughout the World.

New Orleans, July 12.—Secretary Hester gives the taking of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 157,000 bales this year against 163,000 last year, 168,000 year before last.

Total since September 1 this year 12,147,000 bales against 10,986,000 last year and 11,345,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 2,215,000 bales this year against 2,335,000 last year and 2,285,000 the year before; Southern spinners 2,320,000 against 2,193,000 last year and 2,004,000 the year before, and foreign spinners 7,312,000 against 1,458,000 last year and 7,107,000 the year before.

COTTON COMMENT.

New York.—We consider the market to have had sufficient decline under the existing conditions and we would rather advise purchases of the September, October and December options on a scale down from this level than suggest further short sales after such a big break, and especially as the scattered weak long interest has been practically eliminated in the past few days and as perfect weather and a late frost are necessary to make an average crop or a crop of 12,000,000 bales.—(T. A. McIntyre & Co.

We consider now the market to have had sufficient decline and would advise purchases of October and December options, as the scattered weak long interest has been pretty well driven out of the market during the last few days.—(Hubbard Bros. & Co. to E. E. Paine & Co.

To-day's low prices are very close to spinners' idea of the buying point, and further, with the general belief that the crop has started too badly to admit of a full yield, it will not be wise for any interest to become congested on the short side.—(J. S. Bache & Co. to Washington Flexner & Co.

It looks like a professional manipulation and we can only advise buying on a scale down for the reaction which must come after this big decline.—(A. O. Brown & Co. to Hunt, Bridgeford & Co.

The public is not a factor and those desiring to benefit from the real advance later on will have to content themselves by feeling for the bottom, buying their cotton on a scale down.—(Carpenter, Baggot & Co.

With the market held down artificially it is only a question of days when the recoil will carry prices to a level commensurate with the present technical position of cotton.—(Atwood Violett & Co.

We prefer buying on a scale down from time to time.—(Miller & Co.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 12.—Active covering by shorts caused a strong close in the wheat market today, the September delivery showing a net gain of ⅝c. Corn was up ⅛c, oats were ⅝c higher and provisions were 7½c to 17½@20c higher.

The wheat market opened weak because of a decline of more than 1d at Liverpool and because of the extremely favorable weather in the Northwest. Prices continued to decline during the first hour and touched a point 1c below the close of yesterday. About the middle of the day sentiment changed because of the large number of reports from the Northwest telling of the poor condition of the spring crop. Commission houses and shorts commenced to buy freely and prices soon advanced 2c above the low mark of the day. The market was also strengthened by reports of small yields in the Southwest. The close was strong. September opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 93¼@93½c, sold off to 92⅝c and then advanced to 94¼c. The close was at 94c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 165,000 bushels. Exports for the week, as shown by Bradstreet's, were equal to 3,250,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 437,000 bushels, against 875,000 for the same day last year. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 297 cars, against 582 last week and 331 one year ago.

The corn market was weak early in the day because of excellent weather conditions and in sympathy with wheat. Later the advance in wheat brought out an improved demand for corn, which resulted in a strong market. Small local receipts were a bullish factor. September opened ¼@⅝c lower at 53⅝@54c, sold off to 53⅜@54c and then rallied to 54½c. The close was at 54⅜c. Local receipts were 327 cars, with 32 of contract grade.

Oats were weak early in the day because of the same influences that affected the corn market. Later the market rallied on buying by bulls. Crop damage reports from the Northwest aided the buying movement late in the day. September opened ¼@½c lower at 38¼@38½c, advanced to 39¼c and closed at 39⅛c. Local receipts were 68 cars.

Trading in provisions was small, but the market was firm because of higher prices for live hogs. At the close September pork was up 17½@20c at $16.42½@16.45, lard was up 7½c at $9.02½ and ribs were 10c higher at $8.72½.

Estimated receipts for to-morrow: Wheat 22 cars; corn 286; oats 98; hogs 14,000 head.

GRAIN LETTERS.

Chicago.—The action of the wheat market to-day shows that liquidation of weak holdings has been thorough. There was a little tail-end liquidation early to-day, coupled with some hedging sales by cash interests, which gave the market its early dip of about one cent. As soon as the market again began to harden shorts were quick to cover. The best-posted traders started in to replace long wheat. There was excellent buying by commission people, with the best orders from the Northwest. The important news to-day came from the Northwest. It caused an upturn in prices of about 2 cents from the low point and the close was at ⅝c net gain for the day, with splendid feeling in the trade at the finish. The trade soon forgot the talk of 1,000,000 bushel increase at Minneapolis, the fine harvest weather in the Southwest and gave little attention to the Modern Miller reports, which claims that farmers are selling wheat freely and that yields are turning out rather over than under popular estimates. Tennessee points report mills taking the new wheat at 85 to 90c and find offerings scarce. Union City, in that State, reports yields of from 7 to 9 bushels instead of 15 to 30 in a good year. Southwest continues to get very small receipts. Keeping the bullish European situation in view, we believe buyers can safely take hold of this wheat on the basis of a short spring crop.—(Logan & Bryan to W. L. Lyons & Co.

Chicago.—The buying was indicative of the main cause for the change in conditions and sentiment. Bad crop situation in the Northwest. Claims are constant, widespread and positive that the condition promises only fair to poor yields, estimates based on the locality or point of view of the estimator. Crop complaints generally are that the crop is thin, weedy, late and often of poor color. Hardly anything was heard to-day of bugs, but much of red rust. There was quite a business done for export on the early break. Early influences were chiefly the fear of a coming rush of new winter wheat. Sales of cash houses in the pit were moderate against new wheat purchases Southwest arrivals were 89,000 bushels to-day against 467,000 last year. Total primary arrivals 347,000 bushels against 875,000 a year ago.—(Hunt, Bridgeford & Co.

Louisville.—After breaking a cent from yesterday's close prices gradually worked upward on good covering by shorts and considerable buying by the Northwest. The Northwest buying was apparentlyp on the probability of further crop damage reports from that section. Our advices, however, from the Northwest are that the weather has been favorable for the past three or four days but that rain is needed in Southern Manitoba. There is a slight improvement in the cash demand.—(E. E. Paine & Co.

SEWER COMMISSIONERS MUST HAVE MORE MONEY

URGE THAT LOCAL CAPITALISTS SHOULD "LOOSEN UP."

HOPE TO BE ABLE TO BEGIN ON WORK SOON.

HAPPY HOLLOW COMES FIRST.

While only a comparatively small amount of the $1,000,000 of sewer bonds which were to be sold first has been disposed of, the Sewer Commission proposes to proceed with the work at once. As something like $157,000 in bonds have been sold, sufficient money has been obtained to start the preliminary work of construction. The commission borrowed about $50,000 with which to meet expenses of the surveys and compilation of maps and charts, and, of course, this amount will be paid out of the first money realized on the sale of the securities. President Peter Lee Atherton, of the Sewer Commission, hopes to dispose of more bonds soon, which will give the commission ample capital for work for the time being.

While the commissioners think that within a comparatively short time they will find ready purchasers for the bonds, they think that, owing to the soundness of the bonds and the fact that they are nontaxable to the city, local trust companies should show a little patriotism and take large blocks of the bonds, which would give them a good start on the market.

One of the commissioners said that the bonds were gilt-edge and the nontaxable feature of them would net trust companies about as much as they get for money on real estate loans. He said the fact that the money was going for the construction of a modern sewer system, something that would do Louisville good for future generations in the way of making it a city of health, which would naturally enhance the value of all property, should have a tendency toward making local capitalists and corporations loosen up. Generosity would be coupled with the act of a safe investment.

The same commissioner said that if $500,000 of the bonds were sold shortly it would give sufficient working capital for a year. It would enable the commission to work all through the winter months, should it happen to be an open winter. All the commission wants now is money. Everything is in readiness for digging and sewer construction. Work will likely begin on the Happy Hollow, which parallels the canal, sewer first.

President Atherton said that the most difficult problems before the Sewer Commission were the proposed Beargrass Intercepting sewer and the southern outfall. In both these problems the commission will have to deal with the future as well as the present demands. It is estimated that over $300,000 will have to be expended on the Beargrass work and about $1,700,000 on the southern outfall. Bids, of course, will not be taken on this work until sufficient funds are available to carry work over until another $1,000,000 of bonds are put on the market. If the bonds are not sold until late in the fall perhaps the work will not be let until next spring.

The commissioners are frank in stating that the work will depend altogether on the sale of the bonds. For this reason they urge that the capitalists of the city lend their assistance to the work so far as they can.

Family Out—House Takes Fire.

While the family of M. B. Beville, of 235 East Ormsby avenue, was out shopping yesterday morning fire broke out in their residence. As no one was at home to note the blaze, the fire had gained considerable headway before an alarm was sent in, and before the fire was extinguished about $1,000 damage had been done to the house and $1,000 damage to the household furniture. The losses are fully covered by insurance.

HIS FIRST SESSION IN JUVENILE COURT

JUDGE WALTER LINCOLN DELIVERS FATHERLY LECTURE.

KEPT BUSY FOR SIX HOURS WITHOUT RECESS.

HEARS NO SERIOUS OFFENSES.

Judge Walter Lincoln yesterday held his first session of the Juvenile Court since he was appointed to the county bench by Gov. Beckham. He found about forty-five cases on the docket beside some thirty applications for labor permits. Taking up the docket shortly after 10 o'clock it was about 4 p. m. when he completed the session, having sat continuously. None of the cases were of an aggravated nature, and while Judge Lincoln inquired very particularly into each, it proved on the whole rather a light day for the young offenders.

Judge Lincoln adopted the plan pursued by Judge Wilson, of giving each child who had been guilty of some little offense a fatherly lecture of caution and advice before making his decision. Reckless celebrations of the Fourth of July and the careless shooting off of fire works since that day came in for a share of the court's attention.

One fourteen-year-old negro boy, who was charged with having fired a 22-caliber revolver loaded with ball cartridges, was placed under probation to Mrs. Charles P. Weaver, who appeared in his behalf and informed the court that she knew that the boy was of good character. Judge Lincoln inquired at length into how the boy had secured the weapon, and when he learned that another boy who had lent it to the young defendant had bought it, he passed the case in order to give the officers time to run down the original owner who may be making it his business selling boys such dangerous toys.

Two alleged crap shooters of tender age, who protested that they were only "looking on," came in for a sound lecture at the hands of the court.

Court Paragraphs.

—John Bullitt sued Sallie Bullitt for divorce on the charge of abandonment.

—Dr. Fred L. Koontz sued Robert L. Bledsoe for $175, said to be due for professional services.

—Mrs. Minnie Clausen sued to secure the sale of certain real estate and a division of the proceeds among those interested.

—Katie and A. W. James sued the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company for $10,000. She was hurt in getting off a car.

—Lillie Dugan sued the Union Tank Line Company, the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge and Railroad Company and the Southern Railway Company for $5,000. She was injured in the explosion of gasoline which occurred as the result of a derailed tank car on the tracks on Thirty-first street the night of June 14.

—Annie Glasser, as administratrix of Phillip Glasser, sued the Southern Railway Company, the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge and Railroad Company and the Union Tank Line Company for $1,000 because of injury done the decedent's house and personal property by the gasoline explosion June 14, on Thirty-first street.

ANONYMOUS HERO GOES INTO FIRE TO SAVE LIFE

CARRIES D. F. KING FROM BLAZING BUILDING.

DAMAGE TO SANITARY UPHOLSTERING WORKS NOT HEAVY.

PROPRIETOR BADLY BURNED.

Fire which broke out in the King Sanitary Upholstering Works, at 543 First street, yesterday morning, furnished an opportunity for a stranger whose identity could not be learned to play the hero in rescuing D. F. King, the proprietor of the concern, from the flames. The fire had gained considerable headway when a Louisville and Southern Indiana car, en route to Jeffersonville, passed. A stranger, attracted by cries of distress, jumped off the rear platform and bore the unconscious form of Mr. King from the building and across to the opposite side of the street, after which he disappeared without disclosing his identity.

Mr. King, who was badly burned about the hands and face, as well as injured internally from inhaling fire and smoke, was removed to his home, 918 First street, where medical attendance awaited him. He was at first thought to be in a very serious condition, but was said to be getting along very nicely last night, and the attending physician, Dr. George S. Coon, does not look for any serious after results, though the burns are none the less painful and will confine Mr. King to his bed for some time.

Just before being removed to his residence Mr. King stated that he believed the fire originated from the explosion of a bottle of benzine, which was near a lighted coal-oil stove.

"The benzine ignited and exploded," said he. "I was hurled to the floor. My face was burned and the building seemed a mass of flames. This is all that I remember, except that some one picked me up and carried me out into the open air."

The loss on the building is about $400. Mrs. D. W. Cottrell conducts a boarding-house in the second and third stories of the building, and her loss, due to smoke and water, is only about $100, fully covered by insurance.

HOSPITAL'S SMOKESTACK, STORM-WEAKENED, FALLS.

Crash Heard For Blocks Around and Pedestrian Narrowly Missed Being Crushed To Death.

With a resounding crash heard for many blocks and carrying with it in its flight telegraph, telephone and trolley wires, the monster 100-foot steel smokestack on the Madison-street side of the City Hospital fell at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The big structure, weakened by the storm of Wednesday evening, had been in a dangerous condition since that time and it's collapse was momentarily expected. That no persons were injured is due to good luck and the sufficient warning given by the stack as it swayed and creaked before it fell.

Madison street, for two hours afterward, was blocked to traffic and a force of men hurried to the scene to clear away the debris found the task of moving the many tons of steel a difficult task. The accident came near to resulting fatally to one man, whose identity could not be learned. He was almost directly in the path of the structure as it fell toward Madison street. He became bewildered and twice ran backward and forward, not knowing which way to turn. An intervening tree limb shifted the course of the heavy stack enough to give the excited man a margin of several feet from death. The man disappeared almost immediately afterward.

The structure was practically uninjured by the fall and after being divided into two sections will again be erected in its place.

is over-stimulation of the tiny skin blood vessels — capillaries — by the sun's rays. The first inflammation is painful as well as unsightly—an unwelcome forerunner of the coveted "tan."
Pond's Extract Soap
has two special properties — penetration and healing — which tend to prevent the burning, and which soothe and relieve when it has occurred. Wash gently, but lather very freely; wash off and repeat, drying by gently patting. Do not rub burned surfaces. The Pond's Extract, carried to the over-stimulated capillaries, cools and soothes; relieves the "stinging" smart and, by causing more normal circulation, diminishes the vivid color which too often precedes the dusky tan, so much desired by summer lads and lasses. ¶ Its creamy whiteness indicates its purity. From Your Druggist.

GROOM'S FATHER ILL, SO HASTENS HIS WEDDING.

Miss Lucy Maud Williams, of Louisville, Goes To Kansas City To Meet Mr. Walter R. Schwartz.

Longing for the comforting presence of his bride-to-be in his hour of sorrow Walter R. Schwartz, a saleman with the Mayfield Woolen Mills Company, with a territory in Kansas and Missouri, upon hearing that his father was near death from an apoplectic stroke at his home at Santa Barbara, Cal., on Wednesday, telegraphed Miss Lucy Maud Williams, of Louisville, to meet him in Kansas City, where they could be married without delaying Mr. Schwartz on his urgent journey to his dying father's bedside. After some persuasion on the part of Mr. Schwartz, Miss Williams decided to leave on the next train.

Accompanied by her mother and Miss Ada Clarkson, a cousin, she left for Kansas City, arriving there Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, one hour after the arrival of Mr. Schwartz. They were married at the Midland Hotel at 8 o'clock Thursday night and then left shortly after for Santa Barbara, that Mr. Schwartz might be at his father's bedside at the earliest possible moment.

Miss Williams formerly lived at 1036 Second street and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams. She and Mr. Schwartz were to have been married on July 18 at 9 o'clock, at the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church. The invitations were recalled yesterday with an explanation of the cause leading to the unexpected time of the wedding.

MRS. MARY KOLLROS DEAD AS RESULT OF INJURIES.

Struck By Construction Car and Mangled Under Wheels—Amputation of Foot Fails of Relief.

The subsequent shock, following upon having her foot terribly crushed by a construction car at the junction of Twenty-fourth and Market streets on Thursday afternoon proved fatal to Mrs. Mary Kollros, wife of Prof. Constantine Kollros, teacher of music at St. Xavier's College.

Mrs. Kollros was struck by the car and thrown partially under the wheels. Her right foot was terribly mangled and it is thought that she also sustained internal injuries. Following the accident she was taken to St. Joseph's Infirmary, but owing to her advanced age of seventy years and the nature of her injuries little hope was entertained for her recovery.

Amputation was resorted to late Thursday night to prevent blood poisoning, and following the surgical operation Mrs. Kollros grew weaker until death came yesterday morning shortly after 9 o'clock.

She is survived by seven children: John S., E. Joseph, Leo, George C., Mrs. Mary Wempe and Mrs. Kate Seller, all of Louisville, and Mrs. Rose Pracht, of Chicago. Mrs. Pracht is now on the way to Louisville. Funeral services will be held to-morrow at St. Anthony's Catholic church, Twenty-second and Market streets.

If you awaken with a bad taste, sick, sour stomach, coated tongue, nervousness, roaring, buzzing sounds in the head, poor appetite, weakness of limbs, tired feeling, constipation, pains in side, back or under shoulder blades, it is a sure sign that you are in a diseased condition and in need of treatment. These are symptoms of Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney, Liver, Stomach and blood disorder. Therefore, go to your drug store and get a thirty days' treatment of Dr. Burkhart's Compound for twenty-five cents.
Avoid malarial troubles this fall by taking Wintersmith's Tonic.
